NEW COLLEGE ATHLETIC ALLIANCE WITH FOUR OR FIVE MEMBERS MAY BE FORMED

BIG FOUR MAY BE BIG THREE'S RIVAL

Cornell, Penn, Dartmouth, and Syracuse Are Considering Formation of Alliance.

MAY EVEN BE A BIG FIVE

Columbia Is a Possible Addition to Coterie in Reply to Harvard-Yale-Princeton Alliance.

A new intercollegiate alliance is being discussed which may include Cornell, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Syracuse, and possibly Columbia, and which will take in all branches of sports. While many of these coleges meet in one or more competitions each year, the object of the new affiliation is to bring about some such organization as has been made by Harvard, Yale, and Princeton.

As the so-called Big Three are becoming more closely affiliated in sport, other institutions fear that perhaps they may be left out in the cold, so they aim to have an organization among themselves on the same order as the Big Three. There was an informal discussion of the plan in this city a few weeks ago during the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America. While the plan has not yet taken definite form, the idea has been planted, and it would not be surprising if some or all of these colleges got together with a working agreement in the near future.

The smaller colleges have watched Harvard, Yale, and Princeton come into closer relationship with more or less misgivings. The wartime conditions brought them into an exclusive organization of their own, and now it appears that the plan would be continued in the readjustment period. The fact that Harvard, Yale, and Princeton will hold a triangular track meet at the Harvard Stadium on May 17 is taken as an indication that they will not care to arrange dual meets with other colleges, for this season, at any rate.

Coming so close to the intercollegiates, which will be held on May 29 and 30, the other colleges fear that the triangular meet may have the effect of holding down the number of entries which these institutions would ordinarily send to the championships.

It is almost certain that when the I. C. A. A. A. A. holds its annual convention here March 1, the annual championship games will be awarded to Harvard. They were held last year in Philadelphia, and while in past years Cornell and Syracuse have bid for the attraction, it is not likely that, on account of depleted athletic treasuries, they will care to ask for it this season.

The new college alliance which has been suggested may easily grow into a strong intercollegiate body, and while it has not been the policy of the colleges to go along an exclusive course in their reconstruction plans, it would seem now that this is the policy of the Big Three. The negotiations which are now under way may develop rapidly enough for them to come to some arrangement for meets during the coming Spring, and important announcements on the new body are looked for when the intercollegiate body gets together here March 1.

SET DATE FOR GOLF MEET.

Open Championship to be Held June 9, 10, and 11 at Braeburn.

After conferring with the officials of the Braeburn Country Club at West Newton, Mass., the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association has chosen June 9, 10, and 11 as the dates for the national open championship to be held under the auspices of the national body. This is practically the first time in the history of the U. S. G. A. that the first three days in the week have been selected for an open meeting.

It will be recalled that when this country went into the war and title events were called off, it was left up to Braeburn, which had been awarded the open at the annual meeting in 1917, to decide whether or not it cared to stage an event involving no title. After looking into the matter, the Massachusetts club declared itself against such a plan, and immediately thereafter the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club made application to the U. S. G. A. for the tournament, the meeting being held over that links in June when Jock Hutchison led the field.

ARMY LOSES AT HOCKEY.

Cadets Defeated by Springfield Y. M. C. A. by 2 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Springfield Y. M. C. A. defeated the Army at hockey today 2 to 1, in a game full of fight and aggressiveness, though cleanly fought throughout. The teams went into the second half before scoring, the Army drawing first blood when Wood shot one past Huston one minute after play began. Fink's long shot tied the score a moment later, and Brown poled the winning tally through from a scrimmage near the Army cage, the disc caroming off Burgard's leg near the middle of the half. Brown's fine defensive play and Boyd's skating were the features.

Lineup:

Springfield, (2.)	Position.	Army, (1.)
Huston	G.	Burgard
Brown	P.	Rice
Van Wagner	C. P.	Evarts
Fink	C.	Boyd
Leonard	R.	Bartlett
Markley	L. W.	Stout
Noren	R. W.	Wood

Substitutions—Miller for Rice, Sears for Wood. Time of halves—Twenty minutes. Referee—Captain Smith.

BAXTER VICTOR ON LINKS.

Has Close Golf Battle with Morrell at Palm Beach.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 11.—The first round of match play in the South Florida championship tournament today was marked by exceptionally good golf. Both J. R. Van Buren, Sherwood, and W. J. Baxter, Oakland, who stand tied with seventy-fives for the medal, came through, the latter having all he could do to dispose of Alfred Morrell, Hackensack, whom he defeated by 2 up after a fine match, in which Baxter had a medal score of 73.

Baxter is to meet W. R. Simon of New York tomorrow, and Van Buren will play Charles E. Van Vleck, Jr., of Montclair.

The summary:

Championship Division.—J. N. Van Buren, Sherwood, defeated A. R. Ridley, Englewood, 5 and 3; C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., Montclair, defeated Russell Colt, New York, 4 and 3; H. C. Clark, Myopia, defeated C. Grady, New York, 3 and 2; Quintin Fitner, South Shore Field Club, defeated A. J. Mendez, Siwanoy, 3 and 2; Andrew Carnegie, 2d, Myopia, defeated C. W. Baxter, Oakland, defeated Alfred Morrell, Hackensack, 2 up.

CALL NILES BEFORE BOARD.

Morningside A. C. Officials to Question His Attitude Toward Club.

A radical change in the conduct of the club's affairs will probably be adopted by the officials of the Morningside A. C. of Harlem at a meeting to be held tomorrow night. Irving Lehman, President, plans a thorough housecleaning.

Several office holders and other members will be called before the Board of Officers to explain their conduct, according to President Lehman. Among them is Fred A. Niles, Chairman of the Athletic Committee, who is also Chairman of the Metropolitan A. A. U. Registration Committee. No charges have been preferred against Niles, President Lehman stated last night, but it is planned to question him concerning his attitude toward the club.

If Niles cannot satisfactorily explain his status he will probably be dealt with summarily. Disposition of his case, with the others, rests with the Board of Officers. If Niles is expelled from the club, this action would necessitate the installation of a new A. A. U. Registration Committee Chairman. It is regarded as significant that in announcing that officers will be selected for four offices President Lehman includes that of Chairman of the Athletic Committee in the list. The other positions are track team coach, track team Captain, and cross-country team Captain.

TEN GOALS FOR MAURICE.

His Playing Gives Berkeley-Irving Five Easy Victory.

Berkeley-Irving School's basket ball team added another victory to its list yesterday when it defeated the Massee School quintet on the former's court by a score of 44 to 11. Maurice, at centre, was the greatest scorer for Berkeley-Irving, getting ten field goals.

DUFFY SEEKING PITCHERS.

Harvard Coach Works Baseball Candidates in Cage.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 11.—Head Coach Hugh Duffy began work today in the Harvard cage, getting twenty-five or thirty battery men together and looking them over in a three-hour session. Duffy has a wealth of infield and outfield material on tap, but pitching strength, particularly for the 'Varsity, must be developed.

CHASE LEADS FIELD OF FAST SWIMMERS

Cleaves Way Through Water in N. Y. A. C. Tank to Victory in 200-Yard Race.

Paul Chase, New York A. C. swimmer, gave an excellent exhibition of aquatic ability last night in the Mercury Foot organization's pool when he captured the premier prize in the 200-yard handicap swim. Chase, starting with an allowance of nineteen seconds, which made him virtually the scratch man in the final heat, plowing his way through the water in dashing style and pulled up with an advantage of about ten yards on G. B. Nodine, a sailor-swimmer, who had a one-minute start and finished second. Chase's time was 2:19 1-5, the best time recorded in a total of four heats.

Chase swam an impressive race throughout. His quick, consistent crawl carried him through the water at a fast clip from the time he made his plunge. With each stroke it seemed that the young New York A. C. natator gained on his liberally handicapped rivals, Nodine and Norman A. Buck, who started with twenty-four seconds. Buck never really became a dangerous contender, so that the race evolved into a test between Chase and Nodine. The latter's large handicap kept him in front until shortly before the last turn, when Chase advanced to the lead and never relinquished it to the finish.

The race was witnessed by a crowd which filled the three tiers of the natatorium. Many women were among the spectators and they enjoyed the races even more than their male escorts, judging by the volume of their applause.

Two unexpected additions were made to the original program. One of the surprises was an exhibition swim by Ted Cann, former Columbia University and New York A. C. swimmer, who is an Ensign in Uncle Sam's Navy. Cann gave an exhibition of speed at fifty yards and was clocked in 0:25 2-5. Cann, who is the proud possessor of the Congressional Medal, was one of the first athletes of this country to be thus decorated in the war. Oscar Heidstrom, Swedish champion, gave an exhibition of breast stroke swimming at 100 yards. His time was 1:24 2-5.

Arthur McAleenan, Jr., received a volume of applause when he won the fancy diving contest from scratch with a total of 109.8 points.

In the 75-yard handicap swim F. C. Burrowes, West Side Y. M. C. A., swam to a close victory in 0:44 3-5.

The summaries:

75-Yard Swim, Handicap.—Won by F. C. Burrowes, West Side Y. M. C. A., (9 seconds;) J. T. Trumphour, West Side Y. M. C. A., (9 seconds,) second; R. Saacke, New York A. C., (7 seconds,) third. Time—0:44 3-5.

200-Yard Swim, Handicap.—Won by Paul Chase, New York A. C., (19 seconds;) G. B. Nodine, U. S. Navy, (60 seconds,) second; Norman A. Buck, New York A. C., (24 seconds,) third. Time—2:19 1-5.

Fancy Diving Contest, (from a 10-foot board,) Handicap.—Won by Arthur McAleenan, Jr., New York A. C., (scratch,) with 109.8 points; Fred Spongberg, New York A. C., (10 points,) with 99.3 points, second; George Dahm, New York A. C., (10 points,) with 86.6 points, third.

FRISCH DEFEATS CANNEFAX.

Again Leads St. Louis Player in Three-Cushion Match.

Harry Frisch scored another victory over Joseph Cannefax of St. Louis, former champion, in their handicap three-cushion carrom billiard match last night at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. Frisch, playing for 30 points against Cannefax's 40, was successful by a score of 30 to 25.

In an afternoon match Cannefax scored a victory over A. Mallon by a count of 40 to 19.

Scudder Wins at Billiards.

F. O. Scudder defeated G. L. Spence by a score of 50 to 48 in the three-cushion billiard tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Thum's rooms last night, in a close ninety-inning game. Each player made a high run of 5.

Billings Traded for Nunamaker.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 11.—President James C. Dunn of the Cleveland American League Club today traded Catcher Josh Billings to the St. Louis American League team for Catcher Leslie Nunamaker.

Scott Retires from Baseball.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Pitcher James Scott, a veteran with the Chicago Americans, tonight announced his retirement from professional baseball. He has accepted a position in Beloit, Wis., and in addition will play independent ball.

M'GRAW MAY SEND HOLKE TO DODGERS

First Baseman Has Not Signed and Brooklyn Is Only Club with Place for Him.

Walter Holke, the Giants' first baseman, was a visitor at the club's offices yesterday, but after he had conferred with the club officials, no announcement about the player's future was forthcoming. The presence of Holke at this time is taken as significant that the Giants are making arrangements to send him to the Brooklyn Club to take the berth vacated by Jake Daubert, who will be Hal Chase's successor in Cincinnati next Summer.

With Manager McGraw angling for Chase, and with Cincinnati having a first baseman in Daubert, it would appear that the only place available for Holke is Ebbets Field. When Holke left the Giants unceremoniously last season to go into an essential occupation, it was freely predicted at the Polo Grounds that he would not wear a New York uniform in 1919.

It is believed that Holke called on the club yesterday to find out just where he stands. He did not sign his contract, although that document has been tendered him, and Manager McGraw has not concealed the fact that he will use every effort to land Chase to play with his club. The Giants, Cincinnati, and Brooklyn seem to be involved in a three-cornered arrangement which looks as if it could be straightened out only by Holke going to Brooklyn. One thing is certain, Manager Robinson would not have consented to the trading of Daubert to the Reds unless he knew he was going to have a first sacker to take his place.

Ray Schmandt could cover first for the Robins, but Robinson needs him at second, with Bill Kopf, secured from Cincinnati, to play short. The only other available man Robbie has to cover first is Clarence Mitchell, the pitcher, who has shown such promise as a hitter that he is pretty sure to find himself a place on the club, but probably in the outfield.

Other visitors at the Giants' office yesterday were Heinie Zimmerman and Bert Niehoff. Zimmerman has not yet signed his contract and has conferred with the club officials on several occasions. This is taken as an indication that Henry of the Bronx is not satisfied with his contract and may be looking for a change in the environment. Niehoff met with some hard luck soon after he joined the Giants last year and was out of the game nearly all season with a broken leg. He says the leg is all right again, and he is anxious to know whether he is going to stay here. As the Giants declared him a free agent some time ago, Niehoff, it is believed, is trying to get the Giants to find him a berth with another club.

The Yankees have just received an unsigned contract from Eddie Plank of Gettysburg, who wrote a nice note thanking the club for favors received. Eddie also says that nothing could persuade him to go back into major league baseball, as he is a busy automobile man at his garage on the Lincoln Highway. Plank refused to play ball last season and he again takes this position, so Manager Huggins has just crossed Eddie off the books.

Phil Schenck, the Yankees' groundkeeper, who has been making some necessary improvements at the Polo Grounds, will go to Jacksonville today to get the South Side Park ready for the coming of Manager Huggins's squad next month. The stands at the Polo Grounds have received a new coat of paint.

SILVERSTEIN TAKES BOUT.

Gets Referee's Decision Over Stanberg in Crescent A. C. Tourney.

S. Silverstein, of the Union Settlement A. C., and Sergeant Joe Stanberg, of the 22d Infantry, heavyweights, furnished an interesting bout last night in the preliminary round of the Crescent A. C.'s amateur boxing tournament held in the New Moon gymnasium in Brooklyn. At the end of the customary three rounds the judges disagreed as to the winner and Referee Eddie Forbes awarded the bout to Silverstein.

In five of the contests the referee was compelled to call a halt when the milling became palpably one-sided.

H. H. Duden Wins Handicap Shoot.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 11.—H. H. Duden of the New York Athletic Club won the hundred-target trapshooting handicap at the Pinehurst Gun Club today with a score of 9[illegible], 100. F. A. Seeibert of New York, 85—12, 97, tied for second honors with M. Cobb of Brooklyn, 81—16, 97.

MAY PICK CORBETT TO REFEREE BOUT

Jeffries and Bill Brown Also Mentioned for Third Man in Willard-Dempsey Fight.

The possibility of having Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion, referee the proposed championship bout between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey was discussed yesterday by Promoter Tex Rickard. This question and the site for the bout are the only details remaining to be arranged.

To Promoter Rickard is left the final choice of a referee. The participants will have an opportunity to agree mutually upon an arbiter, but in the event that the boxers are unable to reach an understanding Rickard will do the choosing. The promoter yesterday declared he was considering the advisability of having Jim Jeffries officiate. It was pointed out that Jeffries since he abandoned the ring has been rather out of touch with the trend of pugilistic affairs. His age and long period of comparative inactivity were declared against him. In favor of Corbett, it was pointed out he had kept in close touch with ring competitions. Bill Brown, veteran promoter, was another referee suggested. Brown enjoys wide popularity throughout the country, gained through his fearlessness and his known integrity.

Promoter Rickard will leave here Sunday. He expects to go to Chicago and subsequently to Kansas City, where he will discuss final details for the bout with Willard.

No intimation has yet been given where Rickard intends holding the contest. It is known, however, that the Western promoter is awaiting the outcome of legislation on boxing bills now before the lawmaking bodies of New York State and Illinois. The action taken on these measures will largely determine the place for the match. Rickard is known to favor either of these States, with the alternative of Akron, Ohio, in the event the bills pending receive unfavorable action. Business men of Akron are said to be planning a huge stadium for sporting events and have made Rickard a good offer to have the contest brought to that city, where twenty-round bouts are legal.

This is Your Book

This is the story of your business.
One chapter deals with your haulage.
What sort of a story does it tell?
Have your haulage costs been decreasing or increasing?

If your haulage costs are mounting higher, then there is something wrong with your methods. For it is a fact that even in spite of higher labor and fuel costs, the haulage costs of hundreds of concerns are coming down steadily.

Improved motor truck construction is responsible for this—greater durability—greater economy—more effective handling of materials.

Clydesdale Motor Trucks are making a steady reduction in haulage expense for scores of leading concerns in this territory.

They reduce haulage costs in two ways: First, every part and feature is built so much stronger and more durable than the average truck of similar rating, that they operate on a low cost per ton mile surprising even to old, experienced truck operators.

Second, the service which we are rendering to Clydesdale owners consists of more than the mere repairing and replacement of injured parts.

Our kind of service means working with our customers, helping them to get the most out of their trucks—showing the drivers how to operate them in the most economical way—helping on routing problems to keep the truck moving, in fact everything that makes for lower haulage costs.

With such a truck as the Clydesdale, backed with our service, we can help any business man in this city to write an exceedingly interesting story on haulage in his ledger—a story of constantly decreasing haulage costs, and increased efficiency.

Give us an opportunity to show you how Clydesdale will be a "credit" in your business. Just phone, or better yet, drop in and see a chassis. You will quickly appreciate what we say about the service qualities of the truck when you go over the constructural features.

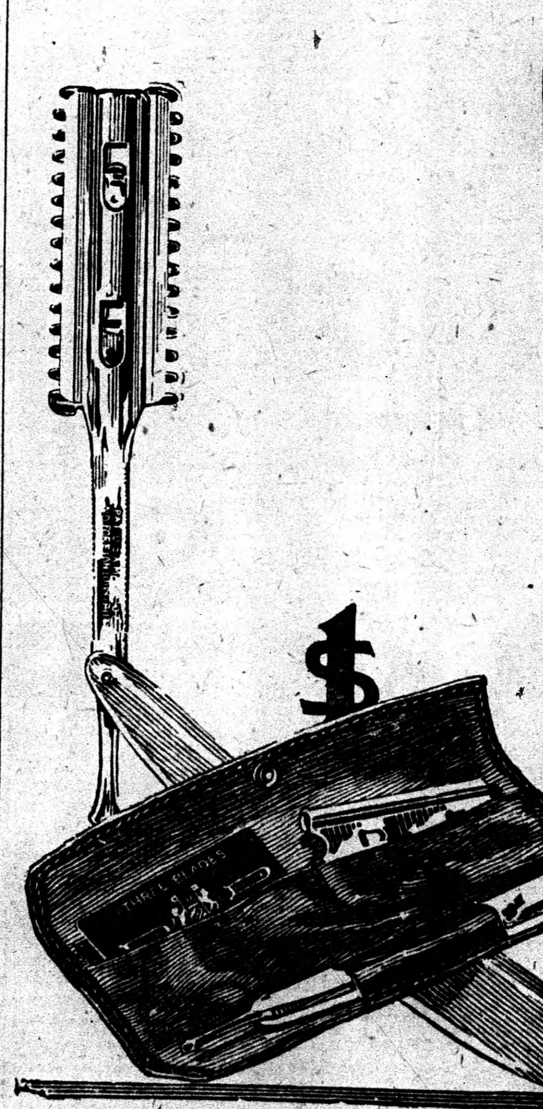
The Razor Lincoln used



THE razor Lincoln used was not unlike the man himself—in outward form, unassuming, and yet an instrument of exquisite balance—with a time-saving length of blade, a fresh, keen stropped edge for the work in hand and a wonderously even temper.

One pictures Lincoln as full of affection for this honest blade despite the fact that his deep-furrowed face was not the easiest to shave. The only things that Lincoln's razor really needed to lighten the patient morning task were the safety and convenience of the guarded, double-edged blade of the

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

Experts are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much as to whether to buy now as it is to use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a diversified list of securities, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to types and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Move Forward Again, with Oil Issues Leading—Professional Dealings Prominent.

Under moderate trading the stock market again moved forward yesterday with considerable strength shown in particular groups. The oil shares were in scant supply and easily advanced from 2 to more than 3 points in the sort of movement that has been frequent since the armistice was signed. Some of the equipment issues showed the effect of short covering and so did the shipping stocks and several industrials which had been under pressure for several days past. As far as could be discerned the market following paid little attention to developments at the Peace Conference; in fact, dealings were mostly in the hands of professional traders and the day's price changes supplied no new subject for particular comment or for the establishment of conjecture as to the immediate future. Liberty bonds quite naturally dipped downward in the fore part of the day, while the Secretary of the Treasury's comprehensive program for additional Government preparations was being studied, but a recovery occurred in the afternoon which left quotations only slightly changed. The price alterations were, however, on the downward side.

The wide powers which Mr. Glass asks through Legislation appealed to bankers in various ways. In some quarters the view was held that the Secretary would hardly receive as full authority as he asked for, but the opinion was generally expressed that the legislation he proposes would, if granted in full, merely pave the way for the great task to be undertaken in the Spring. The interest rate, the maturity and the character of the offering would have to be prepared in accordance with existing investment conditions when the time arrived whatever the legal preparations. Mr. Glass's request that limitations on the interest rate be removed as far as bonds of no more than ten years' life were concerned was not interpreted by some of the bankers who have been prominent in Liberty Loan campaigns as an indication that the rate would be considerably above 4¼ per cent. Inquiry showed that the opinion prevails among these men that a rate of 4¾ per cent. or more might have a disturbing effect on the existing Liberty bonds and also upon general railroad and industrial corporation credit. The impression is strongly held in certain banking quarters that a tax exempt and a taxable bond should both be included in the forthcoming offering, with the taxable part bearing an interest rate of 4½ per cent. The Secretary's proposal for an issue of interest-bearing non-circulating notes did not come altogether as a surprise, but it was believed that this sort of paper would not play a prominent part in the early stages of additional Government financing.

The steel and iron trades are paying more attention to the price situation, it seems, than a month ago. Information coming from producing centres indicates that reductions are considered necessary to stimulate new buying and in case of iron scattered price cuts are reported. The problem of first import facing the steel and iron industry is the attitude of labor, and it has not developed yet that any concerted effort has been made to learn what labor would be willing to do in readjusting the market in a downward direction.

GORE REASSURES FARMERS.

Asserts That Government Will Carry Out Wheat Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, in an address today said that the farmers could rest assured that the Government would keep faith with them in carrying out the guarantee of a price of $2.26 a bushel for wheat. The Government, he said, should pay the difference between the guaranteed price and the price dictated by the law of supply and demand, for to do otherwise would "create a state of unstable economic equilibrium."

The Presidential proclamation proclaiming the price for 1919 wheat, Senator Gore asserted, "creates an obligation against the Government—an obligation which is as sacred and an obligation which is held as inviolate as that of a Thrift Stamp or a United States bond."

Of two methods of carrying out the guarantee—requiring the consumer to pay the difference between the fixed price and price in the unregulated market and authorizing the Government to pay this difference, Senator Gore said economic considerations recommended the latter, which has been indorsed by the House Agriculture Committee and embodied in its bill.

To make the consumer pay the difference, the Senator said, would only mean a continuation of inflation.

Tobacco Products Income Higher.

The report of the Tobacco Products Corporation for the year ended with Dec. 31, 1918, issued yesterday, showed total income amounting to $3,276,282, which, after the deduction of preferred dividends, was equal to $17 earned on the 160,000 shares of common stock. In the preceding year total income was $2,006,209, which was equivalent to $9.32 a share on the same stock. After the payment of common and preferred dividends for the year, the surplus amounted to $1,760,266, which compared with $1,252,709 in the preceding year. The report did not indicate that any reserve had been set aside to meet Federal taxes in 1918.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Standard Oil Survey of Rumania.

The Standard Oil Company has sent six experts to England en route to the oil fields of Rumania, where they will make a complete survey of the Standard properties in that country which have gone through the vicissitudes of the world war and have been variously reported as dismantled, destroyed, and untouched. The six experts have among them drillers and men who know refining, and while it is said that the date of their arrival in the Rumanian oil fields is necessarily uncertain, they will at least be on the ground and ready to report on conditions.

Dismissing the Doctor.

Reports have it that the railroads have been told by John Skelton Williams, Director of the Division of Finance of the Railroad Administration, that they must not consider old banking affiliations in the making of new financing arrangements, if better terms may be secured elsewhere. The Southern Railway note episode, in which the Eastern banking house which had acted for the road for years was displaced by a Western syndicate, would seem to bear this out. However, bankers say that while Mr. Williams may have held some such idea as this, he no longer does, and has learned that it is not always well to dismiss the family doctor at a critical time.

South America a Lender.

Inquiry among international bankers anent the much-discussed reports of "South American financing" by local financial interests elicits the information that not only does South America not want any United States assistance, but that she, taken as a whole, would like to lend us some of her surplus funds. In other words, the South American countries, or most of them, are so prosperous they have money and credit enough for themselves and to hire to others.

German Railroad Fares.

The traveling public and the commuter in this country may get some solace for the increased rates they are paying for transportation from the advices from Germany that fares on the railroads in that country are going to be increased sharply in the near future to meet the deficit that the German railroads face. Dispatches from the other side say that in Prussia the advance will go into effect immediately and will be 60 per cent., while the percentage of increase in Bavaria and other districts in Germany will be proportionate. The German people in addition to paying more than twice as much in railroad fares will have just half as much accommodation. This, according to the managers of the roads, is due to the surrender of so much rolling stock under the terms of the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918.

Another Meeting.

Members of the Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives will hold another meeting in the course of the next week or so for a further discussion of plans for remedial legislation which will cover the return of the carriers to a modified private control subject to responsible Government regulation. It has not been decided as yet where the meeting will be held, but it is not improbable that it will be called for the association's new quarters on the twenty-first floor of 61 Broadway, which will be opened for business today.

United Fruit Dividend Increase.

One of the features in the stock market yesterday was United Fruit, which advanced substantially on a fair exchange of stock. The announcement of an increase in the regular quarterly dividend from 2 to 2½ per cent. and an extra payment of ½ of 1 per cent. caused some surprise, although there were some indications that the action of the Directors had been discounted. The old rate of 8 per cent. per annum had been maintained for more than a decade and from 1909 to 1911 inclusive the company paid extra dividends of 10 per cent. each year. In 1908 a 10 per cent. stock dividend was paid and in 1913 2 per cent. extra was disbursed. The announcement of the dividend was made early, but it was not until late afternoon that the stock responded. The opening quotation was 159¼ and the high for the day 164⅝, with 164 the last price printed on the stock ticker before the close of the market.

Economy Hurts Some Concerns.

Railroad bankers and operators who have been following the developments in the railroad situation closely attribute the dearth of orders of many of the railway equipment companies not alone to the economy program adopted by many of the carriers, but also to caution on the part of the railroads and the growth of a desire to husband resources so that dividend requirements may be met when they fall due. The roads do not desire to depend entirely on the Railroad Administration for the necessary funds to make prompt payment. It is generally admitted that many of the carriers need new supplies badly, and also that unless some of the supply companies receive orders in the near future a number of plants will shut down. The consensus of opinion seems to be that the Railroad Administration might step into the breach temporarily, to benefit the carriers and to help stabilize an uncertain manufacturing situation.

Steel Mill Operation.

Information from the Pittsburgh district was received yesterday to the effect that, while the mills of the United States Steel Corporation are operating at about 85 per cent. of their capacity, those of the independent companies are working at about 60 per cent. This is a continuation of the rate which prevailed last week, and it is reported that, while consumers would like to see lower prices, they show a growing willingness to adopt the producers' viewpoint that wage scales are an influencing factor in the situation, and that prices will parallel to a great extent the movement of those figures.

Liberty Bond Return.

The Liberty bond market was not much changed at the close of business from its condition when the market ended on Monday. In early dealings considerable selling occurred to the accompaniment of discussion of the proposal of the Secretary of the Treasury, but later quotations improved. With much comment being heard on the possibility of a 4¾ per cent. interest rate on the Victory Liberty bonds the investment return on the existing Liberty issues is worthy of attention. These were the approximate yields of the bonds at the day's final quotations, calculated from the prepared table of an investment house:

	Price.	Yield P. C.
Liberty 3½s	98.90	3.55
First 4s	92.88	4.45
Second 4s	92.60	4.50
First 4¼s	94.80	4.55
Second 4¼s	94.08	4.65
Third 4¼s	95.00	4.90
Fourth 4¼s	93.94	4.73

The third 4¼s, it is noted, are closest to a 5 per cent. basis, instead of the fourth issue, which was referred to through an error in this column yesterday.

The Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives has elected three new members. They are Judge Robert S. Lovett, head of the Union Pacific, to succeed C. B. Seger of that system; R. M. Calkins, President of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, to succeed A. J. Earling, Chairman of the Board of the same road, and W. H. Finley, President of the Chicago & Northwestern, to succeed E. M. Hyser, Vice President of the same line.

Vote to Buy Back Oil Stock.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Wayland Oil and Gas Company it was voted yesterday that the President of the company be authorized to purchase on behalf of the company the preferred stock at the rate of $5.10 a share. The company's annual report showed gross earnings of $463,531, against $451,[illegible] in 1917, and operating expenses of $[illegible]7,388, against $59,924 in the preceding year. Depreciation in the year amounted to $120,778 and net income was $149,008.

Bond Prices and Economic Readjustments

It is generally agreed that commodity prices the world over must gradually seek lower levels.

It is therefore to be expected that there will be a consequent change in the quotations of conservative securities.

While there may be temporary fluctuations in security prices, it is our opinion that those who make investments now for a long period of years will eventually benefit.

TAX-EXEMPT BONDS

An analysis and comparison of the relative attractiveness of tax free and taxable bonds has just been mailed to our clients.

IT EXPLAINS why high-grade "AAA" taxable bonds do not rise under easier money conditions.

IT PROVES that for all large investors tax-free municipals and Liberty Bonds are more attractive than the highest grade taxable bonds.

BANKERS APPROVE DEMANDS BY GLASS

Agree That Secretary of Treasury Needs Wide Powers for Next Loan.

EXPECT HIGH INTEREST RATE

Favor 2½ Per Cent. Cumulative Sinking Fund for Entire War Debt.

Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass's letter to Representative Kitchin, in which the Secretary outlined the legislation he desires for the next Liberty Loan, attracted great interest in the financial district yesterday. It was felt that the Secretary had done well to ask for extraordinary powers, in view of the extraordinary conditions confronting him, but there was considerable doubt expressed as to whether it would be possible for him to secure this authority from Congress. The powers he asks for are so broad that it is hard to picture Congress conferring them, for such action would be virtual surrender of powers of which Congress is thought to be very jealous.

With regard to the conditions which Mr. Glass proposes, it was generally believed that his request that Congress leave the rate of interest on the forthcoming loan entirely to his discretion forecasts a much higher rate of interest than obtains on any of the Liberty bonds now in existence. In this respect it was pointed out that the idea of two classes of bonds, one to be of low rate and exempt as to excess and surtaxes, and the other a high rate and taxable, could also be realized under the announced plan of the Secretary.

Of very great interest to bankers was the suggestion that an additional authorization of $10,000,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness to run from one to five years be created. This, as understood in New York, would be in addition to the already authorized $8,000,000,000 in Treasury certificates with maximum maturity of one year, and would give the Treasury the tremendous total of $18,000,000,000 in paper which conceivably might be floated among the banks. Bankers here were doubtful as to the expediency of such a condition, and there was a good deal of uncertainty as to just what satisfactory explanation could be advanced for the creation of so much paper.

Approve Sinking Fund.

A 2½ per cent. cumulative sinking fund for the entire war debt was one item universally approved.

An interesting reference in Mr. Glass's letter not directly bearing on the loan was that in which he said "the retardation of the process of readjustment (to normal conditions of commodity prices) by artificial means can only increase the evils inherent in the situation." This was accepted as meaning that Mr. Glass is not in sympathy with the recent proposal of another Cabinet officer that a Peace Industries Board be created and that commodity prices be brought down arbitrarily by voluntary action on the part of leaders in the various industries.

The proposal to exempt from all surtaxes on incomes and the excess profits taxes all issues of Liberty bonds and bonds of the War Finance Corporation held abroad was thought to be for the purpose of making these securities attractive in countries where the exchanges are against the United States. This follows similar suggestions of Mr. McAdoo and is in line with proposals made by Senator Owen, Chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The request for authority to continue advances to foreign Governments after the termination of the war, and the extension of authority to the War Finance Corporation "to make loans in aid of our commerce" were items in the letter which did not meet with unanimous approval. A majority of bankers interviewed on these subjects felt that business of the kind thus described was the legitimate work of private bankers and not the province of Government.

Secretary Glass will be in New York the latter part of the week to attend the dinner of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. At that time he will meet and confer with local bankers, and it is believed that some definite ideas as to final terms and conditions of the forthcoming loan will be arrived at at that time.

MEXICAN BUSINESS GROWS.

Progress Being Made in Financing Private Enterprises.

It was learned yesterday that, while the matter of refunding the Mexican national debt and of forming a comprehensive national finance program is still under consideration, the business of financing private enterprise into and out of Mexico is moving ahead rapidly. A number of Mexican banks, it was stated, have established relations with American institutions, and by the deposit of Mexican collateral are now in position to finance a general commercial acceptance business with the more reliable firms in Mexico City and other large cities.

No estimates of the volume of this business were officially forthcoming yesterday. A banker who is familiar with the situation, however, expressed the opinion that it would run as high as $10,000,000 at times and was rarely below $5,000,000. Most of the larger Mexican banks are interested in this business. Goods sold to Mexican firms, it was explained, were comparatively easy to deliver now from the North, and that the line from Mexico City to the Pacific, as well as to Vera Cruz, could be used.

Rafaelo Nieto, the Mexican financial expert, was again in the financial district yesterday, conferring with local bankers; but it was said that no further progress had been made.

Amortization Committee Is Named.

It was announced at the offices of the American Bankers' Association that the following men have been appointed a Committee on Amortization of real estate loans held by savings banks: James H. Manning, President of the National Savings Bank of Albany; Samuel H. Beach, President of the Rome Savings Bank, Rome, N. Y.; Edwin P. Maynard, President of the Brooklyn Trust Company; Russell S. Walker, President of the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn; C. H. Kelsey, President of the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company of New York, and Frederick H. Ecker, Treasurer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Zinc Company Reports Surplus.

The report of the New Jersey Zinc Company for the quarter ended with Dec. 31, which was issued yesterday, showed a surplus after interest, charges, and Federal taxes amounting to $2,313,969. This was equivalent to $6.61 a share earned on the $35,000,000 capital stock, which compared with $11.21 a share earned in the last quarter of 1917. As compiled from the company's quarterly statements in 1918, surplus for the twelve months amounted to $6,056,190, while the estimated surplus for the year, after deductions for Federal taxes and profit-sharing distribution, was $4,094,750.

Tribute to President Twitchell.

Officers and employes of the Chemical National Bank assembled on the officers' platform in that institution yesterday afternoon and presented a silver loving cup to Herbert K. Twitchell, President of the bank. Mr. Twitchell was elected President of the bank two years ago.

COTTON MARKET OVERSOLD.

No Further Decline Likely Until Trading Position Is Readjusted.

The cotton market, it would seem, has at last reached the stage where it is actually oversold. For some weeks past experienced operators have been predicting that the technical position would stand no further selling and no further declines, and following each prediction the market went down further. Now, unless all signs fail, the market has become oversold and, until there is some readjustment in the trading position, no further decline is likely.

That the market will ultimately go higher, however, is not the general opinion. As a matter of fact, there are probably more persons who look for an even lower level than we have now than there are optimists who expect advances. But at the moment the market looks as if it might improve somewhat.

Following the sharp rally in the last hour of Monday's market, yesterday's trading session brought out a number of new buyers and prices moved up. There was a good deal of short covering around the ring and some rather good buying by Wall Street houses and some buying for account of the South. Also, Liverpool did some buying, probably in readjustment of straddle accounts. But the chief consideration, above all others, was the technical position, which had been considerably improved by the heavy recent selling.

On the advance, near months did relatively better than the new crop positions. At the high for the day, May was up 72 points and July 66 points, while October showed a net gain of 40 and December an improvement of 33 points. At the close of trading, more than half of these gains had been lost, but the market was still well above the Monday closing.

In the trade there was little change for the better. The labor situation showed some improvement, but the cotton goods market is becoming demoralized and the mills are said to be cutting down production as much as possible. Buyers of cotton goods are holding off and practically no new business is moving, nor is it expected to move in any considerable quantity until general business conditions settle down.

CAN COMPANY SHOWS LOWER NET EARNINGS

Statement Reports Decline of $4,918,707, as Compared with Preceding Year.

MADE MANY MUNITIONS

President Wheeler Announces a Readjustment of Major Contract with the Government.

Stockholders of the American Can Company learned at the annual meeting yesterday that demands upon cash resources would be so large in financing purchases of raw material that the question of a common stock dividend could hardly be considered by the management before August. The substantial earnings in the last two years had aroused hopes that dividends would be begun in the near future. F. S. Wheeler, President, said that it would probably be necessary to borrow for the purpose of increasing working capital, and if this were done, accommodation would be obtained from banks.

The statement for the year ended Dec. 31 last showed net earnings of $17,076,335, a decline of $4,918,707 from the total in the preceding year. After providing for interest, Federal taxes, and depreciation, a balance of $6,000,826 remained, compared with $11,892,859 in 1917. The amount available for the common stock was equivalent to $7.55 per share, against $21.84 the year before, prior to the payment in that year of back dividends on the preferred issue.

The leading items of the income account and balance sheet are set forth in this table:

INCOME ACCOUNT.

Net earnings	$17,076,335	$21,995,042
Interest	575,508	602,183

Depreciation	3,500,000	3,500,000
Preferred dividends	2,886,331	6,583,185
Surplus	3,114,496	5,309,674
Total surplus	19,536,401	16,412,905
BALANCE SHEET.
Inventory	$35,484,402	$24,136,484
Accounts receivable	13,317,883	10,640,007
Accounts payable	16,633,240	11,215,651
Contingency reserve	6,942,106	4,237,543
Cash	4,298,907	7,562,430

"The company's munition department was busily employed last year," said President Wheeler in his statement to shareholders, "and a large quantity of supplies was delivered to the United States Government. Owing to the uncompleted state of some contracts, only a portion of the profits expected has been taken into 1918 accounts. Since the armistice, the major contract with the Government has been equitably adjusted by a supplementary contract which fully protects the company's interests and assures a fair profit to be realized in 1919.

"Contracts already taken and trade reasonably assured promise a volume of business for 1919 which should compare favorably with 1918, last year being the largest in the company's history for the number of cans and packages made and delivered."

The report said that $4,766,374 was spent during the year for new construction and equipment.

OUTLOOK IN IRON TRADE.

Some Shutdowns and Price Cutting Are Looked For.

In its summary of the iron market The Iron Age states that producers are beginning to admit that the cutting of prices is necessary to liven the interest of buyers and that the maintaining of prices at too high a level in past weeks has effectually discouraged trading. The Iron Age says:

"The low total of the present inflow of emergency orders points to shutdowns here and there in two or three months' time. In the activity of such happenings, a rewriting of costs would be possible. Whether the trade conferences proposed by the Secretary of Commerce could before then develop understandings looking to establishing prices likely to attract depends largely on securing official sanction and the broad co-operation of the manufacturers and the steel workers.

"Meanwhile the buying elements need to remember that the country is proceeding on the theory that it is no longer an isolated nation. Fixed iron and steel export prices of England, its chief competitor for the world's markets, are anywhere up to 40 per cent. higher than its own, and only relatively slight shifts in ocean freight charges will serve to throw the advantage to these shores. Foreign trade requires little concession, so long as England's costs do not come down."

Scoville Company Earnings Fall.

The annual report of the Scovill Manufacturing Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, issued yesterday, showed net earnings after taxes of $2,130,903, which was equivalent to $42.61 a share earned on the $5,000,000 outstanding capital stock, as compared with $184.00 a share earned on the same stock in 1917. The balance sheet of the company as of Dec. 31 last shows cash on hand and certificates of deposit amounting to $2,791,403, compared with $3,604,453 in the year before, while total surplus for the year was $17,227,006, as compared with $17,521,104 in 1917.

CUBA CANE SUGAR BONDS.

Stockholders Authorize an Issue of $25,000,000.

At a special meeting yesterday stockholders of the Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation approved the execution of a mortgage on the property of the concern as security for an issue of $25,000,000 bonds, the proceeds to be used to fund the company's debt which is approximately $18,000,000. The opposition which threatened some weeks ago following an inquiry by Henry Evans, a stockholder, failed to materialize. Mr. Evans was recently elected a Director of the company.

In the course of the meeting Frederick Strauss, Chairman of the board, said he believed the Directors would decide that the entire amount should be issued as soon as possible, but no definite plan for an immediate offering was made public. Stockholders were able, however, to get some idea of what kind of an offering will be made when Alfred Jaretzki, counsel for the corporation, said that probably 55 per cent. of whatever issue was made would be redeemed through serial maturities and that $3,000,000 would be set aside against the final maturity of the remainder of the bonds.

F. W. Kelsey, a stockholder, offered a resolution calling for an examination of the company's affairs by a committee of common and preferred stockholders. The Chairman explained that an agreement had been made with large holders of preferred stock for an independent audit of the company and a thorough examination into all departments by sugar experts and that the expense of two investigations was unnecessary. The resolution was defeated.

In addition to the company's $18,000,000 debt it was brought out in the meeting that $6,500,000 had been borrowed against the company's $12,500,000 sugar stocks on hand.

FILES CITY'S BRIEF AGAINST FARE RISE

Corporation Counsel Burr Contends Public Service Board Has No Jurisdiction.

REFERS TO HIGH RENTALS

Remedy Sought by New York Railways Company No Real Cure for Situation, He Says.

A brief prepared by Corporation Counsel Burr explaining and confirming the position of the city in opposition to an increase in fares on the city's transportation lines was received yesterday by the Public Service Commission.

It was the answer to an application by the New York Railways Company for authority to abolish transfers or to charge 3 cents for them as an interim relief, pending the return of pre-war conditions or the success of other efforts to obtain greater measures of relief. Hearings on the application have been adjourned by the commission until further information is received.

The brief insists that the commission has no jurisdiction over fares that have been fixed in agreements with the city, and that this lack of jurisdiction will continue until the franchises are modified by the Board of Estimate. Concerning the alleged exorbitant rentals paid by the company for the leased lines the brief says:

"The petitioner has utterly failed to establish the reasonableness of the high rentals paid the various leased lines. Nevertheless, by mere argument and assertion, unsubstantiated by proof, the petitioner's counsel have endeavored to justify its proposed mulcting of the public with increased fare or transfer charges in order to enable the company to continue the payment of these extravagant rentals."

High Eighth Avenue Dividends.

Attention is called to the annual dividends of 21½ per cent. paid to the Eighth Avenue Railroad Company on its $1,000,000 capitalization, and reference is made to the statement of James L. Quackenbush, counsel for the company, that the leased lines own all the improvements paid for by the operating company. Other references to statements made by Mr. Quackenbush are followed by the assertion that an absolute necessity exists for the submission of figures showing the present value of the property.

A statement that the Eighth Avenue company had earned $215,000 a year until war conditions wore the earnings down is answered in the brief by the statement that no evidence had been submitted showing how much the line earned during the pre-war period. Then the brief says:

"The city is not prepared to concede the statement frequently reiterated by petitioner's counsel, to the effect that however large the rental payments made any of these lessor companies, that all improvements made since the leases were entered into have inured to the benefit of the lessor estate, though paid for by the lessee or operating company."

Mr. Burr insists that the company should yield to the suggestion of the commission and file an itemized statement showing the various lines, the transfer points, and the claimed origin or basis of each. The brief is filled with various court decisions, including recent ones, to the effect that contracts with transportation companies fixing a maximum fare could not be changed without the consent of the city granting the franchise.

Sees Danger in Order.

The brief says that an order of the commission authorizing the discontinuance of free transfers or permitting a charge of 3 cents for them as a partial remedy for the condition of the company in view of its confessed precarious financial condition, would be fraught with most unfortunate ultimate consequences "that would not only mulct the traveling public unnecessarily and vainly with an additional transportation tax but would furthermore be unjust to the public and unwise, in that it would complicate and make more difficult a permanent readjustment or reconstruction hetreafter of the relations of this company to the public.

"The likelihood of the petitioner going into receiver's hands in the near future stands admitted upon this record."

It is then stated that if the financial condition of the company is as bad as this the relief sought would not effect any real cure of the situation, the patient being too far gone to recover by such a remedy.

At the office of the Public Service Commission it was intimated that the Legislature would be asked to amend the Public Service Commissions law so as to clothe the commission with authority to afford relief in similar cases without waiting for action by the Board of Estimate.

HARKNESS LEFT $9,000,000.

Wife of Sportsman Is Named as Sole Heir in Will.

The will of Harry S. Harkness, who died Jan. 23 of influenza, was filed for probate yesterday, and leaves his entire estate to his wife, Mrs. Florence S. Harkness, whom he married in the Fall of 1916. Cornelius J. Sullivan, who filed the will, stated that the value of the estate will not be more than $9,000,000 or $10,000,000, and that the late Mr. Harkness had sustained a heavy loss in the construction of the Sheepshead Bay Speedway. This figure was regarded as surprising, in view of the fact that his share of the estate of his father, Lamon V. Harkness, was believed to be more than $25,000,000. Mr. Harkness and his sisters, Mrs. Lila Edwards and Mrs. Myrtle Macomber, shared the estate equally.

The will of Mr. Harkness is brief, and in addition to giving his wife his entire personal and real estate he named her as executrix, with John W. MacMiller, and directed that no bond be required. The will was executed on the day of his death from influenza.

The deceased's divorced wife, Marie M. Marbeck, who got her decree in 1916, received $33,000 a year alimony until her remarriage, but at the time of Mr. Harkness's death she had no interest in the estate.

OPPOSE SHIP CANAL RIDER.

Merchants Want Congress to Drop St. Lawrence Waterway Project.

The Merchants' Association is opposing the rider to the River and Harbor bill now pending in Congress providing for a survey of the St. Lawrence River with a view to the construction of an international ship canal. It has asked that the rider be abandoned on the ground that it is inimical to the interests of the canal system of this State and to the commercial supremacy of New York. A statement by the association says:

"In view of the facts that the proposed improvement of the St. Lawrence River is intended to bring about the construction of a Canadian waterway; that such a waterway from Lake Ontario to the navigable portions of the St. Lawrence River would be of exceedingly doubtful economic and practical value; and that the State of New York has already expended more than $135,000,000 to provide a waterway suitable for long inland navigation, the Executive Committee of the Merchants' Association unanimously directed that efforts be made to bring about the elimination of the rider before the River and Harbor bill is passed by Congress."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Substantial net advances were recorded in the leading issues at the close of a fairly active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Stocks throughout the session were in scant supply and the list readily responded to a demand which, though not vigorous, was sustained and served to give a firm tone to the general market. Occasional reactions represented limited profit taking and had no disturbing effect on values.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday 9,718 packages. Demand is absorbing the supply so closely that the market is still on the upturn, prices gaining ½c to 1c on most of the choice and fancy grades of creamery. Secondary qualities quiet but hardening a little. Not much doing in renovated, and the demand for ladles and packing stock is quiet at the moment. Creamery, higher than extras, 1 pound, 50½@51c; extras, 92 score, 49½@50c; firsts, 89 to 91 score, 45@48½c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 41@44c; lower grades, 38@40c; unsalted, higher than extras, 52½@53c; extras, 51½@52c; firsts, 46½@50½c; seconds, 42@46c; State dairy tubs, finest, 47½@48½c; good to prime, 42@46½c; common to fair, 37@41c; renovated, extras, 43c; firsts, 40@41½c; lower grades, 33@39c; imitation creamery, firsts, 39@40c; ladles, current make, firsts, 37@38c; seconds, 35@36c; lower grades, 32@34c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 34½@35c; No. 2, 33½@34c; lower grades, 29@33c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 11,860 cases. Arrivals are not increasing as fast as expected and there is delay in the delivery of stock due. Liberal shipments are expected and as soon as these exceed the urgent requirements an easier market must be expected. Nearby white eggs are in light receipt and firm at the moment, but there is considerable delay in the supply of stock due and advices indicate better supplies near at hand. Californias steady at unchanged prices. Fresh gathered, extras, dozen, 48½@49c; extra firsts, 47½@48c; firsts, 46@47c; seconds and poorer, 42@46c; dirties, No. 1, 43@44c; No. 2 and poorer, 40@42c; checks, good to choice, dry, 41@42c; under grades, 38@40c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 57@58c; ordinary to prime, 52@56c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 50@57c; Pacific Coast whites, extras, 56@57c; ordinary to fine, 48@55c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 48@55c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, hennery browns, 50@54c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 47@49c.

Vote to Increase Telegraph Stock.

Stockholders of the Central and South American Telegraph Company voted at a special meeting held yesterday to increase the captial stock of the company from $14,000,000 to $25,000,000. The new stock will be used to provide for extensions and betterments and for a distribution to stockholders of accumulated earnings.

PROPOSALS.

OFFICE OF COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC FINANCES OF THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

CITY HALL.
New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 8628, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of the bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $600,000.00 in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. The bonds shall be paid for in cash as fast as said bonds can be signed and delivered. All bonds will be delivered within thirty days from the opening of said bids. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Further particulars and information will be furnished on application to the Public Belt Railroad Commission or the undersigned. The final opinion of Wood & Oakley, lawyers, Chicago, Ill., as to the legality of this issue will be furnished to the successful bidder if so desired.

A. G. RICKS,
Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS, District of Columbia, February 7, 1919.—Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Secretary of the Board of Commissioners, Room 511, District Building, Washington, D. C., until 2 o'clock P. M., February 21, 9119, for constructing a Head House and Sheds for the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company, located on Water Street, at the foot of Seventh Street, southwest. Blank forms of proposal, plans, specifications and all necessary information may be obtained from the Chief Clerk, Engineer Department, Room 427, District Building, Washington, D. C. A deposit of five dollars will be required from bidders to insure the return of the plans and specifications.

LOUIS BROWNLOW,
W. GWYNN GARDINER,
C. W. KUTZ,
Commissioners D. C.

PROPOSALS FOR DREDGING.—U. S. Engineer Office, Philadelphia, Pa.—Sealed proposals will be received here until 12 noon, March 11, 1919, and then opened, for dredging in Delaware River, in Philadelphia Harbor and on New Castle, Reedy Island, Baker and Liston Lighthouse Ranges. Further information on application.

TO ALL HOLDERS OF BONDS ISSUED BY CORPORATIONS INCLUDED IN THE Pittsburgh Railways System

The undersigned Committee was formed in January, 1918, for the protection of holders of bonds of the various corporations included in the Pittsburgh Railways System, almost immediately after defaults had been permitted to occur in the payment of interest due January 1, 1918, on fifteen of these issues.

At that time deposits were invited only of bonds of such issues as had been defaulted on January 1, 1918, and several million dollars of these bonds were deposited with the Committee.

On February 14, 1918, a test suit in equity was instituted by one of the Committee's depositing United Traction Company Bondholders, to compel the Philadelphia Company to recognize liability for the principal and interest of all bonds issued by subsidiaries in the Street Railways System.

After the filing of this suit, the interest on practically all bonds which had been defaulted on January 1, 1918, was paid, but on April 23, 1918, Receivers were appointed for the Pittsburgh Railways Company and thereafter additional defaults were permitted to occur, until at the present time approximately twenty-nine (29) bond issues are in default as respects one or more interest payments.

Under these circumstances, the undersigned believe that the holders of all bonds in the system have common interests to protect, and that this can be most effectively done by one Protective Committee representing all bondholders.

They believe that if the Pittsburgh Railways System is permitted to be re-organized without proper consideration being given to the liability of the Philadelphia Company for the payment of its debts, or if divergent action by the owners of the underlying securities should result in a disintegration of the system, there is grave danger that the holders of bonds on the underlying systems will not only be kept out of their interest from time to time, for shorter or longer periods, but that a large portion of the volume of their principal invested in these bonds may be jeopardized.

They accordingly call on all bondholders, whether defaults in their bonds have actually occurred or not, to deposit all bonds with one or the other of their depositories.

An amendment of the deposit agreement has been drawn providing that deposited bonds upon which interest shall have been paid when due may be withdrawn prior to the occurrence of default without expense to the depositor.

The deposit agreement already contains provision for protecting the interests of any class of bondholders whose interest may at any time become adverse to the interest of any other class.

TO THE HOLDERS OF

NEW ORLEANS RAILWAY & LIGHT CO.

REFUNDING AND GENERAL LIEN FIVE PER CENTUM GOLD BONDS

Bearing Date November 1, 1909, and Maturing November 1, 1949

The holders of large amounts of the securities above mentioned, being of the opinion that immediate steps should be taken to protect their interests therein, have requested the undersigned to act as a Committee to receive deposits thereof. A Receiver of the property of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company was appointed by the United States District Court on the ninth day of January, 1919, and the default of the company in the payment of interest upon its General Mortgage Four and One-half Per Cent. Gold Bonds, which occurred on January 1, 1919, still continues. The period of grace provided in the mortgage securing said bonds, within which such default may be cured, will expire within ninety days from the said first day of January, 1919. Should the default continue thereafter, the holders of said bonds would have the right to compel the foreclosure of said mortgage.

In view of these conditions, it is most urgent that the holders of the above mentioned Refunding and General Lien Five Per Centum Gold Bonds of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company, for their own protection, should organize at once for united action under a Committee having adequate power and authority. Holders of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company Refunding and General Lien Five Per Centum Gold Bonds are therefore requested to deposit their bonds with the Depositary or one of the Sub-Depositaries named below under a Bondholders' Agreement duly executed, under date of January 21, 1919. All bonds so deposited must be in negotiable form and must bear the May 1, 1919, and subsequent coupons. All depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names.

Before any depositor shall become bound by the terms of any plan or agreement of reorganization or readjustment made or approved by this Committee, he shall have an opportunity to withdraw on the terms and provisions set forth in the Bondholders' Agreement, which provides that withdrawing depositors shall not be required to pay, in respect of the compensation and expenses of the Committee, any sums in excess of 2% of the principal amount of their deposited bonds.

The Committee will promptly pay any interest which may be received by it on the deposited bonds to the holders of certificates of deposit representing the bonds in respect whereof such payments of interest shall be made, deducting any income tax required to be withheld.

Copies of the Committee's circular and of the Bondholders' Agreement may be obtained by application either to the Depositary or the Sub-Depositaries.

Retailers and Trade Acceptances

THE leading article in The Annalist this week advocates the adoption of the credit system of trade acceptances by small retailers accustomed to the open account.

Open accounts are characterized as slip-shod and expensive, trade acceptances bringing better business methods.

Another article describes the plans of bankers and oil and mining companies to safeguard American interests in Mexico, through an appeal to the Peace Conference.

ORGANIZE TO MEET PEACE TRADE NEEDS

Dry Goods Retailers Prepare to Make Their Influence Nation-Wide.

PLEDGE $100,000 TO FUND

Form Bureaus for Research, Publicity, and to Aid Merchants and Employes.

At the opening yesterday of the eighth annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association in the Hotel Pennsylvania plans for the development of that organization into a body strong enough to command nation-wide attention were presented, and it was announced that of a fund of $150,000 necessary for its development $100,000 has already been pledged. It is expected that by the end of the drive the association will have a membership of 10,000, representing as many different stores from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The pledges, many of them made yesterday, are really guarantees to the association against indebtedness. The highest pledges were $2,500 and the smallest $400. They mean that the organization can go forward at once with its plans for development without the long wait to accumulate capital by dues and other methods. The guarantors will cover any indebtedness, and at the end of two years they will prorate the deficit if there is any. The Secretaries of local retail associations were present yesterday, and this is taken to indicate that these organizations are contemplating joining the national body.

M. F. Loughman, Commissioner Public Works, welcomed the delegates. He discussed some of the measures that the city has taken to protect business, and in this connection told of the success of the high pressure water service in fighting fires in the business section.

President Francis Kildaff, replying to Mr. Loughman, outlined what had been accomplished by the association during the war, and what should be done to meet the demands of the trade during the period of reconstruction. He pleaded for better working conditions, and that employes be given the opportunity for development. Increased efficiency is, he said, the solution of the wage problem. Merchants, in his opinion, should not hold aloof from political questions.

The principal speech of the day was made by Dr. C. A. Prosser, Director of the Federal Board of Vocational Education. More important than other questions of the industry, he thought, was that of educating the employe and encouraging better living conditions in which to cultivate health and education. He pointed out that the success or failure of a business did not depend upon systems and methods, but upon the human factor.

"If we have correctly visualized the great world movements, which in this day of international interdependence directly touch our prosperity," he said, "we will have realized that the good of the individual must be built upon the foundation of the good of all, for no longer can one business or a group of business interests attain its summit of prosperity unless all competitive business shares with it in harmonious effort for the common good. We must remember that the producer, the common carrier, and the consumer, alike with the mechanic, manufacturer, and the merchant, are interdependent upon a community of interests. One cannot permanently prosper while the other is impoverished.

"It is not therefore the time for nonproductive idleness of either men or machinery. It is essential that every one who is in a position to do so should help industry and commerce 'carry on' to the fullest possible capacity, lest the danger of unemployment become so general as to become a menace against the great victory achieved through the fighting forces of the Allies."

The plans for the expansion of the association were presented by Dr. B. M. Rastall. An important feature of these plans is the taking in of the small storekeeper, and a special effort is to be made in that direction. While the dues to large concerns have been raised the admission fee for the small retailer has been lowered. The association proposes to establish a Reaserch Bureau to study trade matters and to make reports; a Publicity Bureau, which will not only conduct a campaign of publicity, but will furnish needed information to members in a bulletin to be printed for circulation within the organization; a Personnel Bureau, which will look after the care, fair treatment, and welfare of employes; an Organization Service, whose duties will be to co-operate with Boards of Trade and other bodies, and to furnish speakers and literature to them; a Public Affairs Bureau, which will look after legislation and will co-operate with Government agencies.

The smoker was held last evening. Alfred B. Koch of Lasalle & Koch Company of Toledo, presided, and topics timely to the business were discussed.

AGREE ON COTTONSEED.

Food Administration and Interests Unite on Stabilization Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—An agreement for the marketing of all cottonseed and its products at stabilized prices was reached today at the end of a two days' session called by the Federal Food Administration between its representatives and those of all the cotton-producing States.

The meeting unanimously agreed with the Food Administration that the stabilization plan should be continued, and more particularly this program:

1. The producers agreed to use their best efforts in maintaining the stabilized prices.

2. Dealers and ginners agree to purchase at the established price and to abide by the regulations of the Food Administration in the purchase of the seed from the producer and the sale of it to the crushers.

3. Crude mills agree to purchase the seed from planters, dealers, and ginners at the stabilized prices, and to use an extra effort to relieve the situation by buying their seed wherever possible in the congested districts. They further agree to market their products at the stabilized prices, thereby maintaining the spread as originally determined in conference with the Food Administration.

4. The refiners and lard substitute manufacturers agree to purchase the crude oil from the crushers at the stabilized prices, and wherever possible to make these purchases in the congested districts.

Government Issues 13-Cent Stamp.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—A postage stamp of thirteen-cent denomination has been designed for the postal service, and Postmasters have been notified that the Post Office Department is ready to supply them for use by the public. It is intended to cover prepaying a single rate of letter postage and special delivery fee, or for postage and registry fee, and is also available to the amount of its value for other purposes for which ordinary postage stamps are used.

Consolidation Move by B. & M.

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—The Boston & Maine Railroad Company filed a petition with the Public Service Commission today seeking authority to consolidate its leased lines with the company in accordance with reorganization plans which have been agreed upon by a majority of the stockholders who would be affected. A hearing was set for Feb. 21.

Placing Orders for Fall Hats.

There has been a noticeable increase in the number of buyers in the city during the last two days who are purchasing their Fall lines of men's hats. Most of them realize that there is not likely to be any reduction in the price of the better grade of hats and are therefore placing their orders for future delivery. There have been some cancellations on the line of soft hats for Spring, but they are comparatively few.

Socks Did Not Go Well.

One of the local jobbers said yesterday that men's so-called woolen socks, which cost him $6.37½ a dozen last year, were opened this season at $1.90. Believing that he could dispose of them at the reduced price he bought 2,000 dozen. Upon receipt of the goods he sent his men out among the retail trade and booked a large amount of business at $2.25 a dozen. So far at least 60 per cent. of the orders have been canceled.

High-Priced Neckwear in Demand.

There is a good sale for the high-priced lines of men's neckwear in the retail trade. One of the local firms reports that it has about all the orders it can fill on neckwear that retails from $1.50 to $5 each. Its business this season is said to show an increase of about 100 per cent. over that of the previous season. Salesmen now on the Pacific Coast say that business in this line is rapidly improving. Most of the merchandise, however, is being sold in the East.

A New Leather Suitcase.

One of the local leather goods manufacturers has just completed a new suitcase that will be offered shortly to the retail trade. The difference between this case and others is in the construction. It has drop ends in which fittings can be placed, thereby saving considerable space. The fittings include a manicure set, comb and brush, tooth paste holder, pin box, soap dish, and a few other small containers. The case itself is made of heavy black leather, and is lined with silk. This article is to be sold at retail for $50.

Gray Goods Market Dull.

Something like a pre-holiday dullness marked the local gray goods market yesterday. A number of sales were reported but none of any volume. Practically all of them were from first hands, and the prices were those of the prevailing low levels. The goods disposed of were for this and next month's delivery. In printcloths sales were made of 39-inch fabrics of 72-76 constructions at 12¼ cents and of 68-72s at 10¾ cents, while 38½-inch 64-60s and 60-48s went at 8½ and 7¾ cents, respectively. There were also some sales of twills, sateens, and similar fabrics.

Glad to Take a Loss.

Several of the local underwear jobbers still have large stocks of men's woolen underwear on hand which is difficult for them to dispose of at any price. Last May, one of the jobbers bought a large quantity of these goods which were army "rejects." The price paid at the mill was $19.50 a dozen. From the day the merchandise was delivered until January, they were unable to dispose of them even at a fair profit. During the end of last month they sold the entire lot at $12 a dozen.

Handbags and Strap Purses.

Good business is reported by the wholesalers of handbags and strap purses. February is the month for the purchase of Summer and Fall supplies, and sales are double those of last year from coast to coast. The silk bag is the Summer bag, the velvet for Winter, and the leather bag for the year through. Since the signing of the armistice there has been a strong demand all over the country for hand bags and strap purses in Victory red, bright scarlet. Among the leathers, morocco is one difficult to obtain, and not much of it is expected before the late Summer.

More Activity in Ribbon Trade.

Information received in the local ribbon trade is to the effect that the buying during the latter part of last week and the first of this has been very heavy. There have been a number of Canadian buyers in town who have been placing some very substantial orders. More calls are being received from both the local and out-of-town trade for wide ribbons in floral and Oriental patterns. These, it was said, are being used very extensively for girdles and handbags. Plaid ribbons both in bright and subdued colors are more in demand at the present time.

Letters have been received from Belgium from a firm of table linen manufacturers to which a big New York firm a month or so ago cabled a big order without prices. The letter confirms the cabled response which accepted the order, but does not state when it can be filled. It is the same story which has come from all parts of Belgium as to factories of all kinds. The factory still stands, this firm writes to New York, but the Germans took all the machinery and sent it to Germany, and also every yard of goods. New machinery will be obtained, including Jacquard looms, but whether they can be obtained in France or in England remains to be seen, and it will be at least six months before anything in the way of goods can be expected.

Quarters for Knit Goods Men.

Knit goods selling agents nowadays have plenty of spare time on hand because of the dullness of business. A large group of them whose offices are in the building at 346 Broadway were discussing yesterday a proposition that has been put up to them before, that is, the matter of removing in mass to some location uptown. The especial incentive for the discussion was a notice received informing them that their rents would be raised for the term beginning on May 1, and that the period of rental would be for three years instead of one as hitherto. Many object to the uptown proposition, but they are unable to secure new quarters in the old wholesale district because of the cessation of building in the last two or three years. This condition is what gives rise to the discussions.

TO SELL GRAND UNION SITE.

Service Board Asks Sinking Fund Commission to Give Approval.

The Public Service Commission asked the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday to approve the sale of the site of the Grand Union Hotel at public auction at an upset price of $2,800,000. The property was bought by the city for subway purposes, and cost $3,577,000, which interests and costs increased to $4,220,860. The site is a rectangular plot 197 feet 6 inches on Park Avenue and 230 feet on Forty-first and Forty-second Streets. It has 45,425 square feet under, only 20,500 feet of which the subway has been constructed.

In building the diagonal station beneath the site the commission provided foundations substantial enough to support a twenty-five-story building. The commission considers the site one of the best in the city for commercial purposes. Any building erected there could have a direct entrance to subways reaching any part of the city, including Queens, and to the lines of the New York Central and New Haven Railroads.

WON'T EXTEND TAX DATE.

Treasury Denies Rumor Regarding Filing on Incomes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Treasury officials today reiterated that there would be no extension of the time for filing income and profit tax returns beyond March 15. This applies alike to individual incomes, corporation incomes, and profit returns, and to similar reports required by the law on that date.

Officials denied rumors reaching the Treasury that extensions might be granted in certain cases for these returns. Additional time may be granted, however, for so-called "information at the source" reports. These are required from persons or business interests which paid more than $1,000 last year in salaries and wages, rents, and a number of other specified classes of expenditures.

Chicago Agency Wanted

A live up-to-date Chicago business man wants a branch agency for eastern manufacturer, preferably one where Chicago stocks are carried and western salesmen are directed. An experience of thirteen years department store work and eight years manufacturing electrical specialties has well fitted this man to develop and properly handle your western business. New York and Chicago bank references. K 183 Times.

B. & CO. had large orders for staple hardware on their books. Rapid expansion was absorbing their funds on hand.

We financed them in their purchasing, attended to details of shipment and warehousing and were repaid from their receivables. Thus their business continues uninterruptedly to expand.

The personal study of our clients' problems by one of our executives reduces many an unusually baffling situation to simplicity.

CAN HOLD OWN ON SEAS, SAYS HURLEY

Chairman of Shipping Board Returns After Three Months' Study Abroad.

GERMAN TONNAGE READY

Transfer of Teuton Passenger Vessels to Begin Soon—U. S. Will Get 300,000 Tons.

Among the civilian passengers who arrived last night from France on the American transport Leviathan was Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, who has been spending several weeks abroad studying shipping conditions. He looked rather tired and said that he was leaving for Washington today to consult with his colleagues.

"During the three months I have been away," Mr. Hurley said, "I have learned a great deal about the conditions of international shipping and do not see any reason why America cannot compete with the principal European countries. The wage question is not a very serious one, as England pays seamen $72 a month, while we are only paying them $75. The French and Dutch are paying high wages, and in Sweden the crews receive even more wages than they do on American ships. Of course the Greeks, for example, may pay small wages, but the fleet of their merchant marine is less than 400,000 tons, so what can it matter against the millions of tons of shipping owned by the United States and Great Britain? It would be impossible to arrange a 100 per cent. agreement on wage scales."

Asked if the friction at the Peace Conference in Paris would delay his plans, Mr. Hurley replied that he had not been in touch with events since he left Brest, and would be able to say more after he had consulted his colleagues in Washington. When informed that the Clyde Line had withdrawn three of its services from New York and Philadelphia to Southern ports he replied that he was not familiar with the local traffic, but had been devoting his time to the international side of United States shipping.

Mr. Hurley said that the details of the turning over of the German merchant fleet had been worked out at the meeting at Treves on Jan. 17 and at subsequent meetings, and gave out the following statement:

"From information now at hand it appears that the total available German passenger tonnage suitable for carrying troops, is more than six hundred thousand tons gross. This estimate does not include the Bismarck of fifty thousand tons gross, which is not yet completed, nor the Imperator, sister ship of the U. S. S. Leviathan which cannot be delivered for several months. Furthermore this total does not include other large vessels such as the Tirpitz, Hindenburg, and Columbus, concerning which no reports have yet been received.

"The estimate is based upon listed tonnage and upon information obtained from German delegates and from a commission of American engineers on board the scout cruiser Chester and the U. S. Destroyer Aylwin, both now at Bremen, and who since Feb. 1 have been making a survey of German steamers in German ports. The United States's share of this tonnage should run approximately to three hundred thousand gross tons of shipping suitable for the return of American troops. This should give the United States an additional troop-carrying capacity of more than sixty thousand men per month.

"A number of German ships are ready to put to sea at once. It is planned that these shall be manned temporarily by German officers and crews and shall proceed immediately to British or French ports under the direction of the Naval Armistice Commission. Upon arrival at such British or French ports, German officers and crews will be returned and the ships turned over to the navy to man and operate for account of the War Department. The Navy Department, in anticipation of these new demands, has made preparations and has already assembled a large number of men and officers and is ready to man and officer all German ships as they may be delivered.

"A large portion of the German tonnage which is to be obtained will be ready to put to sea within the first five weeks following tomorrow. The rest will be delivered subsequently at varying dates. As soon as any of the German ships can be made ready they will put to sea immediately, and after being bunkered and provisioned in allied ports will proceed on their first trip across the Atlantic with United States troops. The question of making alterations with a view of increasing carrying capacity of such ships will be considered after the arrival of the ships at United States ports.

"The ships will fly the American flag. Some of the large ships to be delivered are in Spain, some in Argentina, others in Dutch East Indies and other neutral ports. These ships will be turned over in such neutral ports to the allied Governments interested."

In emphasizing the need of an American merchant marine, Mr. Hurley called attention to the great work which is being done by the newly built vessels of the merchant marine in exporting surplus food products.

Of the seventy-eight vessels making up the fleet which is rushing the products of American farms and stock yards across the ocean, seventy-two fly the American flag. Of this number sixty-four were built by the present Shipping Board, organized in August, 1917. These sixty-four home-built ships represent a deadweight tonnage of 555,438.

The European relief fleet of the American Merchant Marine, Mr. Hurley said, is the largest engaged in any special service under the merchant flag. The tonnage employed aggregates approximately 8 per cent. of the entire sea-going American tonnage of deadweight tons and over. The February program for food movement from this country to Europe contemplates a shipment of 300,000 tons. This program is expected to increase from month to month.

"Today," he said, "We have 2,072 sea-going vessels of 6,470,396 gross tons under the American flag, as against 1,329 vessels of 6,364,926 gross tons of foreign shipping trading with the United States."

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Adams Land and Building Company, which holds title to the majority of the real estate possessions of the Adams Express Company, sold to Harry Aronson, an operator, two properties valued at over $500,000.

In the financial section the company disposed of the Curtis Building, an eight-story commercial structure, at 33 to 37 South William Street, running through the block and taking in 31 and 33 Stone Street. This structure, which has frontages of 51.10 feet on both South William and Stone Streets and a depth of about 80 feet, cost the sellers $275,000. It is fully leased, and the new owner is reported to be negotiating a resale. The second property purchased by Mr. Aronson involves the modern twelve-story commercial loft structure at 491 and 493 Broadway, with an "L" to 446 Broome Street, covering a plot of 4,000 square feet. The property was valued at $225,000. The Charles F. Noyes Company negotiated both sales, which were for all cash. Deals for several other properties owned by the Express Company are reported pending.

Bing & Bing Buy Two Apartments.

The Fortis Realty Company, a holding company of the estate of Joseph Hammerschlag and Moritz Falkenau, of which Charles S. Lyons is President and S. Shimmel Treasurer, sold to Bing & Bing the Somerset and the Cedarcliff, two six-story elevator apartment houses covering a plot 99.1 by 200. The houses are located seventy-five feet north of 152d Street, and run through from St. Nicholas Place to Edgecombe Avenue. Each accommodates forty-two families and is arranged in three, four, and five room apartments. They are fully rented, and were held at $350,000. The transaction was for all cash. Moore, Schutte & Co. were the brokers.

Yale University Sells Downtown Holdings.

Yale University sold two downtown properties recently willed to it by the late Frederick Mead to E. A. Cohen. They comprise the five-story loft building at 138 Pearl Street, through to 104 Water Street, on lot 19.6 by 102, just south of Wall Street; also 144 Pearl Street, on the same block, 93 feet from Wall Street, on a lot 19 by 62. William B. May & Co. were the brokers. Mr. Mead bought the first-named parcel in 1872 for $48,000 and that at 144 Pearl Street for $39,500.

Heights Apartment Bought by Morgenstein Syndicate.

The Morgenstein Brothers Syndicate bought Zara Court, a five-story new-law house for thirty families at 835 and 837 West 178th Street, northwest corner of Northern Avenue. The building, which is on a plot 105 by 75, is one of two built by Eli Moran, was held at $130,000, and has an annual rent of $17,000. Maurice I. Strunsky was the broker.

Five Resales by Frederick Brown.

Frederick Brown yesterday resold five properties, which he recently acquired, in deals totaling about $350,000. The transactions were as follows: Through M. I. Strunsky to B. Rogatz 643 West 172d Street, between Broadway and Washington Avenue, a five-story thirty-family flat, on a plot 75 by 97.3, renting for $15,000 and held at $115,000; to a client of Williamson & Bryan the southeast corner of Morris Avenue and 177th Street, a five-story twenty-five-family house, on a plot 60 by 95, renting for $11,000 and held at $100,000; to a client of William H. Mehlich 263 East 176th Street, a five-story twenty-family house, on a plot 50 by 92, renting for $9,000 and held at $65,000; to Leo Schumer, through Joseph Wilson, 1,426 and 1,428 Bedford Avenue, southwest corner of Prospect Place, Brooklyn, a business property valued at $45,000, and to Benjamin Katz the southeast corner of Bryant Avenue and 178th Street, three two-story buildings, on a plot 49 by 124, held at $16,000.

Lowenfeld Buys Two Apartments.

The Isaac Lowenfeld Realty Corporation (Isaac Lowenfeld, President) bought the five-story new-law apartment house, on plot 63 by 100, at 265 East 265th Street, northeast corner of Valentine Avenue, from the Susskin Holding Company.

The building contains twenty-five apartments and two stores, with an annual rent roll of $13,000, and was held at $95,000. S. Rosen was the broker and Philip S. Shapiro and Joseph P. Ward the attorneys in the transaction.

From the Freown Company (Fred F. French, President) the Lowenfeld Company purchased 787 Crotona Park, near Prospect Avenue, a five-story new-law house, accommodating twenty families, and renting for $9,000. This building is on a plot 50 by 98, and was held at $65,000. Kurz & Uren and L. J. Greenberger negotiated the sale on a cash basis, Clifford B. Roberts and Joseph P. Ward acting as attorneys.

Builders Buy Apartment Site.

The Michael J. Martin Corporation bought the plot, 50 by 100, on the south side of 143d Street, 120 feet east of Broadway, from Ennis & Sinnott, operators, for early improvement with an apartment. The brokers were Steinman & Steinman.

Private Dwellings Sales.

Dr. M. Lewson bought the four-story and basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 102.2, at 338 West Eighty-fourth Street, near Riverside Drive, from Oscar Unz, for occupancy. The property was held at $32,500. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale.

Charles Siedler sold the four-story dwelling, on lot 25 by 100, at 108 West Seventy-eighth Street, to an investor, who intends to alter the building into suites. The property, held at $40,000, was sold through M. H. Tropauer.

Andrew T. McKegney sold to Hudson P. Rose Company, 224 East 128th Street, a three-story private house, on lot 18.9 by 100, for a consideration of about $6,000. George W. Brettell negotiated the sale. The Rose Company also owns 216, 218, and 222 East 128th Street.

Tenement Deals.

Joseph Shenk bought three five-story apartment houses, each on a plot 87.6 by 72, at 32 to 50 West 111th Street, from Hyman Sarner. The buildings, which are about three years old, were each held at $100,000, with a total rental of $42,000. Ben Harris and I. Rosenthal were the brokers.

Noah S. Sheifer sold to S. Wacht, Jr., D. B. Keminsky, and L. D. Workin, 432 and 434 East Thirteenth Street, a six-story tenement, 48.6 by 103.3 feet, near Avenue A.

Charles S. Levy bought, through Samuel Weiser, 1,253 Park Avenue, southwest corner of Ninety-seventh Street, a five-story tenement, 25 by 100 feet, from Frank Zebro & Co.

James H. Cruikshank has purchased from Celestina Molinelli the five-story double flat, 25 by 100 feet, at 421 West Fifty-sixth Street, assessed at $17,500. Harry Sugarman was the broker.

The La Monte estate sold the five-story flat, 20 by 102.2 feet, at 205 West Seventy-eighth Street, 80 feet west of Columbus Avenue.

Max Cohen bought from Charles Kimmelman a five-story apartment, 150 by 90 feet, at 564 to 580 West 176th Street, valued at $160,000. Max Blau was the broker.

The Bronx Market.

Joseph G. Abramson resold to S. Morrill Banner and William L. Levy his contract for the purchase of four buildings on plots 40 by 100 feet at 879, 883, 913 and 917 Longwood Avenue. The buildings have an aggregate rental of approximately $27,000 and were held at $150,000. Leiter, Brener & Star were the brokers on the resale. These four buildings are part of seven buildings sold by the Johnson estate.

Philip Wattenberg bought the five-story flat, 36 by 100 feet, at 266 East 165th Street, from Klein & Roth. Louis Klebau sold the five-story, forty-family apartment house on plot 109 by 83.6, at the northeast corner of Bailey Avenue and 181st Street, held at $115,000. S. Rosen negotiated both sales.

Fisher & Irving I. Lewine sold to Max Glickin 1,005 University Avenue, a new five-story apartment, 82 by 100 feet, containing seven families on a floor, renting for $15,000 and held at $110,000. William S. Baker was the broker. Elsman, Lee, Corn & Lewine represented the sellers as attorneys.

William Goldstone sold the five-story apartment, 58 by 100 feet, at 977 Avenue St. John, between Beck and Fox Streets, held at $90,000, to a Mr. Polsky.

Max Cohen bought through A. D. Phelps & Damiane the five-story apartment, 50 by 100 feet, at 457 East 186th Street.

Brooklyn.

The two-story brick dwelling at 1,647 Eighty-fourth Street, one of twenty-nine houses recently purchased by Meister Builders, Inc., was sold to a client of the concern for occupancy.

Queens Plaza Court Building Sold.

The City Real Estate Corporation has purchased the Queens Plaza Court Building, which covers the block front on the Bridge Plaza between Cadde and Academy Streets, from William D. Bloodgood & Co. Although it is only four stories high the foundation of the building is designed to support twelve stories, and the new owner plans to make this improvement.

The building is now occupied by some of the most prominent institutions in Queensboro, including the Long Island City Savings Bank, the Queens County Trust Company, the Queens Chamber of Commerce, the First Mortgage Guarantee Company, the New York Telephone Company, William D. Bloodgood & Co., the Irving Trust Company, the County Fuel Administration, the Metropolitan and Prudential Insurance Companies, and the Manhattan and Queens Traction Company. William D. Bloodgood & Co. will continue as managing agents of the property.

M. Johson sold to L. Pitcher, representing California investors, a plot 70 by 250 on the west side of Winthrop Avenue, north of Rapelje Avenue, Long Island City, adjacent to the Astoria elevated line.

S. Suckow sold to A. Cantore a plot 75 by 98, at the southwest corner of Newton Avenue and Cooper Street, Long Island City.

A. Geier sold to L. Strohm a plot 60 by 129, at the southeast corner of Myrtle Avenue and Addison Place, Glendale.

Westchester County.

Frederick Taylor, manager of Bonwit, Teller & Co., has sold his recently completed Georgian Colonial residence on Alta Avenue, Park Hill, to Rudolph Eickmeyer. The property, held at $35,000, was sold through George Howe and D. F. Valentine.

Lew R. Palmer of the Equitable Life Insurance Company has bought the residence at 2 Hillcrest Avenue, Park Hill, from E. D. Boynton. After remodeling, Mr. Palmer will occupy the property. George Howe made the sale.

Emile H. Livermore has sold the property at 18 Cottage Avenue, Mount Vernon, to George F. Boyd. Other Mount Vernon sales were a plot, 64 by 100, on the north side of Fulton Avenue, near Sidney Avenue, for Charles E. Proctor to Stephen Van Tassel, for improvement; 161 Cottage Avenue, for Olga Friedrichs to Richard Roades, and for Dr. L. Clark the plot, 49 by 125, adjoining above, to the same buyer. All of the sales were negotiated by the Anderson Realty Company.

Staten Island.

Robert F. Rundenstein of Manhattan has purchased from Mrs. Loretta Driscoll her residence, on Oakland Avenue, West New Brighton, for occupancy. W. S. E. Hall of St. George negotiated the sale.

Realty Notes.

Mrs. H. P. Pennington, daughter of Walter Damrosch, is the purchaser of the dwelling 145 East Sixty-third Street, sold recently by William B. May & Co. for the Stephens estate.

The Coca-Cola Company denies the reported sale of the property 320 to 322 West Twenty-seventh Street.

RECEIVERS' SALES.

PUBLIC SALE.

The assets of Newark Bay Smelting and Refining Company, foot of Plum Point Lane and Avenue R, Newark, N. J., (meadows,) will be offered at public sale to the highest bidder on Friday, February 14, 1919, at 2:00 P. M., at the plant of the Company, located as above.

The assets consist of 13 acres of land with buildings, machinery, and personal property used in the smelting and refining of base metals.

The assets will be sold in whole or in parcels as may seem best on the day of sale.

The sale will be subject to confirmation by the Chancellor at the Chancery Chambers, (Prudential Building,) Newark, N. J., on Monday, February 17, 1919, at 10 A. M.

In the meantime the Receivers, at their office, 790 Broad Street, Newark, N. J., will receive private bids for the whole or part of the said assets as may be deemed best. These bids are also subject to the confirmation by the Chancellor at the Chancery Chambers in Newark on Tuesday, February 11, 1919, at 10 A. M., or later, if the hearing be adjourned. They shall remain acceptable by the receivers until Monday, Feb. 17, 1919, the time when bids at public sale will be subject to confirmation, as before stated.

Creditors and stockholders and others interested shall have the right to submit bids to the receivers either on February 11th or February 17, 1919, or at any time before the court shall have ordered the receivers to transfer the property to be sold. The property may be inspected at 10 A. M. on the day of sale.

Machine Shop For Sale

The property of the undersigned, who has been engaged in the manufacture of 155 Millimeter Common Steel Shell. Offers will be received for the entire property on which there is no mortgage or encumbrance.

This consists of a machine shop and about seven and one-half acres of land located on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, on Clyde Avenue, Buffalo, having a spur track on each side of the building. The land is fenced. The main building is single story, well lighted and in good condition, of stone construction, 80 feet x 300 feet, a stone addition thereto, 30 feet x 200 feet and a frame addition, 88 feet x 304 feet, together with other outbuildings, among which are a restaurant and time and employment office.

This is a modern plant with a low tax rate and cheap electric power. The equipment consists of electric motors and transformers, air compressors, boilers and heating system, high class tool room equipment, office fixtures and furnishings, belting, shafting and hangers, furnaces, lathes, boring mills, drill presses, grinders, pumping and conveyor systems, benches, special machinery, etc., all being in good operating condition.

The property is open to inspection and may be seen by applying at the premises. Any offer made must have the approval of the Ordnance Department before acceptance.

A Series of FACTS—9

Supervision!

THE executive heads of this business give close, personal supervision, co-operating with the Management Department in the efficient operation of our buildings.

One of the many points that distinguishes our service, and that contributes largely to the satisfaction of both tenants and owners of the twenty-three leading apartment buildings in the Park Avenue Section under our management.

The advantages of our service are well worth knowing more about.

SALESWOMEN.

THIS WOMAN MADE MONEY FROM THE START.

"Have you ever sold anything?" we asked of Mrs. Lucy R—— when she suggested that she'd like to place our custom-made corsets.

"No," she replied, "but I'd like to try."

We concluded to give her a trial. After a day or two spent in learning how to fit corsets, Mrs. R—— started out.

When she checked up Saturday she found she had taken nine orders during the week, and had earned $36 in commissions. That was six weeks ago. Since then Mrs. R—— has gained steadily.

We can use a half dozen women like Mrs. R——. You remain right here in New York—the position is permanent. Mrs. R—— is busy, happy, and independent. She has no special talent—you can do as well. Write B 210 Times.

STOCK SALESMEN,
HERE'S THE OPPORTUNITY
YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

We want several clean-cut, live-wire salesmen accustomed to interviewing men of affairs, who can prove from past performances that they are capable of earning at least $7,500 a year.

If you are such a man and your references are satisfactory, we will give you the opportunity of making more money this year, on a commission basis, than you ever made before. And next year, if your work has been satisfactory, you may step into a permanent position in our Merchandising Department as a District Manager, which will pay you from $[illegible] to $30,000 per year for the remainder of your active business life.

We are a successful manufacturing corporation with a nationally known product. We are enlarging our plant to take care of increased business resulting from the termination of the war. We want real salesmen, who possess tact and initiative, to call on our business correspondents in New York and vicinity (with letters of introduction) and take subscriptions to our offering of 8% Preferred Stock with a Common Stock bonus. If you think you can qualify, call after 10 A. M. and before 3:30 P. M. Wednesday only, or write stating your experience and qualifications, Suite 301, 50 East 42d St., New York City.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Air pressure is much below normal over the Mississippi Valley and all districts to the westward, with the centre of greatest depression over Wyoming, where the barometer stands at 29.40 inches. Pressure is relatively high in the Atlantic States, and it is rising rapidly in the Far Northwest.

The disturbance central Tuesday night over Wyoming has been attended by general rains in the Pacific States and rain and snows in the elevated regions west of the Rocky Mountains.

Light rains and snows have also fallen in the region of the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the East Gulf and interior of the South Atlantic States. The sky is overcast over the Eastern States, except New England, and the Far West.

There has been a general and decided rise in the temperature throughout the Central Valleys and the lake region and a fall over the western plateau.

Temperatures are below normal in the Eastern States and on the Pacific Coast and decidedly above normal in all interior districts.

In the New England and Middle Atlantic States, the Upper Ohio Valley, and the lower lake region the weather will be unsettled and warmer, with probably light rain or snow on Wednesday and cloudy with moderate temperature on Thursday. In the Lower Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the Gulf and South Atlantic States the weather will be generally fair and warmer Wednesday and partly cloudy with mild temperature on Thursday.

In the upper lake region the weather will be unsettled Wednesday and Thursday with probably snow or rain and moderate temperature.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate variable, becoming south and southeast, cloudy weather, probably light snow or rain; Middle Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate south, cloudy, probably light rain or snow; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate south, partly cloudy, probably rain off the Carolina and Georgia coasts.

FORECAST, TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and Southern New England—Increasing cloudiness and warmer, with probably light snow or rain Wednesday. Thursday, cloudy, with moderate temperature.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy and warmer Wednesday, probably preceded by light snow or rain Wednesday morning. Thursday, partly cloudy, with mild temperature.

Western New York—Snow flurries and warmer Wednesday. Thursday, cloudy.

Northern New England—Cloudy and warmer Wednesday, probably followed by light snow Wednesday afternoon. Thursday, unsettled, probably light snow or rain.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1918.	1919.		1918.	1919.
3 A. M.	32	19	4 P. M.	40	36
6 A. M.	32	18	6 P. M.	39	36
9 A. M.	34	20	9 P. M.	38	33
12 M.	37	27	11 P. M.	37	30

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 27; for the corresponding date last year it was 36; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 18; at 8 P. M. it was 33. Maximum temperature, 38 degrees at 3:35 P. M.; minimum, 16 degrees at 6:50 A. M. Humidity, 58 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 36 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.15 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.03 inches.

GARRETSON WARNS OF SOCIAL UNREST

Any Attempt to Reduce Wages Would Be Dangerous, Brotherhood Chief Asserts.

NEAR A POWDER MAGAZINE

Spark May Set It Off, Senate Committee Is Told — Witness Amplifies Railroad Ownership Views.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Warning of increasing social unrest unless due attention is paid to the demands of labor was given to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today by A. B. Garretson, President of the Order of Railway Conductors, appearing again in support of the Plumb plan for controlling the railroads.

"Any attempt to reduce wages will strengthen discontent," said Mr. Garretson. "As one who knows the danger this country is facing, I tell you that we are as near a powder mine as one can imagine. And a careless spark may start a conflagration the end of which is difficult to foretell."

Suspicion is entertained by labor of things it does not understand, the witness asserted.

"More often than not," he continued, "its fears are justified. There are a few corporation officials who might manage to slip into Heaven, but in the main most of them are only as good as their business will allow.

"It is the fashion now to denounce Bolshevism, but when you consider the underlying causes that make for Bolshevism they are an indictment of the whole social structure."

Labor conditions in England gave Mr. Garretson an opportunity for comparison.

"Watch what has gone on there for three or four months," said he. "Discontent in England has gone beyond the place where you could patch it up as you would a one-horse shay. You must provide a remedy based on a deep, thorough study of the underlying causes. And unless we, a so-called democratic people, are ready to rectify these causes to a very considerable degree, we shall only add to the strength of the flame which, at last, will communicate itself to sufficient numbers of the people to overturn that which was created by the fathers who set up our Government, and which was fortified by the blood of succeeding generations."

Government Ownership.

Under examination by Senator Kellogg of Minnesota for the purpose of finding out the attitude of labor in other countries toward Government ownership, Mr. Garretson said he had not made a careful study of this, but said the stand of labor had been "democratic" in Australasia and Canada.

"They can give us card and spades in both these countries on democracy," he said. "On the European Continent, the labor movement has been mainly socialistic, while in England, Canada, and the United States it has not. But in England the tendency is rapidly growing socialistic, and such a tendency might readily exist in this country."

One idea introduced by the witness, that Government ownership would allow workers to move freely about and secure employment in other places when their work had been checked by bad weather conditions, seemed to interest the members of the committee. Mr. Garretson suggested that the Government could provide cheap, possibly free, transportation in these instances. Not more than four months' work in a year was available to a large proportion of labor because of weather conditions, he asserted.

"The world owes every man a living, and the only way to shift the burden of supporting a man from society to the man himself is to see that he gets work when he needs it," said the brotherhood chief.

Mr. Garretson repeated his statement that Government control had not received a fair test in this country. Senator Underwood drew out this statement by asking why Federal management had cost more than private operation.

"I'll tell you what I told Mr. McAdoo four days after he took over the roads and when he called the brotherhood heads here to Washington to give their views," said the witness. "I said Government control for any set period, following which the horizon was clouded with doubts as to whether the roads would go back to private ownership, would never afford an honest test.

"The reason for this lies in the very nature of men. In any railroad organization the men seeking promotion look to the dominating influence at the top. They try to serve them, and a more dominating loyalty has never been witnessed. Therefore, until the operating officials of the railroads have become convinced that the future lies with the Government, and not with Wall Street, Government control will never get a fair test. There is no necessity for collusion in order to destroy the success of any system of control; it can fail merely through passive resistance, through things which men fail to do."

Plumb Plan of Operation.

Discussing the Plumb plan, which the brotherhoods and the railway unions endorse, Mr. Garretson remarked that under this the Government and the employes would share "fifty-fifty."

"Will the Government go into partnership with workers, who will not shave dollars at the sacrifice of service, or into partnership with corporations, which are organized for profit?" asked Mr. Garretson. "Which would be more desirable?"

Government guarantees of private-operated roads would be "a fatal mistake," and would put "operation on a plane of mediocrity," said Mr. Garretson, in answer to Senator Underwood. He held to his original proposition that valuation of the railroads was an absolute essential in determining rates, no matter whether the roads were Government-owned or private-owned. Senator Kellogg said railroad builders in the early days of the West seldom kept construction records, and thus valuation would be difficult to ascertain, in some cases.

"It's true that some records vanished overnight; when they proved too much, the records disappeared," replied Mr. Garretson. He said it would not be hard to obtain comparative costs for the period of construction, even if the records had been lost.

There was no reason, declared the Brotherhood leader, why negroes who worked beside white men should not receive equal wages. In making this statement, he used the word "niggers," and then he corrected himself and added to the stenographer:

"Better spell that word 'negroes.' Somebody said that no man who spelled 'negroes' with two 'g's' could become President. And I have aspirations."

Mr. Garretson will occupy the stand again tomorrow.

N. Y. Association for Blind Shows Big Increase in Activities.

The annual report of the New York Association for the Blind, of which the late Joseph H. Choate was President until his death, tells of the increase in all the activities of the organization notwithstanding the adverse conditions brought on by the war.

The Census Bureau has listed more than 11,000 names and has records of 3,346 blind in Greater New York. The report also shows that at the Bourne Workshop for Blind Men, at 338 East Thirty-fifth Street, 193,452 brooms were manufactured in 1918, an increase of 35,920 over the previous year; 2,730 chairs were caned, and more than 3,000 willow baskets were made. The sale of the product of these 108 men brought $127,287.59.

Besides the industrial work of the blind, the organization was very active in war work. The Lighthouse Workers, blind women who went daily to the headquarters for work and instruction, organized a Red Cross auxiliary, and they equaled the other auxiliaries, composed of people not so handicapped, in supplying their quota of knitted and machine sewn hospital garments.

During the year $3,299.48 was bequeathed to the Association for the Blind by Heyman Pfeiffer, and through the estate of Margaret A. Harriot $1,500 was received. Other contributions, including one of $2,500 from Jacob H. Schiff, amounted to $41,247.35.

Dr. John H. Finley, who succeeded Mr. Choate as President, made an appeal in his report for support for the continuation of the work during the days of peaceful industry now in prospect.

DROP CHINESE DIVORCE SUIT

Plaintiff's Tong Orders It Stopped—Separation Agreed To.

The first Chinese divorce suit filed in this city came to a sudden end when it was called for trial yesterday through the action of the tong of which the plaintiff was a member. The suit was brought by Hung Nom, owner of a chop suey restaurant at 26 Pell Street, against Josephine Nom, of Chinese and Mexican ancestry, whom he left after he had lived with her only six days. He sued on the ground that she was receiving attentions from a former suitor.

Abraham Goldfarb and Thomas H. Smith, attorneys for the parties, told Justice Delehanty that they desired to have the complaint dismissed, which was done. Then, attended by friends, interpreters, and a dozen members of the plaintiff's tong, they left court together, apparently with the utmost good feeling, and went to a lawyer's office, where a separation agreement was drawn up in accordance with the orders of the tong, but in which the court had no part.

The lawyers explained that they had spent all Sunday in Chinatown preparing the case for presentation yesterday, but on Sunday evening the plaintiff's tong, to which Mrs. Nom had appealed for advice, called a meeting which the parties were directed to attend. The club heard both tell their story, then voted that it was unseemly for members of the Chinese race to air their domestic troubles in court, directed that the suit be dropped, and ordered that the husband and wife separate, to which both agreed.

French Information Bureau Opens.

The information bureau of the French High Commission opened offices yesterday, at 65 Broadway, where it has the entire eighth floor. Previously the bureau has been in Washington. The bureau will endeavor to obtain a hearing for the French viewpoint from news associations and news services here, an official said yesterday. It will also publish booklets written by Frenchmen on current questions. It has direct cable service with the French Government and maintains a large staff of workers.

TELLS OF O'LEARY MEETING VICTORICA

Long Beach Chief of Police Corroborates Woman Spy's Story of Hotel Nassau Conferences.

SAW ROBINSON WITH THEM

Scott Nearing Takes the Stand in His Own Defense and Talks Socialism to the Jury.

Corroboration of testimony given by Marie de Victorica, Germany's chief woman spy in this country, that she had met Jeremiah O'Leary at Long Beach among other places in connection with her activities was given yesterday by Government witnesses. Aubrey Pettit, who was Chief of Police at Long Beach in the Summer of 1917, told Judge A. N. Hand at the trial of O'Leary that he had seen the defendant in company with Victorica and Jay Willard Robinson at the Hotel Nassau at Long Beach. Robinson is awaiting trial for treason in connection with German plotting.

Asked how he came to observe the trio, Pettit said the Navy Intelligence Bureau had asked him to keep a lookout for newcomers and their activities. The witness also testified he had seen Robinson and Victorica together on other occasions. O'Leary, who conducted most of the cross-examination of witnesses, attempted to offset Pettit's testimony by asking him if he had seen friends and relatives of the defendants at Long Beach, who were present in the court room. The witness was unable to recall any of those whom O'Leary asked to stand up.

Private Joseph A. Lynch of the American Expeditionary Force, formerly captain of the bell boys at the Hotel Nassau, testified that he knew Victorica, who was a guest at the hotel. He said he had seen O'Leary about the hotel in company with a stout man while she was living at the Nassau.

Cross-examined by O'Leary, the witness said he had received orders from General Pershing to return to the United States for the trial.

"So when you came to this country you had special orders to testify in this case?" O'Leary shouted at the witness.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Didn't you have an idea that if you said you could recognize me you could get home?"

"No, I wanted to stay in France. I didn't want to come home at all."

The witness said he did not know anything about the case or O'Leary, and was not interested to know.

Arthur Lyons, managing clerk in O'Leary's law office until last May, who accompanied the defendant when he went West, was also a witness for the Government. He testified that he heard O'Leary say of Victorica on one occasion: "The damned Dutch dope, they've got her, and if they don't give her dope she'll say anything."

Colonel Thomas Felder, chief counsel for the defense, brought out on cross-examination that O'Leary had been sick just before his trip, having undergone an operation. Lyons said O'Leary had contemplated a trip to Reno in connection with the divorce suit of Mrs. Kleist, daughter of Mrs. E. N. Breitung. The witness said O'Leary's family wanted him to go in the defendant's place, but at the last minute the latter decided to make the trip also. The trial will be continued tomorrow.

Scott Nearing took the stand in his own defense yesterday before Federal Judge Julius Mayer. Nearing is charged with attempting to obstruct the draft. Under direct examination of Seymour Stedman, his chief counsel, Nearing testified that the theory on which "The Great Madness" was based was expressed previously in an article written by Professor E. R. Seligman of Columbia. The witness added that Seligman was for war and a conservative. He also asserted that the same theories were advanced in the creed of the Navy League. "The Great Madness" is one of several books and pamphlets written by Nearing, on which the Government based its complaint.

Nearing testified that despite his radical leanings he was on good terms with his father, a Wall Street stock broker, and the rest of his family. He testified that his ancestors on both sides had been in America for more than 200 years.

Nearing took every opportunity allowed by the court to make addresses to the jury on the attitude of the Socialist Party and himself on the question of the war. The courtroom was crowded with friends and sympathizers among whom were John Reed, Arturo Giovanitti, Alderman Algernon Lee, who was also witness, and Bella Silverman. The trial will be resumed tomorrow.

$50,000 FARE FOR AIR TRIP.

Business Man Said to Have Offered It for First Ocean Flight.

"Fifty thousand dollars has been offered by a prominent business man for the privilege of being carried as mechanic in the first transatlantic flight made in an airplane," said Henry Woodhouse, a member of the Board of Governors of the Aero Club of America, in an address yesterday before the American Geographical Society.

"I am not at liberty to make his name public," he added, "but I might say that he is a progressive business man, experienced in the manipulation of gas engines, who is so enthusiastic over the proposed flight that he deems this sum reasonable for the distinction of being permitted to attend to the motors on this historic occasion."

The subject of Mr. Woodhouse's address was "The Trail of the Airplane," in which he reviewed the development of aircraft from the time of the first experiments by the Romans and Chinese up until the present day.

He lauded the plans made for Captain Bartlett's arctic expedition where airplanes will be employed in exploration of the unknown arctic regions. He also told about the large dirigibles being developed by the British that are capable of carrying 100 tons of useful cargo and which, it is hoped, will be able to travel 10,000 miles without descending.

Another Sheaf

Another volume of Mr. Galsworthy's charming and characteristic essays and studies. It has a particularly timely interest in that it is so largely concerned with questions, material and artistic, of reconstruction; and it has a more special interest for Americans in many of its studies which deal with American standards, intellectual and practical. Among the titles are: "American and Briton," "The Drama in England and America," "Impressions of France," "Balance Sheet of the Soldier-Workman," "The Road," etc.

"Mr. Galsworthy writes exquisitely. And he thinks keenly on pressing, practical problems. Everybody knows these two things, but when such a book is published as 'A Sheaf' a few years ago, and now 'Another Sheaf,' it is well to recall them before we take up the volume. For a writer who thinks keenly, feels humanely, and writes beautifully, is indeed a matter to turn to in this day—and it goes without saying that what he writes is valuable. We open 'Another Sheaf' in the full confidence of that. And our confidence is not misplaced."—New York Times. $1.50 net

RED AGITATORS FROM THIS CITY POTENT IN RUSSIA

Former East Siders Largely Responsible for Bolshevism, Says Dr. Simons.

ATROCITIES TO YOUNG GIRLS

Terrible Fate of Hundreds of Them Sanctioned by Official Authority.

VICTIMS OF THE RED GUARDS

Methodist Official from Petrograd Tells of Aliases Used by Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The Senate committee which is investigating Bolshevism was told today that present chaotic conditions in Russia were due in large part to agitators from the east side of New York City, who flocked into that country immediately after the overthrow of the Czar. It was stated that hundreds of these agitators, some of them holding the highest positions in the Bolshevist Government, were now in Russia, and that, in the event that the Bolshevist régime was overthrown they all hoped to find an asylum in the United States.

These statements were made by the Rev. Dr. George S. Simons, Superintendent since 190[illegible] of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Russia and Finland, who left Petrograd in the middle of last October, being one of the last Americans to quit Russia. Dr. Simons was on the stand the entire day.

It was absolutely impossible, he said, for any man to understand what was going on in Russia unless he saw it with his own eyes. He told of the wholesale murder of innocent civilians, the outraging of young girls by the Red Guard, the seizure without legal process of all property, the urging of young girls to go into the streets to follow a life of prostitution, the tying together of helpless people and throwing them into a river to drown, the absolute suppression of free speech and a free press, the official starving of those who do not indorse Bolshevist teachings and programs, and the sending of huge sums of money into other countries to stir up disorder.

Sees Parallel to the I. W. W.

Replying to a question. Dr. Simons said that in all essentials the aims of the I. W. W. and the Bolsheviki were the same.

Russia, so far as civilization is concerned, was pictured as a dead land. Dr. Simons pointed out that at the time of the revolution Petrograd was a magnificent city of 2,300,000 population. Today it is a city under the spell of chaos, with a population estimated, he said, at less than 800,000.

That the Bolshevist group in Russia is spending millions of dollars in propaganda in other countries was again asserted. In this connection Major Lowry Humes, the Judge Advocate in charge of the examination of witnesses, produced an official translation of a Bolshevist Government order appropriating 2,000,000 rubles for propaganda purposes in enemy, friendly, and neutral countries.

Text of Propaganda Order.

The order, which is said to be one of many and was placed in the record as official proof, was dated December, 1917. It reads:

Order—

For the appropriation of 2,000,000 rubles for the requirements of the revolutionary internationalist movement.

Whereas, The Soviet authority stands on the ground of the principles of the international solidarity of the proletariat and the brotherhood of the workers of all countries; and

Whereas, The struggle against the war and imperialism can lead to complete victory only if conducted on an international scale,

The Council of People's Commissaries considers it absolutely necessary to take every possible means, including expenditure of money, for the assistance of the Left Internationalist wing of the workingman movement in all countries, whether these countries are at war or in alliance with Russia or are maintaining a neutral position.

To this end the Council of People's Commissaries orders the appropriation for the requirements of the revolutionary international movement, to be put at the disposal of the foreign representatives of the Commissariat of Foreign Affairs, of 2,000,000 rubles.

Italian Troops Are Searching Austria for Stolen Treasure

VIENNA, Feb. 10, (Associated Press.)—Italian troops and bankers today began removing from a bank here banknotes, bonds, and securities valued at 1,500,000,000 kronen which had originally belonged to the City of Trieste. The money was removed here for safe keeping during the war.

The Italians are seeking to recover several valuable paintings and frescoes removed from Venetia. One of them is said to be the best work of Tiepolo, entitled the "Madonna della Pieta," which was taken from the church of the same name in Udine. A picture by Il Pordenone, taken from a small town along the Piave, also is being sought. The picture is the only thing left of or from the church, which was destroyed during the fighting.

I. W. W. IN PLOT TO KILL WILSON

Secret Service Men Disclose It After the Arrest of an Anarchist in Cleveland.

TRAILED HIM FOR MONTHS

Conspiracy Formed in Leavenworth Prison After Convictions in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—When Secret Service men here learned today of the arrest in Cleveland of Pietro Pierre, an anarchist, they disclosed the details of an I. W. W. plot to kill President Wilson. There are said to have been twenty men in the plot, and funds were raised and the details of the conspiracy worked out in this city.

Pierre, according to information in the hands of the Secret Service, joined a band of Nihilists while he was a prisoner in Leavenworth Penitentiary. All were to be released upon the same day. They vowed that President Wilson should be killed, and also were pledged to kill the chosen member of their gang if he did not carry out the assassination. A short time before they were released last Fall they drew lots to decide which of them should kill the President, and Pierre drew the death ballot.

Secret service men were on the watch for him here, and acting under instructions from Washington did not arrest him when he came here, but trailed him about in the hope of catching his fellow-conspirators.

Pierre, they said, had been trailed to a house at 1,203 Division Street, from which he disappeared. It did not take long to locate him in Michigan, and then began pursuit over the greater part of the State. Pierre finally went to Virginia, Minnesota, and once more disappeared. He was finally located in Michigan again, and from there went to Cleveland. Deciding that it was time to take him into custody the Washington bureau ordered his arrest.

The plot also included the murder of William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, according to the Secret Service men, and is said to have involved several anarchists.

The loyalty of two Italian convicts serving sentences in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth is said to have revealed the plot. They were cellmates of Pierre. To them he is said to have confided his secret. After his release they gave the information to the Warden. At first the story was not credited, but after Pierre had been shadowed several weeks the Secret Service agents became convinced it was true.

Pierre was released from prison on Oct. 14, 1918, after serving a year and a day for opposing the selective draft. Before his discharge he is alleged to have told his fellow prisoners that he had been chosen to kill the President, and that he would go to Chicago for final instructions at I. W. W. headquarters.

"We could have picked him up almost any time," said Captain Porter, head of the Secret Service, here today, "but we received instructions to keep on his trail a little while longer to find out who his pals were. He, however, got wind of our work and eluded our operatives for a short while, but we soon took up his trail again.

"He called at the I. W. W. headquarters on South Paulina Street several times and then left the city. Our men pursued him through several States, and he gave them the slip finally."

R. Bobba, a Chicago I. W. W., sentenced by Judge Landis last Fall to eighteen months in the Leavenworth Penitentiary, is alleged to have informed Pierre of his selection for the attack on President Wilson.

According to the Federal officials the conspiracy against the President's life was hatched soon after the conviction of William D. Haywood and ninety-two other I. W. W. members, who were tried in Judge Landis's court. It was to avenge these men that the attempt was to have been made.

Federal officials in Washington were notified immediately, and a stronger bodyguard than ever before surrounded the President in all his movements, according to officials here.

In a raid today the police arrested twenty-nine men at the I. W. W. headquarters. The city detectives said the raid had been made at the request of Government officials.

Privilege of Birth Being Fought in Social Life as Well as Politics.

Say Erzberger Will Demand Allies Recognize New Regime

BERNE, Thursday, Feb. 13.—As a result of a long conference between Mathias Erzberger, member of the German Armistice Commission, and various Ministers at Berlin on Monday, it was decided, according to the Frankfurter Zeitung, that Erzberger will demand that the Allies recognize the new Berlin Government when he meets the Entente chiefs to negotiate a renewal of the armistice.

WEIMAR, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—Friedrich Ebert, President of Germany, in his speech accepting the Presidency, said:

"I will administer my office not as the leader of a single party, but I belong to the Socialist Party and cannot forget my origin and training. The privileges of birth already have been eliminated from politics and are being eliminated from social life.

"We shall combat domination by force to the utmost from whatever direction it may come. We wish to found our State only on the basis of right and on our freedom to shape our destinies at home and abroad. However harsh may be the lot threatening the German people we do not despair of Germany's vital forces."

Bells Announce Election.

Feb. 11. — Pealing churchbells announced to the people of Weimar at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon that the German folk, for the first time in history, had chosen the head of their own State.

Friedrich Ebert, former saddler and Socialist leader, appeared before the theatre twenty minutes later and received as President of Germany those plaudits which formerly marked the appearance of the monarch who once stigmatized the party to which Ebert belongs as being made up of men "unworthy to bear the name of German."

Despite the certainty of Herr Ebert's election, the theatre was crowded this afternoon beyond anything previously seen since the opening of the National Assembly. The gallery resembled the Reichstag tribune in old days, with men and women in gala attire jammed in every available inch of space.

Crowds Wait to See Ebert.

Great crowds massed outside during the session, waiting patiently in the cold for a chance to see the new President when he left the building, which he did immediately after a very brief speech of acceptance. He smilingly acknowledged the ovation given him.

The vote against him probably came from the solid Conservative bloc and a few of the old National Liberals, while the Independent Socialists and some others signified a lesser degree of disapprobation by casting blank ballots. Announcement of the solitary vote for Mathias Erzberger brought a laugh from the entire house, which also laughed on the second day of the session when he was proposed for the Presidency. The lone vote for Philipp Scheidemann likewise caused mirth.

The Assembly adjourned until Thursday. Tomorrow will be spent in preparing a program and definitely constituting a new Cabinet.

Threat of Future War.

There was unanimous approval when a message from the Württemberg Legislature was read, protesting against the armistice conditions and predicting future wars if peace was signed on their basis.

Dr. Eduard David, President of the Assembly, made in the course of the day a dramatic address to President Ebert. Ht was repeatedly disturbed by a woman Independent Socialist, and the whole House, in shouting disapproval of her actions, drowned the speaker's words at times. Independent Socialist leaders tried to quiet the woman, whose shrill voice continued to break in upon the address.

Suffrage Congress Demands Vote for Women of All Lands

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The International Woman's Suffrage Conference adopted a resolution today declaring that the conference desires that the franchise be granted to the women of all countries on the same basis as men; that married women shall not be deprived of their nationality without their consent, and that existing inequalities between men and women shall be removed.

The resolution also makes the demand that all offices and employment shall be open for women with equal pay for work done independent of sex, and that the moral standard shall be equal for both sexes.

GREAT STRIKE EXPECTED

LONDON, Feb. 12. — The miners promptly challenged today the Premier's announced determination "to fight Prussianism in the industrial world as we fought it on the Continent of Europe—with the whole might of the nation."

At the very beginning of their conference they refused the Government offer of an immediate advance of a shilling per day and the appointment of a committee to investigate every aspect of the mining industry. They referred the question of the action to be taken to their Executive Committee.

In this they are flying in the face of advice of some of their friends. If there is interruption in coal mining now, thousands may suffer terribly. Ever since the army made such great demands for coal last Spring the Government has had to preach coal economy in every way possible, and now in the midst of a severe cold snap London is already feeling the pinch. Consequently, it is pointed out, the miners should have no fear of unemployment.

Moreover, their action is endangering the settlement of the mining problem on any orderly scientific lines. The Government, in suggesting a small wage increase now, it is argued, is acting on these principles. Enonomists consider this equitable. Taking the wages paid on June 1, the last day of the last settlement, as fair, it has compared the cost of living at that time, according to official returns, with the cost on Feb. 1, and has recommended an advance to correspond with the average rise in prices as thus determined.

Consequently, the Government contends in an official memorandum, the miners have nothing to complain about.

As regards the committee of inquiry, it is also pointed out that it intends to invite representatives of the miners to sit upon it and to instruct it to take up the wages and hours questions first and to submit interim reports upon them. It is also contended officially that miners are trying to make themselves a privileged class by claiming concessions concerning demobilization, which it would be impossible to grant to the whole community. In this connection it is noted that the miners, unlike most of the skilled labor of the country, are showing themselves solicitous for the interests of the "dilutees," those men from other occupations who took places in the mines of miners joining the army.

During the war it was commonly stated that many shirkers, quite unfit for the toil of the mines, used them as convenient refuges, but now if the "dilutees" are to be displaced, the miners demand that they are to receive full wages till they get other places. The Government has refused this demand, which, it has been suggested, shows that control of the miners' federation has fallen into the hands of a small extremist clique who are not miners, born and bred, but who caused a great deal of trouble during the war.

Meanwhile the railway men and transport workers have begun their negotiations along constitutional lines and the country has been treated to the spectacle of a great trades union appealing to the legal injunction, the weapon so often denounced in labor circles. The Amalgamated Society of Engineers obtained today in Chancery a temporary order restraining two of its branches from paying strike benefits for "unconstitutional" stoppages.

To Frame an Employers' Union.

LONDON, Thursday, Feb. 13.—An employers' union, which can negotiate with the trade unions regarding labor disputes, is planned by Sir Robert S. Horne, the new Labor Minister, according to The Daily Mail.

Sir Robert's suggestion, the newspaper adds, which would bring all employers of every trade into an association, has been submitted to a special committee, whose recommendations Sir Robert will submit to a meeting of the trade unions. The Daily Mail adds that the plan is well advanced, and that there is great hope of forming a tribunal, the decisions of which in settling industrial disputes would be binding legally.

The Government in replying to the Miners' Federation yesterday said that, in regard to the demand for a six-hour day, the Government, while it sympathized with the desire of the workers for an improved standard of life, must, in considering the increases in the cost

CLEARING UP LEAGUE SNARL AT PARIS; NEW ARMISTICE TERMS TO CRIPPLE FOE; LLOYD GEORGE DEFENDS LEAGUE IDEA

PREMIER REGRETS ATTACKS

Tells Parliament He Hears Republican Labor Men Here Favor League.

JUSTIFIES RED CONFERENCE

Allies Cannot Well Intervene in Russia, He Says, or Let Terror Continue.

TAKING ONLY WAY POSSIBLE

Hopes Restoration of Order in Russia Will Result from Prinkipo Discussions.

LONDON, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—Premier Lloyd George spoke again today in Parliament on the general peace situation.

The occasion was brought about by the Hon. Rupert Guinness, Unionist, asking whether the Premier was prepared to press to the utmost reparation from Germany, and also to make Germany pay to the full extent of her resources. He also pressed for more information as to the status of the British colonies at the Peace Conference.

"We have had far too much of the particular panacea which America is supporting at the conference," said Captain Guinness. "Since the days of Mohammed no prophet has been listened to with more superstitious respect than President Wilson."

Mr. Lloyd George began his reply by saying that reparation by Germany was the election pledge given by the Government after careful consideration by the Cabinet. The Government, he added, stood by every word of this pledge.

The Premier, defending the proceedings of the Peace Conference, said the Government had been devoting its time to speeding up agreements. He was sanguine that a complete agreement would be reached concerning the German western boundary, but the eastern boundary was a different matter.

Until the commission sent to examine the matter reported, the Allies would be in no position to make demands upon Germany. The conference was unanimous, he said, that Germany had forfeited all rights to her colonies.

Mr. Lloyd George contended that with regard to indemnities the British Government was in advance of any Government, as it was the first to appoint a committee to deal with this matter.

He declared that there had never been any proposal advanced at the Peace Conference to recognize the Bolsheviki. Russia was easy to dogmatize about but difficult to deal with. He admitted that the horrors of Bolshevism were so great that there was a sense of disgust when they came to deal with its leaders, but it was useless to blind their eyes to the real facts.

Constant Disruption of Peace.

Russia represented in area over half of Europe and nearly half of Asia, and he pointed out that if peace were not made the whole of this immense territory would be seething in anarchy, disorder, and bloodshed; there would be no peace in the world.

The Bolsheviki, the Premier declared, were assassins, guilty of the crimes laid to their charge. The Allies had given the anti-Bolshevist Governments financial support and assistance. Much of their equipment had been supplied by the Allies, who were anxious to keep the rich territories of Russia out of German hands.

If troops were to be sent to Russia, who should send them? America, he said, would send neither men, money, nor material, and the work would fall upon the British and French.

The Bolshevist machinery in Russia was ruthless and brutal, but there was no doubt about its efficiency, and it was the only machinery there. Everybody in the past who had interfered in Russia had come to grief. There was no idea of recognizing the Bolsheviki; it was quite impossible to do so as long as they were pursuing their present methods.

It might be argued, he said, that the Bolsheviki governed by terror. The same could be said of the French revolution. He was unable to disclose the figures that intervention would involve, but, after seeing them, no sane man, he declared, would advise the Allies, after five years of war, to undertake the enterprise. The Bolshevist military power had grown, while both England and Germany were too occupied to attack it, and it was strong.

"If we won, how long should we occupy the country?" he asked. "And what guarantee would there be that, when we withdrew, a dependable government would be set up?"

Referring to the alternative of allowing the fire in Russia to burn itself out, the Premier characterized this as a brutal policy, and added that it would be useless to send food to Petrograd when the only distributing organisation was Bolshevist.

Supporting the Prinkipo proposal, the Premier argued that it was by no means unknown on the northern frontier of India to parley with brigands, and even

New Armistice Terms Are Fixed in Paris; Said to Make German Attack Impossible

PARIS, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—The Supreme War Council after two long sessions today reached complete agreement on the new terms of armistice to be presented to Germany. The terms will not be made known until presented, but the fact that there was complete agreement was a source of satisfaction in conference circles after the tension caused by recent discussions.

Today's sessions brought together, besides President Wilson and representatives of the Great Powers, Marshals Foch and Pétain, Field Marshal Haig, General Diaz and Generals Pershing and Bliss of the council, including also economic and financial experts. Civilian Americans taking part were Norman Davis of the Treasury, Vance McCormick of the War Trade Board, and B. M. Baruch of the War Industries Board. The presence of these officials probably indicates that economic and financial, as well as military, features are incorporated in the new terms.

The War Council will hold another session tomorrow prior to the departure of Foch for Treves, where he will present the terms to the German Armistice Commission.

The German authorities have been asked to furnish information confirming the amount of their war material, cannon, airplanes, and other equipment. This question came up in the recent sessions of the council when the extent of this material was advanced as a reason for taking measures against the renewal of warlike activities.

Before determining on any such step it was considered desirable to request information, both as a memorandum dealing with the subject and as testing the good faith of the enemy in disclosing the status of his military equipment.

The Havas Agency says that it understands that the council decided first to place Germany in a military situation where it would be impossible to renew hostilities. It is pointed out that the enemy countries are keeping war material sufficient to equip very rapidly an army of at least 3,000,000 men.

The council decided secondly, according to the same agency, "to make Germany realize that we are the conquerors and that it is not a 'white peace' that we are seeking to impose on her."

"In case Germany submits with good grace," continues the Havas account, "it is possible that the Entente [?] would facilitate the resumption of the Entente's works of peace for the benefit of Germany."

PART OF LABOR PLAN ADOPTED

Commission Votes to Abrogate Unit Rule at International Conference.

PLACE OF MEETING FIXED

Shall Be at Capital of League of Nations Unless Two-thirds Decide Otherwise.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The Peace Conference Commission on International Labor Legislation at its meeting today adopted Articles IV. and V. of the British draft of a plan for an international labor organization. At the suggestion of Samuel Gompers, the President of the commission, the members rose and stood silent for a few moments in honor of the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

Article IV. provides that representatives of the Governments, employers, and working people should be entitled to speak and vote independently at the proposed international labor conference, without regard to the views expressed by other representatives of their nations.

Article V. provides that the international labor conference shall meet in the capital of the Society of Nations unless it is decided by a two-thirds majority to meet elsewhere.

It is also agreed that an office be established in the capital of the Society of Nations as a part of the organization of the society. This office is to be under the control of a director appointed by the governing body.

The official statement of the proceedings of the commission says:

The seventh meeting of the Commission on International Labor Legislation took place this morning.

Article IV. of the British draft was carried, providing that at the proposed international labor conference the representatives of the Governments, the employers, and work people should be entitled to speak and vote independently without regard to the views expressed by the other representatives of their nation, with power to draw up conventions binding on the States represented.

Hitherto the delegates present at such a conference have represented the Governments only, and the voting had always been by nations. It was felt, however, that in dealing with labor legislation the employers and the workers must be given the fullest opportunity of giving free expression to their views, and that they could not do this if the delegates of each nation were bound to speak and vote as a unit.

Article V. was also carried, providing that the international labor conference shall meet at the capital of the League of Nations, unless it decides by a two-thirds majority to meet elsewhere.

The commission then proceeded to discuss the article dealing with the establishment of the permanent international labor office and the governing body which will direct its work. It was agreed that the office should be established at the capital of the League of Nations as part of the organization of the League and should be under the control of a director.

The commission, at the President's suggestion, rose in honor of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

ALL MUST BOYCOTT AT LEAGUE'S ORDER

Use of Economic Arm Against Wanton War Makers Is Made Obligatory.

NO INTERNATIONAL ARMY

League Member Attacked Must Use Its Own Troops Till Outside Aid Arrives.

PARIS, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—The plan for a League of Nations, which may now be considered as virtually approved by the members of the special commission, provides for a small body of representatives of the great and small countries which will govern the Society of Nations, meeting every two or three months in a place that will be internationalized. The meeting place was not indicated in the plan, but during the discussion members of the commission spoke of Constantinople or some island.

Each country will provide a list of experts in international law, from which body will be chosen arbitrators when disputes between nations are submitted for settlement.

Every difference between countries will have to be submitted to the governing body of the Society of Nations, which will make a decision within three months, during which time the contending parties must refrain from any act of hostility.

Once a decision is given, if it is not accepted by one or more of the parties to the conflict, the case will be referred to a Committee of Arbitration, the members of which will be chosen from lists of experts in international law, provided by countries which are members of the Society of Nations.

If the country, which the decision of the arbitrators places in the wrong, does not accept the ruling of the arbitrators and has recourse to arms, not only the forces of the other contending party to the dispute, but the forces of all the other members of the Society of Nations in a position to help will take up arms against it.

The covenant, establishing the rules of the Society of Nations, does not make it compulsory for all the contracting parties to go to war to help one of their associates.

This was decided when M. Bourgeois, in the name of France, asked that there should be a naval and land force of the Society of Nations ready to repulse an enemy attack whenever necessary, and to be kept in France until all possible danger of attack from Germany was over.

This was opposed by the United States and Great Britain and other countries, and after a long session it was agreed that no permanent international military force should be kept, but if a country should be attacked in violation of the rules of the Society

FRENCH MAY BE APPEASED

New Proposal for Draft Would Make War Still Less Possible.

ALL NATIONS OBLIGATED

If One Declared War, Others Would Be Required to Take Measures.

LIKELY TO COMPLETE PLAN

President, It Is Stated, Will Probably Take the Finished Project Home.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Progress has been made today toward clearing up a situation in the conference that threatened embarrassing delay in making peace.

The Supreme War Council announces tonight that "conditions of the renewal of the armistice have been decided on."

In addition to this great forward step there is promise that the disagreement over the French insistence on an international army will be harmonized. The United States and Great Britain have made it plain that they could not overcome their constitutional prohibitions against pledging themselves to war in advance, but it is believed that the French have been placated by a new provision in the Constitution of the League of Nations stiffening the prior provision intended to prevent war.

As rewritten this provides that when any nation declares war wantonly, the other nations in the league are obligated to take measures to meet the situation. This means in the case of the United States that the President will be obliged to call on Congress to determine whether our army and navy shall be used against the offending nation.

The agreement on the armistice conditions is the most important direct move made today. It is understood that a middle course between the widely separated French and the American and British positions was the basis of adjustment. France is to share in business transactions with Germany under the proposal that the four great powers furnish Germany with food and accept German long-time obligations.

The French propose that the United States pay France cash for the commodities furnished Germany—the obligation to be discharged by France when Germany pays the cost.

Our representatives declined to accept this suggestion, and contend that France should deal directly with Germany.

Generally speaking, the situation looks better, and the chances are that the President will be able to leave Paris in a few days with the Constitution of the League of Nations perfected and other major questions adjusted.

The Drafting Committee of the League of Nations Commission spent the day attempting to write—in terms satisfactory to all—the conditions which are changed by the compromise.

Tomorrow the league commission will meet in the hope of sanctioning the complete draft of the constitution for presentation to the plenary session of the Peace Conference Saturday.

Storm Helped Clear the Air.

Feb. 11.—Thunderstorms proverbially clear the atmosphere. The slight thunderstorm of yesterday sustained the proverb. It was a figurative storm, of course, and the atmosphere cleared was that of the Peace Conference. Today there is a better prospect of accomplishment before President Wilson leaves for America—a greater appearance of activity suggestive of a desire to make headway toward real peace.

A glance at today's vernacular Paris newspapers shows that the censor was busy last night, particularly with articles that discussed the attitude of the President toward the French contention that provision must be made militarily and industrially for the future protection of France from possible German aggression and competition. Two or three English-language newspapers show that some rough person with a chisel has been giving close attention to them, probably with reference to articles indicating that the President was irritated over the belief that a concerted movement had been undertaken by the French press to arouse opposition to the proposal put forward by him. But the feeling that the articles similar to those censored publications engendered seems to have passed away in the desire in evidence today to make headway toward perfecting the arrangements preliminary to concluding a peace convention.

Armistice Compromise Hoped For.

There is a hopeful feeling that a harmonious agreement will be reached on the differences, arising largely from the recommendations of the Permanent Armistice Commission for more drastic treatment of Germany. While the French and American views diverge widely in some respects, there is a prospect that they will be brought together in a way fairly satisfactory to the French, who hold that unless Germany is crushed effectually now she is likely to prove a grave danger in the immediate future.

The American delegation is not unsympathetic with the French point of view. It is thoroughly realized by our representatives that France is constantly confronted by an enemy, 70,000,000 strong, at her doors, and that the war would have been fought in vain if that enemy were not put in a position where the desire for revenge would fail of realization.

Nor has it escaped the notice of the American delegation—and this applies to the other allied missions—that the officials of the new German Government are showing a disposition to be defiant toward the allied plans. One thing has particularly impressed some allied observers. This is the suggestion to the German Constituent Assembly that if the Allies were too harsh in their demands the German Government would resign and let the Allies take charge of the country. Such a contingency is not inviting under present conditions, because of the threat it implies of the German intention to keep up a constant irritation and to compel the allied Governments to maintain large armies on German soil.

At the same time, the American representatives believe there is a middle ground of dealing with the German problem which will safeguard French interests and enable Germany to have law and order. Our delegates do not oppose reducing Germany to a condition where she will be unable to be a menace to France in a military or even in an economic way.

Safeguards for France.

The American representatives are also willing to furnish assurances that France and the other allied countries shall have preference over Germany in obtaining industrial appliances and raw material in order to re-establish themselves industrially. In view of this disposition, it is felt in American quarters that an agreement can be reached which will furnish adequate safeguards for France against the new Germany that is being built upon the ashes of the old.

Some observers find it difficult to appreciate the French argument as to the immediate dangers, but there is a widespread belief that, to a large section of the French public, these dangers are real. There is an unwillingness, however, in informed allied quarters to accept the claims that Germany is ready to raise a large army or that she is able to do so. Marshal Foch's estimate that Germany can put an army of 3,000,000 in the field in a few months disagrees with information from excellent sources. This indicates that the German Army is reduced by voluntary and involuntary demobilization to about 700,000 men, and the German claim that a volunteer army of 300,000 has been raised to protect the Polish frontier is not borne out by investigation, which shows a volunteer force of approximately only half that size. Furthermore, France, Great Britain, and America have on the Continent about 4,500,000 men.

Germany would be unable in any circumstances to cope with this combined force, it is asserted, and for this as well as other reasons France need have no fear that the Allies will be unable to deal quickly and effectively with any German Army, denuded of artillery and transport, that can be put in the field.

Arguments for a World Army.

It was expected that the League of Nations Commission would finish its work of drafting the League Constitution at the meeting held in the Hotel de Crillon today, but the finishing touches had to be deferred. The reason for its failure to conclude the formal draft was that Leon Bourgeois, the leading French member of the commission, made a last effort to have the Constitution provide for the employment of an international army to enforce the decrees of the league. His argument, which he gave at length, exemplified one of the main French objections to the league, that it did not bind its members to use their armed forces for this purpose.

According to the French claim, the league loses its effectiveness as an instrument of preserving peace unless such a pledge is imposed upon all nations. President Wilson, who presided over the session, explained, as he had done previously, that the American delegation was debarred from accepting this arrangement on account of the constitutional prohibition against a declaration of war without the consent of Congress.

Arguments pro and con consumed so much time that the commission could not reach an agreement before the hour arrived for the departure of some of its members for the meeting of the Supreme War Council. But every effort will be made to have the Constitution completed for presentation to the plenary session of the Peace Conference by Saturday, before the President leaves Paris for home.

DEMAND GERMAN DISTRICTS.

Belgians Want Montjoie and Malmedy to Safeguard Their Frontier.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The Belgian claims as placed before the Supreme Council yesterday include a demand for the transfer to Belgium of some territory held by Germany, in addition to requests for free navigation of the Scheldt, and the cession of certain territory held by the Dutch.

The German districts demanded are Montjoie and Malmedy, just east of the present Belgo-German border. The population of these districts is mainly Walloon, and their possession by Belgium, it is pointed out, would deprive Germany of a foothold for a new invasion of Belgium.

It is believed that a special commission will be appointed to study the Belgian claims, says a Havas report.

STRAUS APPROVES FRAME OF LEAGUE

Considers It the Best Anti-War Device That Can Be Humanly Arranged.

COUNTS ON MORAL SUPPORT

Believes That Future Congresses Will Be Bound to Co-operate if Plan Is Ratified.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Oscar S. Straus, who recently arrived in Paris as Chairman representing the League to Enforce Peace, told me today that he had established a perfect liaison between that body and the official commission of the Peace Conference at work on the constitution of the League of Nations, under the chairmanship of President Wilson.

Furthermore, Mr. Straus affirmed that the plan for a league, which probably will be made public at the end of this week, at the plenary session of the conference, will form the best device that can be humanly arranged to prevent wars.

"No human contrivance," he said, "can be an absolute and infallible preventive of war, any more than any domestic law can be infallible against murder. But the plan now nearing completion for adoption by the nations of the world is, I believe, the best that could be devised. It is not in accord with the desires of extremists on either side, of those who would have no force, and those who would have too much. But it is making happy the middle course adherents.

"Like the Constitution of the United States in the making, this league constitution is full of compromises, consented to for the purpose of getting the best net result."

Outline of League Project.

Mr. Straus was not at liberty to give the details of the plan so far formulated; but from various other fully reliable sources at least suggestions can be given now of what provisions this constitution of the nations of the world will contain in its preamble and twenty-two clauses. The latest facts from general sources conform very closely to the outline cabled on Saturday of Ferdinand Larnaude's statement concerning what the French hoped and expected.

There will be three main bodies of the league—an executive, consisting of nine representatives of as many nations; a legislative body, consisting of an international parliament, and a judicial tribunal. As planned now, the tribunal will be authorized by the constitution, but the details of its construction will be worked out later, after the league is in actual existence.

The machinery for preventing war will work something like this: Suppose two member nations are at odds. The case will come before the Executive Council of Nine, which will rule on the matter or refer it first to the judicial tribunal, according to the nature of the controversy. If the two nations in dispute accept the ruling of the executive or judicial body of the league, that will end the matter.

If either of them, however, is dissatisfied, it will have the right to appeal from the decision of the Council of Nine or the tribunal to the full membership of the League of Nations. Furthermore, if the Council of Nine itself cannot reach a unanimous decision, the minority will also have the right to appeal to the full league from the vote of the majority in the smaller body.

Can Only Recommend Force.

The important point is that the Council of Nine will not have power within itself to decree the use of force in order to prevent war between the two contending nations, should they decide, after all the preliminaries have failed, to fight out the matter between themselves with their military forces. On the contrary, the Council of Nine has the right only to recommend the use of force, but that recommendation must be adopted by the full league before it is effective.

As measures short of actual military activity there is ample provision whereby the league, upon recommendation of the Council of Nine, may impose an economic boycott or blockade to bring the would-be belligerent to terms.

There is to be no international army and navy functioning all the time as such, and only at the beck and call of the league. Instead, each nation will retain its own military force on sea and land, and when occasion arises will furnish such part of it as may be required for the international task of enforcing peace.

In this connection, the league will probably also provide some form of limitation of armament for all countries.

Reliance on American Aid.

When the plan is outlined there arises the inevitable question of the sovereignty of each nation, which every international scheme provokes. Let the question take this form, for example: Suppose the League of Nations calls on the United States to furnish a division of troops and a squadron of ships as its quota of an international military body to enforce peace in a given contingency. Sending troops and ships abroad for such a purpose would surely be making war, even if it were for the purpose of preventing war. But in the United States only Congress can say that the country will make war.

Now, suppose Congress refuses? The answer to that by the advocates of the plan is not that Congress couldn't but that Congress wouldn't refuse, because such a refusal would put the United States outside the pale of nations by forcing her to repudiate the obligations she assumes when she enters the league. If the Senate of this or any other Congress ratifies the treaty putting the United States into the league and this piece of international law becomes part of its domestic law, all future Congresses will be morally bound to live up to it.

As in every human transaction, fiscal, political, or social, there is always one point at least where no absolute assurance can be provided by machinery or law, but where dependence must rest only on the purely moral integrity of individuals, so it is in this business of preventing war. Dependence must be placed on the men who will constitute the parliamentary Governments of the United States and all other member nations.

Such is the outline of the plan now rapidly approaching completion, and such are the reasons of its makers for believing that it will stand the test at the hands of the statesmen of the future.

QUAKERS APPLAUD WILSON.

Cable Him Congratulations on His Work for a Peace League.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The American Society of Friends has sent to President Wilson the following message:

"The American Friends authorize us to express joy that you are working for justice. We pray that strength beyond your own will be given you to unite the peoples in a league sanctioning moral force toward all humanity as the basis of future international order. We also appeal for complete disarmament, which is vital to all."

assassins. The Bolshevist system could not last forever, and, in the meantime, he was informed, the threat of intervention was driving the moderate elements into Bolshevist hands. He urged that the Allies must do their best, in the interest not only of Russia but also of Great Britain and of the world, to restore order and good government in that distracted country.

Mr. Lloyd George was sorry to hear members talking in rather slighting tone about the League of Nations. Anyone attending the Peace Conference must realize how much the little nations were relying on the league. They were not only unanimous, but eager.

It was suggested that President Wilson represented only one party regarding the league, but ex-President Taft, he said, went much further on the mandatory question than President Wilson himself, and much further than Britain could follow him.

"I have been assured by a prominent Republican," he continued, "that, so far as the league is concerned, the Republican workingmen of America are just as keen as the Democratic workingmen, and that American public opinion is not divided on the league, although there may be differences of opinion on details. I agree that a nation ought not to be committed to war by any league, without having the responsibility considered by itself."

PREMIER DISSECTED BY NORTHCLIFFE

Merciless Analysis Suggests Lloyd George Is a Political Chameleon.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Premier Lloyd George may well ask to be saved from his friends if he reads the estimate of him written by Lord Northcliffe in the first number of The New Illustrated, which appeared today. It is not a direct attack, but merely a mercilessly cold analysis by a candid friend, who hopes the Premier will be equal to the appalling tasks of reconstruction, but cannot help pointing out a few things.

Lord Northcliffe admits Lloyd George's "ringing speeches and capable grasp of essential reforms" during the war, but does not forget that he, as a member of the Asquith Cabinet, shared responsibility for its failure. Then he refers to the fact that the Premier is now acting with political leaders whom for a long time he held up to ridicule, and he says:

"There could never be any enduring sympathy between him and the chief members of his Cabinet, Balfour, Long, Austen Chamberlain, and Bonar Law. Even if they were convinced that he had dropped all his former views about social reform, the Tories may look upon Lloyd George as a convert or, to use the phraseology of religious revivalism, as a brand plucked from the burning. But he now finds himself dependent upon those whom a few years back he was attacking with furious invective."

Lord Northcliffe wonders if the Premier is strong enough to force real reforms on his present associates, and asks:

"Is he not by temperament a political chameleon, taking on the color of the views of those who at the moment happen to be his associates? Did not his daily changes of opinion during the recent election campaign make it clear to any one who has closely studied his political personality that he waits for the newspapers to tell him what to do and advances his opinions under the pressure of their criticism?"

Lord Northcliffe adds that the Premier is "one in whom that high moral courage which enables a man to stand alone is not a distinguished quality. He is not a man of wide knowledge nor is his mind fertile in large ideas. He depends greatly upon others in order not to lose confidence. He must be sure of support, even though it be the support of 'kept' newspapers and political opponents. The most perilous defect in Lloyd's George's character is that he is not sure of himself."

PRESSES IRISH DEMANDS.

Devlin Asks Representation at Paris or Self-Determination.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—In the House of Commons today Joseph Devlin of Belfast demanded that the Government either grant Ireland full representation at the Paris Peace Conference or else apply to the island the principle of the self-determination of small nations. Devlin accused the Unionists of deceit and trickery. Why, he demanded, did not the Government state its Irish policy?

He indignantly denied the charge that Bolshevism was behind the strike in Belfast. There were Bolshevist missionaries at work in Ireland and elsewhere in the kingdom, he said, but the Belfast strike was only an attempt of the working people to secure for themselves a shorter workday and better conditions of living.

Devlin asked if the members were aware that the German Emperor had been invited over to take charge of Ireland, and not by the Irish Home Rulers, either.

When cries of dissent were heard, he drew forth a newspaper clipping and read what he said was an extract from the organ of the Irish branch of the Church of England. This stated that if the attempt were made to enforce Home Rule in Ireland, the Emperor of a powerful European country had agreed to send over a great army and annex the island to his possessions, and that those opposed to Home Rule would be better satisfied to be so governed than under Home Rule.

WANTS GUARANTEES OF FRANCE'S SAFETY

Paris Paper Doubts if an International Army Would Give Security.

DIFFER AS TO CLEMENCEAU

Cheradame Denies That America Is United for a League of Nations.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The Paris newspapers today in their discussion of the Society of Nations question make frequent reference to President Wilson.

"Mr. Wilson is decidedly a lucky man," writes Arthur Meyer, editor of The Gaulois. "He had in his brain of philosopher and apostle conceived a certain plan. It was in 1915. He was of the opinion that the war, into which his conscience had not yet drawn him, would produce no complete victor and no wholly vanquished. In consequence of this he had built up a whole series of propositions which he now dislikes to abandon.

"But there has been a vanquished, and there have been victors, among whom is the United States. Germany had to ask for an armistice. It is regrettable for the a priori conceptions of Mr. Wilson, but it is very fortunate for us. Had there been no victor or no vanquished the solution of the actual difficulties would have been much easier. Nothing would have prevented the formation of the League of Nations of which Mr. Wilson dreams, as all the belligerents could have been included.

"But if Mr. Wilson persists in his original plan, of which no thinking being can deny the generosity, we desire that he should remember the necessity of certain guarantees which were not excluded from his original plan, and we doubt if the creation of an international police force would be sufficient to guarantee us the security to which we are entitled."

M. Meyer's contention is that France should have a defensive frontier as well as a membership in the League of Nations.

The newspapers today comment at length on the recent interview given by Premier Clemenceau to The Associated Press.

"In the same way as President Wilson was speaking directly to the people about their Governments," says Le Pays, "it is to the American nation, in full agreement with his grand ally, that M. Clemenceau desired to speak. He wanted that nation, which is inundated by enemy propaganda, to know in a direct manner in what state this war of destruction and plunder had left victorious France."

The Petite République says:

"The interview given by M. Clemenceau to the American journalist places us face to face with formidable after-war economic problems, and from the very outset one question arises, namely that of commercial relations between nations and of commercial treaties and tariffs. This question not only concerns relations between victor and vanquished, not only between the adversaries, but also between France and her allies. The debates will begin, and it is essential that they be complete and public.'

"Our politicians should not forget that France for some time to come will need to erect barriers around some of her renascent industries until their reconstruction has been achieved; and in this case it is still a matter of judgment and a task in which our statesmen will be burdened with responsibilities for the future."

Humanité, in an article written by Daniel Renault, which is headed "The Digression of M. Clemenceau," says:

"The people of France will be astounded to learn that the chief of their Government has used language such as they read in this interview. No doubt it is well known that an alarmist campaign has been decided upon and is being organised to warm up jingo ardor, which was getting tepid, as well as M. Clemenceau's popularity, which is getting cooler. But is it possible that a Premier the very day after a victorious war could contribute himself by his evident exaggerations to trouble public opinion?

"In this same interview we hear Clemenceau affirm that his entire program is based on the splendid platform of President Wilson, whose noble candor he recently scoffed at in the Chamber and whom he was continually having attacked by pin-prick warfare by his valets of the bourgeoise press."

L'Action Française says:

"M. Clemenceau's declarations have the great merit of warning France and the Allies of the German peril. In his statement we are no longer in the skies of Wilsonian idealism. May it be said that, while fully recognizing the great service President Wilson rendered before the armistice to civilization and France, we are now on terra firma? It is the language of our salvation."

In the Democratic Nouvelle André Cheradame quotes in full Senator Lodge's speech in the American Senate Dec. 21, and seeks to prove that the statement a few days ago by a well-known Paris newspaper that the whole of America was in favor of a League of Nations was unfounded.

"During my sojourn of eight months in the United States," says M. Cheradame, "I did not see anything of the kind. The Society of Nations occupied quite secondary rank in the minds of Americans. Their main object was to impose upon Germany such conditions that she could never again begin her aggressions. These sentiments were manifested with particular energy at the time of the general elections in November."

La Verité sees in the interview the "noble candor" of M. Clemenceau.

"If any one," says the newspaper, "had said only six months ago that on the day of definite reckoning victor and vanquished would be equally miserable he would have been considered a defeatist and would have roused public vengeance against himself. M. Clemenceau is going still further, contending that the victor alone has been ruined."

of Nations, the attacked country would employ her forces as "covering troops," waiting assistance from the other members of the society which could more easily help her.

Economic Boycott Obligatory.

No country would be obliged to go to the rescue of another country unjustly attacked, but all the signatories to the Society of Nations would be compelled to join in an economic boycott against a country which violated its rules, and also to maintain friendly neutrality in favor of the attacked country.

Thus far during the discussion the British and American tendency has been to reach an agreement on general principles, while the Continental European and Latin Powers have been inclined to go into details that rendered unanimity by the commission difficult, if not impossible.

President Wilson succeeded in bringing about a compromise between the two tendencies, thus obtaining an adoption of the plan and covenant.

Lord Robert Cecil, British representative on the League of Nations Commission, emphatically denied tonight the report spread in Paris today that the League of Nations Commission had approved the creation of an international army, and that the United States and Great Britain had conceded a point to France.

Lord Robert said that in his opinion, moreover, the commission would decline to approve any such plan. He added that such a report must have originated from an enemy of the Peace Conference.

Lord Robert added that the work was going ahead well and that the commission had completed nearly all its work. He believed it would be able to finish its discussion of the project by the end of the week.

This utterance followed the publication in the Temps of an article to the effect that the commission would probably be able to submit to the Council of the Powers the definite text of its project before President Wilson's departure.

"In its present form," the article said, "the project involves the nations which are members of the League making a definite engagement to take up arms for the maintenance of their territories and the safeguarding of international treaties. It would seem that the conception has been discarded whereby the League becomes a super-State in favor of insistence on the necessity of close mutual obligations furnishing guarantees for the independence of each nation more efficient than the old systems of alliances."

The Drafting Committee was at work today in the rooms of Lord Robert Cecil and finished its work after a short session.

It was the general impression that the committee was charged with the extremely delicate task of reconciling divergent views of the French and American members of the commission respecting the maintenance of an international army. In fact, the committee was engaged largely in clarifying language in the draft plan not connected with the international army project.

It was the opinion of individual members that it would not be as serious an obstacle to the completion of the project as it was feared it might be.

Wilson May Leave Paris Tomorrow.

It was learned tonight that President Wilson was considering the advisability of leaving Paris for Brest, en route to America, Friday night, if it should then be evident that the Society of Nations project could not be put through the Peace Conference, in plenary session by the end of the week.

It is expected, however, that he will at least be able to take home with him what may be regarded as virtually a complete draft of the project upon which to base any representations that he may make to Congress.

The French Government presented the article to create an international military force to the league commission last night in a formal way. The introduction of this article for inclusion in the Society of Nations plan closely followed the disclosure by Premier Clemenceau in his recent interview with The Associated Press of his conviction that the League of Nations must be supported "by the determination of each nation entering into the agreement to be willing to renounce its traditional aloofness from other peoples and willing to employ the national strength outside its own country both in time of peace as well as under the pressure of war."

The contention of Léon Bourgeois, who presented the article in question, was that the international force proposed must be of sufficient proportions to prevent Germany or any other country from breaking the peace, or, if the peace were broken, to restore it promptly again by the collective power.

M. Bourgeois, alluding to the apprehension existing in France as regards Germany, insisted that there was grave danger confronting France if an international force was not constantly in being and organized for instant action. The French view, he indicated, was that a society of nations which did not include a permanent collective force might be a beautiful experiment, perhaps, but an experiment too great for a nation to risk unless it had in addition defensive frontiers sufficient to meet a sudden shock.

It was easy, he said, for the British on the other side of the Channel and with an enormous navy, or for the Americans with the ocean as their defensive frontier, to regard calmly the working of a league which did not provide for an international force. France, however, being separated from Germany only by a geographical line, must receive the first shock if Germany should decide to pass beyond her frontiers, and the German shock, even with greatly limited armaments, might be so destructive, according to the French view, that France would never be able to recover.

M. Bourgeois is understood to have compressed into his proposition the deeply considered convictions of the French Cabinet and its military and legal advisers.

Tackling Financial Problems.

While President Wilson and the allied Premiers and Generals are deeply engrossed in perfecting the plan for the creation of a Society of Nations and arranging the new terms to be imposed upon Germany for a renewal of the armistice, expiring next Monday, other subjects of the greatest importance are being prepared for the consideration of the Peace Conference. It is expected that the conference will spend little time discussing them, however, and will pass most of them on to the Society of Nations when the latter has been created and is ready to function.

Meetings are going on between men who have come to Paris at the call of President Wilson and the Premiers to deal with great financial problems arising out of the war. Every delegation admits the gravity of the problems presented and the absolute necessity for their settlement, if the world is to be saved from universal bankruptcy. In no place is it regarded as more evident that there must be the fullest and most cordial co-operation between the nations now represented at the conference than in the effort to restore the stability of currency, reduce prices to a reasonable level, get rid of superfluous issues of war paper, prevent further excessive fluctuations of exchange and regulate the rates of interest on, and the amount of, bonds to be issued.

Already initial steps have been taken to commit the Peace Conference to the adoption of a great international pooling system of debts, which shall include all neutral nations, whether they wish inclusion or not. This will meet with the most determined resistance from the American delegates, who feel that America did her full share in aiding the Allies by furnishing troops and almost unlimited supplies of money and material. They are understood to be quite willing to rid France of the nightmare of German power in extending further credits to permit France to rehabilitate her industries and enable her, and Belgium as well, to hold her own in the world's markets, but they thoroughly appreciate the fact that it is beyond their power to commit their country to participation in any monetary credit system with European powers.

They also feel that some of these countries have been derelict in not imposing, as the United States and Great Britain did, additional taxes upon their own people during the war to meet, at least in part, their obligations, instead of calculating upon reimbursement from indemnities to be collected from the enemy.

DUTCH ARE OBDURATE ON CEDING TERRITORY

But Are Willing to Help Remove Scheldt Restrictions That Hamper Antwerp.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—I am in a position to define the Dutch attitude regarding Belgian claims. The Dutch Premier, Ruys de Beerenbrouck, recently made the following statement to the French on visiting Holland on a semi-diplomatic mission:

"As regards the Scheldt question we are ready to negotiate either with a view to international control or whatever other solution may be decided by the Paris conference. But the Dutch people cannot accept the Belgian claims to Zeeland, Flanders, or Limburg. If a referendum test were applied it would give in both cases 98 per cent. of the votes to Holland.

"We are perfectly willing to discuss the various questions in all friendship, but as for ceding a foot of Dutch territory—well, that would mean a regular quarrel."

In other words, the Dutch are determined to protect their own territorial interests, but have no desire to perpetuate the hindrances to Antwerp.

It was in 1815 that Antwerp was cut off from direct communication with the sea by the establishment of Dutch sovereignty over the intermediate territory. This decision was a result of British fear that French influence over Belgium (France then being regarded as a principal danger to the peace of Europe) might lead to trouble if a barrier was not set up at the gates of Antwerp.

Today the position is very different. Restrictions upon Antwerp's commercial expansion cannot fail to benefit Hamburg. Holland has nothing to gain by such interference with Belgian trade, provided that what she regards as purely Dutch territory is respected.

WILSON'S CALENDAR FULL.

Engagements Made Up to Last Hour of His Stay—Evening at Opera.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—President Wilson's remaining days in France before he returns to the United States are crowded to the last hour, so that the President may give a hearing to individuals and committees who desire to see him.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Wilson attended a gala performance at the Opera, arranged in their honor. The proceeds of the performance will be added to funds devoted to the care of war cripples. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lansing accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Wilson in the Presidential box, which was draped with the Stars and Stripes.

When the President and his wife entered, the whole audience rose and applauded cordially, the President bowing his acknowledgments. The assembly was the most brilliant recently held in Paris. Many delegates to the Peace Conference, including Arthur J. Balfour, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and Prince Feisal of Hedjaz were present.

The opera given was "La Damnation de Faust," by Berlioz. The President appeared to keenly enjoy the evening and led in the applause.

Appointments made by Mr. Wilson for this evening at the Murat Mansion, included conferences with a Swiss delegation, headed by Dr. Rappard, a leading authority on the League of Nations idea; an Armenian delegation, headed by M. Courier, of Constantinople, and Professor Hogobian of Robert College; a delegation from the French Association for a Society of Nations with Léon Bourgeois at its head; a call from the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Persia, and the reception of a committee formed by the newspaper La France Libre.

JUGOSLAVS ARE WARNED.

Col. Causey Tells Them They Must Not Hinder Railway Traffic.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Feb. 11, (via Geneva.)—Colonel Causey of the American Mission has just returned here from Trieste. On the way the Colonel warned the Jugoslavs not to hinder transport on the railways, as the Entente was resolved in case of difficulties to immediately stop shipping food supplies to Austria.

Colonel Causey's action is expected to clear away the obstacles hitherto obstructing the provisioning of Vienna.

The Ukrainian envoy to Washington, M. Holczinski, has arrived in Vienna on his way to America.

Philippine Islands An Important Market

As an export market the Philippine Islands are becoming increasingly important. For the first eight months of 1918 exports from the islands totaled $86,644,000 and imports $62,154,000. Approximately 75% of this business was with the United States.

Merchants contemplating extending their markets to the Philippine Islands and the Far East will find adequate banking connections of distinct advantage. The Citizens National Bank maintains a fully equipped foreign department affording every facility for the promotion of American business interests in foreign fields.

William Allen White, one of the American delegates to the Princes' Island conference, wrote to us just before he left for Europe,

"If I were a rich man, I certainly would spend a thousand dollars on introducing The New Republic. Not that I always agree with it: I don't. Sometimes I snort like a bull when I read something in it: But I feel that it is free, and I feel that it is conscientious, and I know that it is intelligent - and after that disagreement is a pleasure."

If The New Republic means as much as that to Mr. White, isn't it probable that it can mean a good deal to you? Especially now with the world in flux.

Devastated Territory Presents Sharp Contrast to Snug Villages Along the Rhine.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

VERDUN, Feb. 11.—I have just seen the saddest sight in the world. I have just come over the snow mantled graveyard north of here that not long ago was a battlefield, where in the Meuse-Argonne strugle troops of the First American Army delivered the blow to the German military machine.

That desolate stretch is more than the graveyard of tens of thousands, yes, hundreds of thousands, of brave men; it is one of many such graveyards that stretch across France, the burial place of homes and hopes.

Some five years ago there were smiling villages, fertile fields, and busy shops. Then for four years the hoarse throats of countless cannon drowned the song of industry. Now while silence rules that dreary stretch, and nature's blanket cannot hide the wounds nor her charm conceal the desolation, the wind has blown the snow from blackened rafters down into the streets where it lies because there are no hands to sweep it away. And across the fields unnumbered depressions tell that beneath there are shell holes, and over the fields stick up everywhere pathetic little crosses, and all is silence.

Silence Where Battle Raged.

War has come and gone and left its curse. While war was here, and its noise and human cries filled that stretch, it seemed so different. But now the guns have gone and the soldiers departed, and the lumbering camions are somewhere else and the laughs and cries of soldiers are heard no more, and all is desolation. Winter's wind sweeps down the icy run of the Meuse and howls through the lofty ruins of Montfaucon and there is no answer. Here and there in the ruins of some village one sees squads of American soldiers making an effort at clearing the ruins, but the sound of their voices only emphasizes the deathly silence where one passes on. It is a weird scene, a heart-gripping scene that stretches today along the Meuse.

When the history of the war is written America's big chapter will have its setting in the triangle from Verdun to Clermont, thence up to Sedan, and back along the Meuse. That is where we whipped the Germans. Come with me, then, over the stretch. Let us come down through Montmedy, whose huge craters show where American naval guns, firing from Verdun, cut the German Army's main-line railroad. We leave a fair number of civilians in this town and move on toward Stenay. By the roadside lie telegraph poles where the Germans cut them and left them in their retreat. Outside of Stenay we reach the lines of German trenches where so many Germans died.

Snow half fills these hideous scars upon the landscape, but it cannot blot out their sinister array. Here a black blot shows where the drift has fallen into a dugout door. Ugly barbed wire sticks through the white blanket in a thousand places. Here, where last Winter's snow was scattered in flurries by many shells and trampled with the boots of countless boches, now all is still.

Stenay, except for the snow, looks the same as when we passed through it some three months ago. There are, I believe, fifteen civilians living in Stenay, and a few soldiers of our army who wonder why. The streets have been cleared of débris, but the rest of the wreckage remains. A housetop careens in crazy fashion, resting where some big shell lifted it and let it down again. Broken water pipes stick out from the ruins, and down by the river stands the wreck that the Germans left of Stenay Bridge. Here and there are piles of war débris, unromantic and unbeautiful.

Sedan Untouched.

Leaving to itself the territory northward to Sedan, which the war left fairly untouched, because the Germans had to run for their lives when they quit there, let us go westward over the road to Buzancy, over the pontoon bridge built by Americans with boats captured from the Germans on the Marne east of Château-Thierry in July. We pass Launeville, destroyed and ruined, and go into the forest of Dieulet, where the German machine gunners for three weeks obeyed Ludendorff's orders to let no Americans cross the Meuse at any cost. We bump over holes where the engineers in their haste could not make a complete job of filling up the trenches which cut the highway. There had not been any one over the road since the snow fell, and one feels as though he were exploring an unknown region.

Past villages and the wrecks of villages we go where no soul welcomes one, villages whence the inhabitants have gone and where there is nothing left for them to return to.

We reach Buzancy. Here several hundred civilians with the help of American negro troops have done much repair work on such houses as are deemed fit to live in. Half wrecked, a château at the east end of the town, where the Americans had their headquarters, stands in snow-covered dignity. From Buzancy our road leads southward toward Grand Pré. It was up this road that the doughboys mounted motor trucks and chased the Germans on Nov. 2, when we made the big break through. All that is left of Le Mort Homme, that little village which saw so much bloodshed, sticks atop a hill like a sore thumb. Grand Pré has been mentioned somewhat by soldiers and German prisoners, but it looks as if the only thing to do is to wipe what's left of it off the map and start all over again.

Three weeks as a target for American guns and a like time as a target boche guns about riddled this pretty little town, which is remarkable for its relatively large number of wooden buildings. This meant a larger number of fires and consequently more desolation. There always seems to be something more tragic about a half-ruined village than one completely ruined. When nothing but crumbled stones is left one accepts it as a complete loss, but where there remain half-standing buildings, when the village church walls shelter ruins within, the sadness seems more poignant; it seems easier to picture what was there before.

St. Juvin a Twisted Wreck.

We move down the road toward Varennes, and on this road the ruin is complete. St. Juvin's wreckage has not been mended, and on the east side of the highway still stretch the numberless foxholes that our dougboys dug there last October when they took those heights one day and had to hold the boche counterattacks that night. The snow falls into each, making it distinct. The wreck of the railroad station, riddled by German '75s, stands amid its torn and twisted rails sticking in the air in every direction, their black lines standing out against the snow.

North of Apremont on the left side of the road stand the old German dugouts in which the 42d Division had uncomfortable headquarters for two weeks.

We reach Varennes. Varennes unfortunately stood on a hill just back of the Hindenburg line. That is enough to say that as a ruin it is complete. No civilians are here, but a few colored soldiers, living in cellars, spend their time tidying up the wreckage which effort in its net result seems to amount to killing time. Varennes was our tank headquarters once, and near the church stand the wrecks of two of these gallant little war machines. Off to the west one imagines he hears the rat, rat, rat of machine guns as the 77th once more fights its five weeks' of gruelling and heart-testing flight in the Argonne woods.

Just to the south stands the wreck of the bridge. The river is frozen now and giant icicles hang from a three-story stone house, built into the bank so solidly that it could not be blasted out.

Down the road a short distance to the Hindenburg line we go. One can tell Bourelles only by the great crater that the boche blew in the road. When we reach this we know we are standing where the doughboys first started ahead on Sept. 26 in the greatest battle in which Americans ever fought. The fields on either side resemble an angry sea that is frozen. Underneath that covering there is not a square inch that has not its trench or its shellhole, and the wind has blown the snow into all sorts of fantastic drifts. There is no sign of life anywhere.

Soldiers Still in Old Headquarters.

Back to Varennes and toward Montfaucon we go. We pass Chehery, in whose cellars we had headquarters last Fall, supplemented by some shacks. There are soldiers living in these shacks still. The road to Montfaucon skirts the Bois la Lancourt, where many Americans met their death in the first vain effort to capture the stronghold of Montfaucon.

We reach the hollow just south of the big hill on which the town of Montfaucon once stood. The last time I was here there were some sixty 155s sending peace propaganda into the German line. That day I visited the 3d Division's headquarters in the cellar of a house on the north side of Montfaucon, and had to take refuge three stories under ground when the Germans trained enough guns on that hill to send twenty shells a minute for fifteen minutes. They hit the house above our refuge three times. Today there is no sound here.

On that day after the fit of shelling I stood with Lincoln Eyre and watched with the naked eye the battleline two miles to the north, where one could plainly see the falling barrages of both sides and watch the infantry lines surge back and forth.

I looked today over that scene. There were stretches of snow leading up to stretches of stark tree trunks and covered scrubble. That was all that was to be seen. As for the town itself, there is nothing left, not enough to shelter a snowbird.

Three Persons Left in Dun sur Meuse.

From Montfaucon we went east to the Meuse and north to Dun sur Meuse. Here we found three civilians, an old man and two women, living in two rooms of what had once been a six-room house. They were waiting for a chance to get away. Certainly one could see few reasons why they should stay where they were unless they liked the job of being caretakers to a graveyard.

We went south along the Verdun road on the east side of the river. The ruin here is an old story, four years old, for when the Crown Prince tried his ill-fated drive on Verdun everything hereabouts was done to death. Here and there sticks up the entrance to a burrow in which soldiers lived for four long years. The wreckage of no house sticks up more than a few feet.

At Charny we cross the Meuse and take the road to Dead Man's Hill. This furnishes the best view of the hills northwest of Verdun. I have always thought that this was the most desolate spot of all the war's desolation. Three hundred thousand men died here during the war. Not only have the villages that once smiled here disappeared but for miles in every direction there is not one tree standing. There is not one stump more than a foot high. Everything was swept away.

Standing there atop that historic hill, one sees only furrowed snow fields. One cannot even see the bleached bones of human habitations. One can only imagine the ugly trenches one knows are there. One knows that shellholes cause these irregularities in the snow's surface, but one cannot see them. There is not a snowbird or a rabbit or anything to recall that this was once one of the richest parts of beautiful France. It is the acme of desolation.

Somehow one cannot think of this silence as the silence of peace. Knowing what lies under the snow, one can only feel it as the silence of desolation. The hum of the motor is welcome because it breaks the silence that hurts.

Few Civilians in Verdun.

Back to the Meuse and down toward Verdun we make our way. Over the hills we catch a sight in the dying day of the solid looking walls that the Hun could not batter down. These walls, reaching far into the bowels of the earth and sheltering a fortress that would not yield, are capped with snow. We enter the north gate and a street that has been cleared long ago of débris. There is pile after pile of stones, neatly standing by the street side. The old cathedral on the hill has its wounds half shrouded in white. The railroad station, whose roof has fallen, looks more sombre than ever.

There are only a few civilians here, for no house of Verdun was left untouched, and most of them are only piles of brick and stone. All around, however, one sees the khaki of Americans, men of the Second Army, who are held in support of the Third Army of occupation. Up the steep hill we go and into the Verdun citadel, where warmth and food await us.

Here the soldiers are anxious to hear what their comrades on the Rhine are doing. When they are told that the soldiers on the Rhine like them want only to go home, they remark how much more do they, who live in cellars and ruins, want to board a transport.

Contrast to Scenes in Germany.

Seated here in the bowels of this grim old citadel tonight, I, who have just come from among those who made the desolation that I saw today, cannot help thinking what a pity it is that the Peace Conference couldn't sit atop Montfaucon Hill. One's fancy also makes one imagine the tone of Ebert's speech, had he made it in Verdun instead of Weimar. One wonders if the German people, snug and comfortable in their beautiful homes along the Rhine, will ever learn of what their armies did in France, and one wonders if they did know, if it would make any difference in their arrogance. For it doesn't worry the German up in Coblenz what happened to the French in Verdun—it doesn't worry him in the least. He was told four years ago that his army had to ruin Verdun to defend Germany and he believes today what he was told four years ago—anyhow he says he does. And to convert him appeals to me as being the hardest job confronting the civilized world.

In every ruined village I saw along the Meuse today I semed to recall another village on the Rhine. Those villages on the Rhine have neat and happy homes, the streets were filled today with children pulling sleds, with men and women in furs; those streets were filled with life. The streets of the villages along the Meuse were not filled with children and sleighs today; there were no men and women in furs; they were filled with death.

MAY TAKE CONTROL OVER AIR FLIGHTS

Peace Conference Commission Is Considering a Plan Offered by British.

PARIS, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—The Commission on International Control of Ports, Waterways, and Railways is considering a proposed assertion of jurisdiction over aerial international flights. The British Air Ministry has prepared an elaborate convention which will be submitted to the Peace Conference.

The International Aviation Conference soon to meet here will also take up questions of great importance, such as how far national control of the air may go, passports, customs, reciprocal landing facilities, aerial police, and the settlement of damages. Civilian flights between nations are now impossible, because of the absence of essential regulations. Many enterprises, such as that of preparing a Paris to London air service, have been delayed in consequence.

Rear Admiral H. S. Knapp will represent the United States in the Aviation Conference.

REDS PIERCE LINE OF ALLIES IN NORTH

Capture Town and Blockhouses, but Are Driven Out in Counterattack.

ARCHANGEL, Feb. 11, (Associated Press.)—Bolshevist forces have resumed the offensive in the region of Sredmakrenga. For a brief time last night the Bolsheviki occupied several allied blockhouses after penetrating the town, but were driven out by a British and Russian counterattack. The fighting continued today.

Patrol activity continues on the Kadish sector, but the American, British, and Russian troops maintain the gains made in the offensive last week. On the Pinega sector, east-southeast of Archangel, Russian partisan forces drove back the Bolsheviki yesterday.

The "French Foreign Legion," which is composed of Russian volunteer troops trained at Archangel by French officers, is now fighting on the Kadish front.

The weather continues clear and cold along the entire front. The days are rapidly growing longer and there is now eight hours of daylight, increasing the length of the engagements.

NO MENACE TO CHINA, JAPANESE REASSERT

Authoritative Denial Made at Washington of the Prevalent Reports.

ALL TREATIES TO COME OUT

British, Italian, and French Arrangements with Tokio Are Now Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Denial was made in an authoritative Japanese quarter today that the Tokio Government had made any threat to China against the publication by the latter Government of so-called secret treaties between the two nations.

It was also authoritatively stated that no secret treaty existed between the two Governments; that the treaties of May, 1915, had been given to the press and published, and that no treaties had been negotiated since that time. It was asserted that these treaties, with the special arrangements which flowed out from them and which had been made public in the past in the form of official translations by the Japanese Foreign Office, embraced all the demands that Japan had made upon China.

The explanation was made in the same authoritative quarter that Japan had gone no further than to instruct the Japanese Minister at Peking to suggest to the Chinese Foreign Office that, in view of the friendly relations existing between the two nations, it seemed to the Tokio Government inadvisable that there should be any anti-Japanese agitation undertaken at Paris by members of the Chinese Peace Commission. It was explained that, while no treaty has been made between China and Japan since 1915, there has been a subsequent exchange of notes between the Peking and Tokio Governments, but that in each instance these notes related to loans advanced by Japanese capitalists to the Central Government of China, and that, so far as these were concerned, there had been no threat of foreclosure against China.

The new Government of Japan instituted a new policy with respect to loans to China, which was defined in a formal statement communicated both to the press and to foreign Governments, the object of which is decared to be to guarantee that financial support given to China shall be employed for non-political uses. The Japanese Government, together with the allied Governments, advised the Chinese Government last December in identic notes of the necessity of China's composing her internal differences. The effect of the unrestricted use of loans obtained by China, it was said, would be to defeat the object of the advice given by the associated Governments, as the Peking Government would, if permitted, devote the loans to the prosecution of the war against the revolutionary elements in the south of China.

Some annoyance has been occasioned in Japanese circles here by the charge of the Chinese peace delegation that documents were stolen from them in Tokio, and that, therefore, they are not able to present important papers to the Peace Conference. The report was characterized as ridiculous by the Japanese, who in the first instance say it is false, that no theft was reported by the delegation to the Japanese police authorities, and also that, having free use of ample cable facilities, the Chinese delegation in a few days could have obtained from Peking copies of any or all documents alleged by them to have been stolen.

The Japanese, it was gathered, take the position that if the Chinese Government desires to make public the terms of the contracts for loans supplied by Japan to China it is at liberty to do so. They believe that the associated Governments are already cognizant of every such contract. It was not customary, it was stated, for Governments to make public such contracts any more than for private concerns or individuals to do so.

Japan's Ultimatum of May, 1915.

The text of the ultimatum addressed by Japan to China on May 7, 1915, which resulted in the acceptance by China of the Japanese demands which were embodied in the treaties and exchanges of notes signed on May 25 of that year, was obtained here today. The official translation of the ultimatum follows:

"In opening the negotiations with the Chinese Government the Imperial Government was actuated by the desire to adjust matters to meet the new situation created by the war between Japan and Germany, and of strengthening, in the interest of a firm and lasting peace in the Far East, the bond of amity and friendship between Japan and China by removing from the relations of the two countries various causes of misunderstanding and suspicion.

"Since the Imperial Government first presented their proposal to the Chinese Government in January last twenty-five conferences have been held between the representatives of the two Governments. In these successive conferences the Imperial Government presented their side of the case fully and frankly, while at the same time, animated by a spirit of conciliation and concord, they gave every possible consideration to the argument advanced by the Chinese Government. This fact, the Imperial Government believe, affords abundant proof of their sincere desire to bring the present negotiations to a peaceful conclusion. With the close of the twenty-fourth conference on April 17 discussions on all questions were practically brought to an end.

"Thereupon the Imperial Government, in deference to the expressed wishes of the Chinese Government, considerably modified their original proposals and prepared an amended project, showing no small concessions on their part. This they presented to the Chinese Government on the twenty-sixth of the same month, with the announcement that should the Chinese Government accept it, Kiao-chau Bay, which is a point of no small importance in the Far East, commercially as well as strategically, and which cost Japan so much to take, would be returned to China at a proper time under fair and reasonable conditions.

"The reply which the Chinese Government gave on May 1 to this amended project of the Imperial Government was a total disappointment. It gave not only no indication of the Japanese amended project having been seriously examined by the Chinese Government, but also failed to show any appreciation of the friendly and generous offer of the Imperial Government. Japan, being now in possession of Kiao-Chau Bay, is under no obligation to return it to China. It is because of her desire to promote the friendly relations with China that Japan proposes to do so.

"The Imperial Government cannot conceal their keen disappointment at the utter disregard, on the part of the Chinese Government, of the sentiment which prompted them to make this offer. The Chinese Government, so far from showing an appreciation of the good-will of the Imperial Government in respect of Kiao-Chau Bay, even demanded its unconditional surrender, and called upon Japan to indemnify inevitable losses suffered by China in consequence of the war between Japan and Germany.

"Moreover, they presented several other demands in connection with the occupied territory and declared that they were entitled to participate in the coming peace negotiations between Japan and Germany. A demand like the unconditional surrender of Kiao-Chau Bay, or indemnification by Japan of inevitable losses suffered by China in consequence of the Japan-German war, is one that cannot be justly accepted by the Imperial Government. Nevertheless the Chinese Government declared the last reply to be their final decision. Any agreements that have already been or may hereafter be reached as to the other points would, therefore, be of no effect, unless those inadmissible demands of China are accepted by Japan. In other words, the last reply of the Chinese Government, taken as a whole, amounts to nothing more than a rejection of the entire Japanese proposals.

"In several other respects the Chinese reply is no less unsatisfactory. As regards South Manchuria and Eastern Inner Mongolia, for instance, the Chinese Government ignored the universally recognized fact that these are the regions where, owing to geographical, political, and economical reasons, Japan has special interests which have been made the more preponderating as the result of the last two wars. Some of the proposals which the Imperial Government formulated with a conciliatory spirit on the basis of the declarations made by the Chinese representative at the conference were arbitrarily amended by the Chinese Government, thus nullifying the statement of their own responsible Minister, while in some others an inconsistent and therefore inadmissible amendment was introduced, showing thus no evidence of good faith and sincerity on their part.

Question of China's Sovereignty.

"As to the questions of advisers, land for schools and hospitals and supply of arms, the Imperial Government merely asked to leave on record what had been declared by the Chinese representative, while as regards the railway concessions in South China, they were satisfied with a promise that the matter would be favorably considered, in case there was no objection on the part of the other interested powers. These proposals affected in no wise China's sovereignty or treaty obligations, but the Chinese Government refused to give their consent on the ground that they involved the question of China's sovereignty or of treaty obligations.

"The Imperial Government extremely regret that they find in the attitude of the Chinese Government little use of further continuing the present negotiations. Yet the Imperial Government, who are ever solicitous for the preservation of peace in the Far East, prompted by the desire to bring the present negotiations to a satisfactory close and avoid the development of any serious complication in the situation, have decided, as a mark of their sincere good will toward the Chinese Government, to withdraw from the present negotiations and reserve for future discussion the whole Group V., except the one item respecting Fukien Province, about which agreement has been reached between the representatives of the two Governments.

"The Imperial Government therefore advises the Chinese Government that they will, in appreciation of the good will of the Imperial Government, accept without amendment all items, included in Group I., II., III., and IV., together with the items in Group V. relating to Fukien, as embodied in the Japanese amendment project of April 26.

"In case the Imperial Government fail to receive from the Chinese Government before 6 P. M. of May 9 a satisfactory response to their advice they will take such independent action as they may deem necessary to meet the situation."

READY TO PUBLISH TREATIES.

Britain, Italy, and France Made Arrangements with Tokio.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Baron Nobuaki Makino, head of the Japanese delegation at the Peace Conference, has been instructed to disclose all the unpublished treaties between China and Japan, says a Reuter dispatch from Tokio today.

TOKIO, Feb. 10, (Associated Press.)—Kijuro Shidehara, Vice Foreign Minister of Japan, speaking today regarding the publication of Chinese treaties with Japan, said that the latter had "simply called to China's attention the established procedure, according to which neither Government has a right to publish confidential correspondence without previously consulting the other." M. Shidehara spoke for Viscount Uchida, Foreign Minister, who is suffering from pneumonia.

"Japan has no intention to interfere with any demands or contentions which the Chinee prefer to present to the Peace Conference," he said. "Accordingly, Peking and Paris reports to the contrary are absolutely untrue."

PARIS, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—The Chinese delegation to the Peace Conference has been advised that there have been many interpellations in the Chinese Parliament from members representing both the northern and southern provinces, demanding fuller information concerning Japanese and Chinese relations, as laid before the conference.

The Chinese delegates say that they are ready to submit all secret agreements with Japan to the council of the five great powers, which probably will consider the matter at the end of the present week.

BORDEN AS AMBASSADOR?

Report That Premier Is Booked for Washington Not Confirmed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Daily Express says it understands that Sir Robert Borden, Premier of the Dominion of Canada, has been offered the post of British Ambassador in Washington. Sir Robert is now attending the Peace Conference.

PARIS, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—Sir Robert Borden, when asked today regarding a report connecting his name with the British Ambassadorship to the United States, replied, with a smile: "I do not believe I have any observations to make regarding the report."

BRITISH MINERS REJECT TERMS

of production in trades whose products form a staple of other occupations, think also of the consequences upon the general trade situation. The Government proposed a strong representative committee, on which the miners would be represented, to inquire into this question.

When the miners met at Southport President Smillie announced that the committee having the matter in charge had decided against acceptance of the Government's terms. These terms were discussed, after which the conference voted to reject them.

The decision will, if followed by a strike, which seems likely, create an extremely serious situation, as the coal shortage is already embarrassing, both to manufacturers and domestic consumers.

While the first object of the miners is to absorb surplus labor, consequent to the demobilization, there is declared to be behind the movement a determination on the part of the miners permanently to nationalize the industry

Labor Attacks George Program.

While the press generally approves Lloyd George's program, it fails to satisfy the Parliamentary Labor Party, which has prepared an amendment to the reply to the speech from the throne, regretting the absence of definite proposals dealing with "the present cases of industrial unrest and for securing, as regards wages and working hours, conditions of labor which will establish a higher standard of life and social well-being for the people."

Mr. Lloyd George's proposals are also adversely criticised by the radical section of the press, which regards them as vague and unlikely to be carried out by what is alleged to be a "reactionary Parliament."

ANGLO-AMERICAN CONCORD IN PARIS

Progress of the Conference Revealing a Fundamental Identity of Aims.

PESSIMISTS ARE CONFUTED

Understanding Between English-Speaking Peoples Never So Complete as Today.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Pessimists predicted that the Peace Congress would disclose a fundamental and irreconcilable difference between the British and American peoples. There were, they asserted, old standing grievances and disputes which must be revived and inflamed by the discussion of such difficult subjects as the freedom of the seas, the British colonial policy, and the differences between our tariff systems. The progress of the Conference to date emphatically repudiates the pessimists. For the first time in history the heads of the British and American Governments, with their respective Cabinet Ministers and advisers, have had an opportunity of exchanging views, not only on the burning questions of the day, but also upon the principles and ideals which underlie the policies of the two great English speaking democracies.

Instead of disclosing irreconcilable differences, the discussions have shown that the aims of the two peoples are fundamentally identical. They have both the same love of liberty and sense of responsibility toward each other and toward the more backward peoples of the world. Both are stubbornly opposed to military agrandizement and wars of conquest. Both peoples are determined to put an end to the obsolete forms of diplomacy by which nations were linked up by secret treaties for the sake, perhaps, of a dynasty or a nice adjustment of the balance of power. Their remedy is to dig up old feuds and long-standing grievances and plant them in the sunlight of public opinion, where they will wither away and be forgotten.

Advantage of Varying Views.

Naturally there are differences of opinion between the two Governments. The British and American methods are often different, and, although they are always striving toward the same objective, they do not always agree as to the best road. But there is nothing here to encourage the pessimists. It has been found of positive advantage to both Governments that they should be confronted with different points of view and sometimes have their schemes critically examined.

Both nations will find real advantage in the frank interchanges of views which are now taking place, and the blending of British and American thought will be one of the most important contributions of the final peace settlement. The American opinion represents all the energy and enthusiasm of a young nation anxious to put into practice the ideals conceived in the New World and ready to try any experiment so long as it is in the right direction. The British statesmen seem ready and anxious to examine the plans of their American colleagues in the light of the vast experience of the British Empire, which for centuries has had to face perplexing problems in every corner of the world. Nothing has impressed the American delegation more than the presence in Paris of the representatives of the self-governing dominions. Here they see men who, like themselves, come from new countries and civilizations still in process of development.

Empire a Symbol of the League.

America sees in the British Empire the symbol of what the League of Nations will become. It appeals vastly to the American imagination to see the association of self-governing dominions bound to the mother country by invisible links of common ancestry, purpose, and ideals. The Americans like and are interested in the practical British method of neglecting the narrow written constitution and adapting their system to the needs and development of the Empire.

It is no mere platitude to say that the American and British people have never understood each other so well as they do today, and it is mutually true with the British and Americans that to understand is to appreciate. As this new year of the Anglo-American relations has begun so it should continue, a natural, healthy plant, and not a hothouse product of Government propaganda. The British and Americans have reached the stage where they can speak their minds frankly to each other. If there is a difference of opinion it is all the better that it should be bluntly stated. Americans and Britons may in future argue, quarrel, and even abuse each other, but never again mistrust each other.

And so the relations between the two countries should be left on this sound basis. Organized demonstrations of public good will and pledges of good feeling and mutual support are not needed. The English-speaking peoples are averse to this sort of thing. Moreover, it is unnecessary. Such is the feeling of which one hears expression on all sides after two months of effort at close quarters.

FOUR RUSSIAN FACTIONS EXPECTED AT PRINKIPO

In Addition, the Esthonian and Lettish Governments Will Send Men.

PARIS, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—Prospects are brightening for the assembling of at least four of the Russian factions at the conference to be held on the Princes' Islands.

Word has come from the Ukraine that the Government of that former part of Russia will participate in the conference, and it is reported that the indecision of the Government of General Denikine has given way to a desire to join the conference. The Government of the Crimea has already accepted the invitation, as has the Russian Bolshevist Government.

It was announced tonight that the Esthonian and Lettish Governments had accepted the invitation of the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference to attend the conference. Both have asserted that they are independent Governments, no longer a part of Russia, but willing to participate in a movement tending to meet the difficulties in which Russia is placed. It was also learned that the Lithuanian Government will accept the invitation to the conference.

It is beginning to appear that a sufficient number of other factions will meet the Bolsheviki and the Entente and American representatives to assure the success of the conference plan. This, however, is believed to depend upon the willingness of the Moscow Soviet to give certain guarantees, such as the cessation of hostilities and the withdrawal of the Bolshevist forces from the provinces which they have invaded. It is by no means certain that the Soviet Government will agree to any such guarantees.

AMERICANS BARRED FROM LITHUANIA

Germans Refuse to Allow Officers of Food Commission to Enter Occupied District.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—A dispatch to The London Times from Warsaw says that the Germans gave another exhibition of high-handedness last week in refusing for the second time to permit the passage of allied officers into the Lithuanian districts held by them. This time the officers were Americans who, though acting on behalf of the same Food Commission which is elsewhere taking steps to provision Germany, and though the object of their journey was to discover the needs of the population of the border district around Grodno, were none the less stopped by German sentries and prevented from continuing their journey.

Conducted before a junior German officer in the village of Baciuty, Lieut. Col. Grove, senior of the two American officers, with great self-restraint and courtesy, insisted on his right to passage, and explained anew the nature of his mission.

The German officer telephoned to Bialystock and gave Colonel Grove's message. The answer came from a certain von Schröder, a Captain of the Leibhussar Regiment in Bialystock, who, speaking on behalf of the German command, declared that all he had to say was that the American officers were to go back to Poland. When asked for his reasons, he blankly refused to give any and broke off the conversation.

AMERICAN LOSSES IN SIBERIA

Casualties to Feb. 9 Given as 324 All Told.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A cablegram today from the headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces in France gave the total casualties in American forces in Siberia up to Feb. 9 as ten officers and 314 men killed, died of wounds and disease, wounded and missing in action.

The total was divided as follows: Killed in action, two officers, sixty men; died of wounds, one officer, fourteen men; died of disease, fifty-four men; died of accident, five men; wounded severely, two officers, sixty-seven men; wounded slightly, three officers, thirty men; wounded, degree undetermined, two officers, fifty-three men; missing in action, thirty-one men.

These casualties are being published individually in the regular casualty lists, the War Department announced.

An Established Business That Is Growing Rapidly

ONE of our clients has developed a healthy though comparatively small business in connection with a patented, self-filling fountain pen. He wishes to dispose of his patents, business and good will for reasons which will be explained in an interview.

The enterprise was established five years ago, and month by month sales have shown a steady increase, January, 1919, being the biggest month in the history of the business.

The pen is guaranteed for life and sells at a popular price. Merit has been its sole salesman. Without a line of consumer advertising or the aid of a solitary salesman, more than 100 accounts have been secured with leading jobbers and dealers throughout the United States and Foreign Countries. The pen has been purchased officially by the United States Government for the past four years and is not dependent upon war conditions. It is sold also in more than ten foreign countries. It is a sure repeater at home and abroad.

As a clean-cut, congenial business for a man who is seeking an established and profitable venture, entirely devoid of the burdensome details incident to most commercial enterprises, this is an ideal investment opportunity.

In the hands of a progressive individual or a wide-awake firm willing to employ modern selling methods, the possibilities for expansion are limited only by the world's demand for fountain pens. The merit and quick-selling certainty of the pen have been conclusively demonstrated. You are not asked to accept any unsupported statements. The ledgers amply substantiate every claim made herewith. Banking references will be submitted.

Considering the security involved and the possibilities for future profits and growth, we believe the asking price of this business is eminently reasonable. For further information please address, preferably by letter—G. C. SHERMAN.

VISTULA FLEET FORMED

Brest-Litovsk Occupied by Poles—Germans Extend Martial Law in Posen.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 11, (via Copenhagen.)—The Tageblatt publishes interesting information from its Thorn correspondent regarding the Polish forces.

Modelin is a base for the new Polish Vistula fleet, under command of a former Austro-Hungarian Admiral, consisting of motor boats and small steamers that in pre-war times used to ply the Vistula between Warsaw and Thorn and Danzig, with passengers and freight.

The Polish forces no longer consist of undisciplined guerrilla bands, but now form a well-organized army, causing the German forces opposed to them great difficulties. The officers are Russian, Austro-Hungarian, and German of Polish descent. The men recently were all volunteers, but conscription has now been introduced, applying for the present to males born in 1897, 1898, and 1899. Instruction and drills are left almost entirely to former German officers and non-commissioned officers of Polish descent, and are conducted in genuine pre-war German style.

Former Russian and Austro-Hungarian officers must go through a course at the Warsaw Officers' School to learn the German methods before they receive their commissions. Many Polish and Russian students, sons of land owners, also take this course, after which they join the Polish army.

The Polish cavalry consists entirely of Uhlan regiments, wearing the national Czapka Ulanka and carrying lances. The infantry wear what uniforms they have, the Polish eagle on the cap or helmet indicating the cause for which they are fighting.

The higher ranks are filled almost exclusively by Russians, because only a few Austro-Hungarians and no Germans of Polish descent are available.

In artillery the Poles have only what the Germans left behind in Warsaw, Posen, and Galicia. They also took possession of 180 German airplanes in Warsaw and considerably more in Posen and Galicia. Nevertheless they do not seem able to organize an efficient air service.

The discipline is very strict, and Soldiers' Councils are not permitted.

WARSAW, Feb. 10, (Associated Press.)—During his address in the Polish Assembly today, General Joseph Pilsudski, former Military Dictator of Poland, referred to the close bonds between this country and the Allies. His words were cheered. Just before the afternoon adjournment Prince Radziwill, the senior member of the Assembly, read a telegram announcing that Brest-Litovsk had been occupied by Polish troops.

BASLE, Feb. 12, (Havas.)—The state of martial law proclaimed recently by German authorities in the region of Kulmsee, Posen, has been extended to other localities in the vicinity, according to a dispatch from Danzig.

Polk Announces Formal Closing of Negotiations for Allied Control of Eastern Railroads.

DESIGNED TO AID PEOPLE

Rights of Russia and China to be Scrupulously Respected—Stevens Heads Technical Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk today announced that the United States Government had now accepted formally the proposal of the Japanese Government for a plan to secure the restoration of railway traffic in Siberia.

"The agreement," said Mr. Polk, "is the result of discussion begun last August, before the signing of the armistice. It has been accepted because it offers an effective means to assist the Russian population of Siberia, which has been suffering for many months from a gradual collapse of railway transportation. Not only have the people lacked many necessities of daily life, such as shoes, clothing, and agricultural machinery, but they have been wholly unable to return to their normal occupations of marketing their own considerable stores of dairy products and grain.

"In May, 1917," Mr. Polk explained, "John F. Stevens was sent to Siberia, and a few months later was followed by the Russian Railway Service Corps, composed of American railway engineers, who were to assist the Russian railway administration, and thus contribute in carrying out the expressed purpose of the United States to aid Russia in tangible form. The arteries of life in Russia, as elsewhere, are the railways. The problems, especially in Siberia, are similar to those in America, where the long haul is almost the rule and certainly not the exception.

"Under the plan of operation which is now to be effected, the Siberian Railway system, which includes the Chinese Eastern Railway, is to be supervised by an interallied committee, the Chairman of which is to be a Russian. In addition to Russia, Japan, and the United States, the countries asked to be represented on the committee are Great Britain, France, Italy, and China. The technical and economic management of the railways will be in the hands of the technical board, under the Presidency of Mr. Stevens. A military board will co-ordinate matters affecting military transportation arising from the presence in Siberia of military forces of the United States, the Allies, and Russia.

"The purpose of the agreement is to assist the Russians in Siberia in regaining their normal conditions of life and has been reached upon a definite understanding that the railways are to be operated for the interests of the people of Siberia. The United States and Japan have expressly voiced their disinterested purpose not to infringe on any existing rights either of Russia or, where the Chinese Eastern is concerned, of China. The associated Governments have been unanimous as to the urgency of the situation.

"The understanding," Mr. Polk concluded, "was broached before the conclusion of the armistice, but the problem of aiding the people in Siberia remains the same and has become even more urgent. Russian railway officials have repeatedly urged the assistance of Mr. Stevens and expressed their cordial and special desire that they should be helped. Their co-operation is relied upon as a vital factor for success in assisting their fellow countrymen."

East Side Leaders of Reds.

Dr. Simons took the stand at 11 o'clock in the morning. The first questions asked by Major Humes led to his statement that to a very considerable extent the Bolshevist ascendancy in Russia was due to the influx of men from the east side of New York.

"I should like," said Dr. Simons before he went into detail concerning the east side agitators, "to make it plain that among my best friends and among the finest Americans I have known are men of Jewish blood. The unpleasant facts that I shall have to disclose in nowise refer to them. The persons that have gone into Russia and joined in this diabolical thing over there are apostate Jews, men who deny their God and who have forsaken the religion and the teachings of their fathers. I have talked over this matter with some of our leading Jewish citizens and they fully realize the situation, and among those who are helping us to fight it are great numbers of rabbis and other splendid citizens of the Jewish faith."

Dr. Simons answered a question put by Senator Overman as to the reported pro-German sentiments and activities of the monk Rasputin and the late Czarina.

"The persons who have made those statements," replied Dr. Simons, "are persons of the highest possible standing and well qualified to make them."

"Within two months after the March (1917) revolution pro-Germanism was found to be at work in every phase of Russian life. The agitators came from all parts, hundreds of them, and these latter included many of the most active from the east side of New York.

"These Yiddish agitators from the New York east side followed in the trail of Trotzky, who was himself on the east side at the time of the Czar's overthrow. I have met hundreds of these east siders. I have seen them on the Nevsky Prospect and some of them called on me at my home in Petrograd.

"Let me make it plain that these men are apostate Jews. I don't like this unpleasant feature of the case, but it happens to be the truth, and must therefore come out.

German Influence Strong.

"And so the revolution was but a few weeks old before some of us became impressed with the fact that there was a strong apostate Yiddish element at work in the Bolshevist machine. Likewise there was a very strong German element in it, and that such was the case is shown in an able thesis worked out by Nicholas Boredine."

"You have referred to the Bolshevist element that got into Russia from the east side of New York. Do you believe that these people had any responsible part in the tragedy which led to the triumph of Bolshevism in Russia?" asked Senator Wolcott.

"I do not believe that the Bolshevist element could possibly have succeeded but for certain support that it received from the City of New York and from Germany," was the answer. "Referring to the German element, I might point out that simultaneousy with the coming into power of the Bolshevist régime all German newspapers in Russia, which had been suppressed by the old régime, reappeared. Everything that was pro-German or German was fostered.

"I might recall an interesting incident brought to my attention soon after Trotzky and Lenine gained control in Petrograd. Trotzky and his colleagues made their headquarters in the Smolny Institute. A professor in that institution informed me that one day he happened to enter the room where the Bolshevist leaders were assembled. He was surprised to hear them speaking in German and not in Russian. He saw German documents on the tables and around the tables with the Bolsheviki in conference with them were German army officers in the uniforms of their respective ranks."

Senator Wolcott remarked:

"You said that but for the support the Bolshevist movement got in New York it would have failed. Now, if that be true, it would appear that we have a problem right here at home."

Russian Element Submerged.

"Regarding that statement," replied Dr. Simons, "I will state that my best information is that in December of last year, in the Northern Commune of Petrograd, there was a Commune Government, the personnel of which may help to answer that question. The President of that Commune was a man named Apfelbaum. Whether he came from New York or not I do not know.

"However, the personnel of that Government numbered 388 persons. Of these men only sixteen were Russians. All the rest were apostate Jews, with one single exception, the exception being a former American negro pugilist who calls himself Professor Gordon.

"My information is that in the Bolshevist Government which had its headquarters in the Smolny Institute there were included 265 members who had come into Russia after the overthrow of the Czar from the east side of New York.

"In the short time I have been home I have also been impressed with the fact that a large percentage of the Bolshevist agitators at work over here are apostate Jews. A few days ago I went into the Rand Institute, in East Fifteenth Street, New York, to buy some of their literature, and it was about the most seditious stuff that I have ever seen anywhere. The majority of the people I saw in that place were the same type of people that I have seen in Petrograd.

"I have no hesitancy in saying that, from my observation, the dominating Bolshevist element in America is to be found in the east side of New York."

"Are any of these east siders, now in Petrograd, members of the Bolshevist Cabinet?" asked Senator Overman.

"Yes. A few days before I left Petrograd I had occasion to call on one of them. He was the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and call himself Sergius Zorin. He informed me that all citizens of the allied countries who were of the ages of 18 to 45 years inclusive would have to leave on or shortly after Oct. 1, and that those who remained would be prisoners of war.

"I asked him to modify that order and he said that if America would agree not to make an offensive against Russia something might be done. At that time, which was in October last, there was an awful terrorist atmosphere in Petrograd.

Bolsheviki Praised Robins.

"Zorin was very gracious. While I was talking to him Zorin said that he was very anxious to hear from his brother, Alexander Gunsberg, who, he stated, was Secretary to Colonel Raymond Robins, who had been in Russia for the American Red Cross. Robins had left Russia some time before.

"Zorin described Robins as the greatest of all Americans and said he hoped that he would be made Minister to Russia. Now, I have known Mr. Robins some time and I always thought highly of him until he came to Russia and embarrassed our Embassy. We, that is the Americans in Russia, felt that our splendid Embassy was entitled to all the support that we could give to it and that it was no time to complicate matters by even suggesting such a thing as the sending of an Ambassador to the Bolshevist Government.

"The Bolsheviki were against Governor Francis, the Ambassador, principally because of his open messages to the Russian people, in which he assured them that the United States was their friend but that the Governments of America and the Allies would never recognize the Brest-Litovsk treaty. In their propaganda papers the Bolsheviki described Robins as a man of the people, a former workman, and in contrast pictured Governor Francis as a typical representative of the capitalistic class. Time and again the suggestion was made that Robins should be made Ambassador."

"Did Robins make any statements in favor of the Bolshevist Government?" Senator Overman asked.

"He was reported to have done so, but I am not in a position to say that he did of my own knowledge."

Bitter Against Allies.

"Can you tell us the real attitude of the Bolsheviki so far as it regarded the two groups of belligerents in the war?" Senator Overman asked.

"Lenine and Trotzky were always saying bitter things against the Allies," was the answer. "They scattered posters in which they described the Allies as the 'blood-drinking and flesh-eating Allies.' They named France and England, but, as I recollect it, did not specify the United States, the reason, in the opinion of the allied diplomatic representatives, being what may be described as a sort of strategical trick. They figured it out that in the event Bolshevism failed, as they knew it might, they would need a land of refuge and they wanted the United States to be their asylum."

"You have referred to this negro, 'Professor Gordon,' who is an official of the Northern Commune. Is he from America, too?" asked Senator Overman.

"Yes. He is a former prizefighter, who, for a time, was employed as a doorkeeper at the American Embassy. His cards read 'Professor of Physical Culture.'"

"I want to revert again to the German element in this Bolshevist affair. Can you state specifically if it is out-and-out pro-German?" Senator Wolcott asked.

"The real Bolsheviki are avowedly anti-ally, and I have no hesitation in saying that they have a real affection for Germany. This fact has been proved time and time again."

Dr. Simons here told of his visits, disguished as a workman, to the meeting places of the Bolsheviki. He said that in conversation with the ignorant masses of the movement he found that few of them had any idea what Bolshevism really was.

He told of the haranguing of these people by agitators who traveled about the city in trucks. Many of these agitators, he added, he recognized as east siders he had met in Petrograd or who had been pointed out to him.

"To what was due more than to anything else the success of these Bolsheviki?" asked Senator King.

"To the cleverly worked-out program of terrorism and to the advocacy of the slaughter of what they call the capitalist class. The whole question might be summed up in their slogan: 'The security of the proletarian cause lies in putting a gun in the hands of the workmen.'"

Murders Number Thousands.

Dr. Simons told of witnessing the murder of two young men in front of his office in Petrograd, the killing taking place a few minutes before Ambassador Francis, who was his dinner guest that night, arrived at his home.

Asked to estimate the number of persons who had been murdered by the Bolsheviki, Dr. Simons replied that it was in the thousands, but that no man could at this time even approximate the number of the victims.

"The Bolsheviki never investigate. They kill on the spot, as a rule," he added.

Dr. Simons cited the case of two brothers. One was wanted by the Bolsheviki to answer a certain charge. They were unable to find the brother sought, so they killed the one against whom there was no charge or suspicion.

Blackmail and graft were everywhere recognized, said Dr. Simons. If a person could get the money, he said, it was generally possible to buy even one's life from the present régime. However, few had the money, and the killings went on. He said that twelve men entered his home and tried to blackmail his sister.

"What about the criminal element in the present régime?" Senator King asked.

"There is a large criminal element in the Bolshevist régime," was the answer. "The fact that the criminal has a big part in the movement is proved by the destruction in a public bonfire of court records, the destruction of prisons and the liberation of all criminals who are sympathetic with the cause. We know it to be a fact that some of the worst criminal characters in all Russia hold positions under the Bolshevist Government, while others are helping as agitators, while under the damnable system they call nationalization, the criminal is actively co-operating."

Girl Victims of Atrocities.

"What of the treatment of women and girls?" Senator King asked.

"That is a terrible question to answer. I might cite case after case in answer to it. Let me cite one of the worst.

"A few days before I left Petrograd, in October last, a woman of the highest culture, a woman more than fifty years of age, and a teacher for years in a famous imperial institute for the education of young girls, called on me. She was in hysterics. 'Why have I lived to see all this,' she sobbed.

"Then she told the story. The institute in which she taught is one of the finest buildings in Petrograd. She said that the Bolshevist authorities had barracked hundreds of the Red Guard in one wing of the building and in doing so issued orders that all girls of and between the ages of 16 and 18 years were to remain in the building.

"'I wish,' the poor woman exclaimed, as she tried to tell the rest of the horrible story, 'that I had died before this thing happened.'"

"And that," said Senator Wolcott, "was the result not of the act of irresponsible guards, but of the Bolshevist authorities?"

"Yes."

"In other words," said Senator King, "these poor little girls were the victims of the lust of these unspeakable creatures?"

"Yes, of the dirtiest pigs the world has ever seen. So vile no words can describe them.

"In another instance I was told of a group of young girls who were approached and advised to go out into the Nevsky Prospect and 'do as the prostitutes are doing.'"

"Do the Red Guards," Senator King asked, "rape, ravish, and despoil women at will?"

"They certainly do."

Compared to the I. W. W.

"You have heard," said Senator King, "of the I. W. W. here in America. I will ask you if you see any difference between that organization and the Bolshevist organization in Russia?"

"I am strongly convinced that in all main essentials the aims of the Bolsheviks and of the I. W. W. are identical. Minister of Posts and Telegraphs Zorin, who lived eight years on the east side, told me once that they expected to get Germany after Russia, and after Germany they would tackle the United States."

"That's a big job," remarked Senator Nelson.

"Do you know the extent of their appropriation for propaganda in other countries?" asked Senator Overman.

"I do not know the total, but we know that millions of rubles were appropriated for that work, a great deal of it for the work in India and China. They are also very active in England."

"Then is it not true that any American man or woman who gets up in a public place and speaks for Bolshevism is urging the overthrow of our Government and the institution of the horrors you have referred to in this country?"

"Yes, Sir, that is right."

"And, therefore, its apologists here are the enemies of the United States?"

"If they are not they are either mush-headed or muddle-headed."

In answer to a question regarding the status of women in Russia now, Dr. Simons stated that the Bolsheviki had started a definite program relative to women. He told of a decree in which women between the ages of 18 and 45 years were ordered before the commissaire "to be assigned a man with whom they are to live." When the Bolsheviki marry, one of the questions asked is "How long do you propose to be married?"

Dr. Simons testified that a catechism of atheism had been added to the curriculum of the Russian public schools.

"The Bolshevik," said the witness, "is not only an atheist but he also seeks to make all religions impossible. They assert that all misery is due to the superstition that there is a God. One of their officials told me: 'We now propose to enlighten our children, and with this purpose in view, we are issuing a catechism on atheism for use in all the schools.' The man who told me this was the Commissaire for Enlightenment and Education."

"Can you tell us anything of the treatment accorded the so-called bourgeoisie or middle classes?" Senator Nelson asked.

"Thousands upon thousands of them have been starved to death," Dr. Simons answered. "I have seen the walking shadows of these dying human beings in the streets of Petrograd. Thousands have dropped dead in their tracks. I have seen them myself. I have seen some of the finest men of the old days standing starving in the streets and with outstretched hands begging a few kopecks. I have been in the homes of the best people of Petrograd, in which there has been no bread for weeks. When I say the better class, I mean the people who believe in a clean handkerchief and a white shirt."

"What of the Red Army; what is it?"

"It is a mass of Letts, Chinese, Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, and unfortunate Russians who have been forced to serve. But for these outsiders there never would have been a nucleus for a Red Army."

One of the Senators present at the hearing remarked to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that he wondered if it would not be a wise move to put a clause in the new Immigration bill excluding all Letts from the United States.

In telling the story of the murder of men by tying them together and throwing them into a river, Dr. Simons gave as his authority a member of the Norwegian Legation in Petrograd. This official had seen the bodies, bound together, after they had been washed ashore. Dr. Simons also told of the massacre of priests, many of them executed in the Fortress of Kronstadt.

The hearing will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock to-morrow morning, when Mrs. Natalie Summers, the widow of a former American diplomatic official in Russia, will take the stand.

NO WHOLESALE DEPORTING.

Judge Knox Leaves Dinner to Issue Habeas Corpus Writs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration, said tonight that reports of prospective wholesale deportations of aliens were "unjustified."

"It is estimated that about 6,000 aliens are to be deported, the great majority because they are insane or otherwise public charges," Mr. Caminetti said. "Most of the rest are diseased or have been found guilty of offenses subjecting them to deportation. A few, comparatively, are agitators who are opposed to our form of government or all organized government.

"None of the aliens recently taken from Seattle to Ellis Island for deportation has any connection with the strikes at Seattle or elsewhere in the West. Deportees now in custody have been rounded up over a considerable period of time, but could not be deported before because of the shortage of shipping facilities. All reports that trains are being mobilized to deport anarchists or others are exaggerated."

At the request of a group of Socialists who have been active on behalf of the group of aliens who are at Ellis Island awaiting deportation, United States District Judge John C. Knox left the Lincoln dinner at the Waldorf last night to issue writs of habeas corpus, returnable today, for forty-nine of the fifty-eight undesirable radicals. Miss Caroline Lowe of Chicago, who was not allowed to confer with the aliens upon their arrival here because she was not able to furnish proper proof that she had authority to act as their counsel, was active in seeking the writs after a meeting of Socialists had been held in the Park Avenue Hotel. Representatives from the office of United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey reiterated the declaration made by Immigration Commissioner Byron Uhl on Tuesday that all the members of the party had full legal rights when they were convicted in Federal courts in the West, and that it would be of little avail to seek to reopen the cases.

BECK MAKES ATTACK ON WILSON POLICIES

Assails the President's Principles as a "Crazy Patchwork of Contradictions."

FEARS FOR CONSTITUTION

Says the Nation "Stands in a Stupor" While One Man Pledges the Country.

Standing beneath a portrait of Abraham Lincoln at the thirty-third Lincoln dinner of the Republican Club at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, James M. Beck, in a speech, assailed President Wilson, charging, among other things, that in violation of the Constitution he had ignored the Senate in conducting his foreign policy.

"Washington sagaciously remarked that the Constitution can be a undermined as well as overthrown," said Mr. Beck, "and, alas, today the times give it proof. That man is blind who cannot see that in the last four years the Constitution of my country has been steadily undermined and that the public opinion without which it would be only a scrap of paper has been slowly and surely impaired. I have lived long enough to see every fundamental principle of that document challenged, not by exceptional individuals, but by large groups of men, until today, to our shame and peril, it is doubtful whether the fundamental principles of the Constitution, if submitted to a plebiscite, as abstract principles rather than as parts of a great compact, would receive general support."

The speaker said that the principle of representative Government had been challenged by the initiative and referendum; the dual sovereignty of State and nation was about to be overthrown by "that illegitimate child of the Constitution," the prohibition amendment; constitutional limitations on the right of an individual against the tyranny of a majority were rendered null by the recall of judicial decisions; the sanctity of Judges destroyed by the recall of Judges and the great fundamental pillar, so highly valued by the fathers of the country, that the foreign policy of the country never should be vested in one man, but rather that the President should act only by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, had been disregarded. Washington taught, Mr. Beck said, that the fundamental difference between a republic and a monarchy lay in the control of foreign relations by one man in the latter form of Government. It was to the violations of this last principle, as he saw it, that Mr. Beck chiefly addressed himself.

Assails President's Actions.

"From the time Woodrow Wilson became President of the United States," Mr. Beck said, "he took the entire foreign policy into his keeping; he has ignored not only the Senate but the leaders of his own party in the Senate, and at least morally he has involved the country in the most sweeping declarations of policy without ever announcing them or getting the support of public opinion. A nation of 100,000,000 people stands in a stupor while one man and one man alone, against the express mandate of the American people as expressed in the last election, goes on pledging this country so far as he can to policies subversive to all the pillars of this Government, and which set at naught the most sacred traditions as expressed in Washington's Farewell Address."

The speaker read from Washington's address the warning against cunning, ambitious, and unprincipled men subversing the powers of the people, and usurping for themselves the reins of government.

"I say that Woodrow Wilson's foreign policy, from the time he took the reins of office until the present hour, has been a black stain of dishonor upon the American people. His principles have been a crazy patchwork of contradictions, but to one idea he has been consistently loyal, and that is that this great war, the greatest in the history of the world, must end in a peace without victory. He emphasized that in 1915, and at the present hour he only so far modifies this policy as to make it 'peace without full victory,' and that is exactly the significance of that which is now taking place in Paris, to the confusion of ourselves and our faithful allies."

Next the speaker quoted from "My Four Years in Germany," by James W. Gerard, formerly Ambassador to that country, passages referring to pressure brought upon Mr. Gerard by von Jagow and von Bethmann Hollweg to get this country to act in the interest of peace. Mr. Beck attempted to show a chronological significance in the President's utterances as they fitted in with Gerard's visits to Shadow Lawn and the White House in 1916, concluding this portion of his speech thus:

"It was after those visits that the President came out with one of his suave statements that the belligerents, judged by their own terms, seemed to be fighting for practically the same thing. And he rather urges the statement of their terms and a conference for peace. Thereupon the Central Powers refuse to come into the conference and the Allies state theirs. And then on Jan. 17 the President walks into Congress and says that America, without whose arms and munitions the Allies could not have kept on, without whose food they would have starved, thus wielding over their heads the club of America's vast power, insists upon a peace without victory. A peace without victory! My God!

"I say never was there a more infamous thing done by any American President in our history. He has never abandoned his idea of a peace without victory, if you give to it the interpretation which he put upon it in that message, which was that it was a peace whereby the victors could not impose their terms upon the vanquished. And the very true significance of the parleys is the attempt to prevent that complete subjection of Germany to the terms of the Allies which would make it impossible for Germany to renew this war in twenty-five or fifty years.

"The President, without consulting the Senate, prematurely invites peace proposals on the fourteen so-called points, three of which he has already abandoned, some of which are as meaningless as a Delphic oracle, and all of which simply exist to perplex our allies and to cheat them of the full fruits of their victory.

Takes Up the Journey Abroad.

"Pursuing this policy of dictating a peace without full victory under the pretext of a League of Nations, he determines to go abroad. Knowing perfectly well that he dare not submit his proposition to that concurrent power which has the final voice he asks the American people to give him a blank power of attorney."

Mr. Beck praised Theodore Roosevelt for "taking up the challenge," asserting that a Democratic majority of 500,000 "earned on 'he kept us out of war,'" became an adverse majority of 1,300,000, as the American people, "proud of their traditions and tenacious of the joint and concurrent power of the Senate and the people of the United States as to the constitutional provisions relative to the foreign policies of this Government, rejected Woodrow Wilson's demand. In any other country his resignation would have been inevitable; in any other country he would have respected the mandate of a people he had deliberately invited."

ers, journalists, and cinema operators, and fifty-one cooks and waiters."

"What does he do when he gets there?" Mr. Beck continued. "I want to point out the incredible baseness of what is being done in the name of the American people. He had two distinct purposes. He went to say to France who bore the chief burden of the war, 'If you want any help from the United States you must do my will as the dictator of the world's policy.' To England he went to say, 'Unless you will strip yourself of the chief elements of your naval power, unless you will agree to reduce your navy to the size of that of the other chief nations, unless you will impair the chief security of your island by a provision that will take away the chief potency of a blockade, America proposes to build a navy so fast that it will lay two keels down while you lay one.'

"And for that reason he tells Secretary Daniels, before he goes, not to get an appropriation, but to get an authorization of $700,000,000 to be expended by him in his discretion, not immediately, but a year hence if he deems it advisable. It meant, and there is no concealment attempted, that he was going to say to England, either strip yourself of your chief arm of defense by lowering your naval power to the standard of others, abandoning the idea of such a blockade as that with which you won this war, and that with which Abraham Lincoln won the civil war—because there is no distinction between them—you will either do that or we will ruin you in a competitive arrangement."

Mr. Beck said that meant an attempt to coerce nations beaten to their knees and staggering under terrific burdens of debt through winning the war and meant even that England could not have a larger fleet than Germany or Russia, although Germany might regain much of her power and Russia, once rehabilitated, might have strong German leanings.

"In other words," he went on, "it is true that Mr. Wilson, without consulting the Senate, and in the very teeth of the mandate of the American people, using the enormous wealth of this country, in a proposition to spend $700,000,000, when the people are already, God knows, staggering under a burden of taxation and debt, subjects us to the intolerable shame of having tried to bully Great Britain and France, taking advantage of the fact that we had come out of the war practically unimpaired and they, God help them, were almost prostrated. We, in their hour of stupor are to use against our allies the potential wealth of this country to compel them to submit to our will.

"Lincoln's supreme glory was that he saved the Constitution and the ancient policies of this Government. It is still the imperative work and duty of the Republican Party to do exactly as Lincoln did. So I say to you, back to the Constitution, back to the policy of Washington. Let us resume our former independent position, trusting to temporary alliances in emergencies where extraordinary forces concern the world, but let us not forget the wise counsel of the noblest man that ever lived.

"When Mr. Wilson returns from Paris and visits the White House suppose George Washington and Abraham Lincoln could revisit the solemn chambers there. Suppose they entered in shadowy form into the President's workroom and looked upon Woodrow Wilson's work in the last four years with the 'new freedom' sapping the foundations of our Government with a policy of universal, world-wide intrigue that could only mean permanent abandonment of Washington's policy.

"I think that George Washington would look upon him with amazement and I am sure Lincoln, standing behind Washington and looking upon the destruction wrought to our form of government, would say to him: 'I spent four years of my life, I poured out my heart's blood to save the Constitution of the United States, and that which I have saved you have gone far to undermine.'"

Many Organizations Hold Celebrations—Soldiers Entertained.

Addressing the members of the Women's Republican Club at their Lincoln Day luncheon yesterday afternoon, James M. Beck paid tribute to the part played by women in the war, asserting it was the morale of the women behind the lines that aided the men to victory. Mrs. James G. Wentz presided. Among other speakers were Judge John R. Davies, Alan R. Hawley, and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who, basing her declaration upon her own experience in canteen work in France, said that stories of crime waves on the part of American soldiers in France must be untrue and probably could be traced to German propaganda.

The Knights of Columbus held a series of Lincoln Day celebrations for soldiers in its canteens, and there was a concert and variety show at the Victory Hut conducted by the Y. M. C. A. in Battery Park.

Besides numerous formal celebrations, dinners and other gatherings at which the memory of Lincoln was eulogized all over the city, there was much holiday making last night, the restaurants and theatres being crowded.

Tributes to the memory of Lincoln were paid by James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany; ex-Senator Theodore Burton of Ohio, ex-Congressman Marshall Van Winkle, and M. Jean Goldschmidt of the French High Commission at a dinner given last night by the Lincoln Association in the Cartaret Club, Jersey City.

DAY OBSERVED IN CONGRESS

Senator Lewis Says Peace Envoys Meet in the Name of Lincoln.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Congress observed Lincoln's Birthday today by listening again to the Gettysburg Address and by early adjournment of the Senate after a brief address by Senator Lewis of Illinois, who declared that the ambassadors of peace now sitting in Paris met in the name of Lincoln.

"For fifty years the great perils of revolution and reform have marched under the banner of Lincoln's declarations," said Senator Lewis. "The emancipation of the blacks by Lincoln, the call of Roosevelt for integrity of character in public office, and the cry of Wilson for the end of tyranny through all the earth, are but the prayers of Lincoln voiced by the patriots of the American republic.

"The ambassadors of peace who sit in Paris are met in the name of Lincoln. In the name of his prayer they petition the Father of Justice to administer to men the liberty taught by Lincoln. Wherever nations are assembled to enforce right among men, they dedicate their petition to the spirit of Lincoln."

Senator Johnson of California read the Gettysburg Address, and on his motion the Senate interrupted debate on the War Revenue bill to adjourn at 3 o'clock. In the House Representative Rubey of Missouri read the address.

DECLARES FOR OLD WAYS.

Poindexter Attacks World League Project at Lincoln Dinner.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 12.—Senator Poindexter of the State of Washington, speaking tonight at a dinner given by the Lincoln Club of Portland to the members of the Maine Legislature, warned the American people against surrendering their liberties to international rule by a common world power set up by all the nations or to international class rule by the Bolsheviki. The result in either case, he said, would be imperial despotism and the end of national independence and liberty.

"We are aroused from the concentration of mind and body in the great war," he said, "to be told that the old American ideals, policies, and traditions have passed away. We are told that we can no longer be the master of our souls, but that we must merge our affairs with all the other nations of the world and sink our sovereignty in a super-Government. We find, strange to say, the Government of the United States itself taking the lead in setting up in the world this new principle of control of internationalism as opposed to the old

HAYWARD RETURNS WITH NEGRO TROOPS

Last Two Battalions of New York's Old Fighting 15th Regiment Arrive.

PRAISED BY ITS OFFICERS

For 191 Days All the Men of the Organization Fought Like Tigers, Is Colonel's Tribute.

Four thousand negro troops arrived yesterday from France on the Swedish-American liner Stockholm and the White Star liner Regina, including the 1st and 2d Battalions and Headquarters Company of the 369th Infantry, with the regiment's commander, Colonel William Hayward. With the 3d Battalion, which arrived on Sunday, under Major David A. L'Esperance, the entire 369th Regiment, formerly the old New York 15th, is back home. The officers and men are at Camp Upton, and will be demobilized after undergoing medical inspection.

The Stockholm, which arrived early in the morning, was met down the bay by the steamboat Correction, with a band and 300 or more relatives and friends of the regiment. The Patrol, with the Mayor's Committee on board, also shared in the welcome. The band of the 369th was mustered on the after promenade deck of the Stockholm and played popular negro melodies to the dancing and cheering of the happy soldiers as the liner steamed past the Statue of Liberty on her way to Pier 97, North River, at the foot of West Fifty-seventh Street.

In addition to the 29 officers and 1,019 men of the 369th Regiment, the Stockholm brought the 854th Transportation Corps, 2 officers and 245 men; 3 casual companies of negro troops, 6 officers and 327 men; 389 casual officers, and a number of casual enlisted men from medical detachments.

Praised by Commander.

Colonel Hayward, popular commander of the old 15th, wore a wound chevron and limped slightly from a wound in the left ankle that he received at Belleau Ridge last June, but otherwise was in perfect health. He said that one of the most capable officers of the regiment, Lieutenant Longshaw, died at Brest of pneumonia after enduring all the hardships and dangers of the campaign, which lasted ten months.

The Colonel was very proud of the fighters under his command. There were but six cases of drunkenness, he said, and only twenty cases of violation of discipline, while they proved to be adepts at handling the bayonet, in marksmanship, and in throwing hand grenades.

"I am proud of my men," said Colonel Hayward, "there isn't a braver or a cleaner lot of soldiers in the United States Army or any other army than the old 15th Regiment of the New York National Guard.

"I do not think there is a member of the 369th Infantry who is not glad to have had the opportunity of volunteering his services for his country. If the call came again I am quite certain that the response would be just as gratifying. It certainly is a great feeling to be part of an organization of fighters, which, in addition to having 191 of its members cited for valorous deeds performed in action, was also decorated as a whole.

"Our men bore up like true soldiers when in the face of greatest dangers. There wasn't a single whimper at any time. But, say, they did fight. No matter how trying the circumstances they were always on the job, ready to go wherever directed regardless of perils. Our colored fighters cared less for shell fire than any white man that ever breathed. Why, at one period we were under fire for 191 days. It was hell, but those boys faced the music. Every mother's son of them stood up and fought like a tiger.

"We held one trench for ninety-one days without relief and we were raided every night. We captured large numbers of prisoners and it is worthy of note that not one of them escaped. Through the magnanimity of the French the 369th Infantry was the first unit of allied fighters to reach the River Rhine. We went down as the advance guard to the French Army of Occupation."

Regiment Lost Heavily.

When Colonel Hayward was asked if he had heard how the Germans spoke of the American negro regiments, he replied that he had seen a report at a small town on the Rhine just before leaving in which they were referred to as "Blutlustige Schwartze Männer," meaning the bloodthirsty black men.

"We left New York," Colonel Hayward continued, "with fifty-six officers and 2,000 men—the original 15th—and return today with twenty officers and 1,200 men. The difference is made up chiefly by those who sleep on French and Belgian battlefields. On Sept. 26 we were up against the strongest point of the Hindenburg line, where we were told 200,000 French soldiers had fallen, but we took it with a loss of 1,000 men.

"Having accomplished that task, we went to the Vosges and advanced there until the armistice was signed, when we were picked by the French to lead their army to the Rhine. We arrived there on the morning of the 18th of November and I knelt down and scooped up some of the Rhine in my hands. So close were we behind the enemy that he was pulling up his pontoon bridges on the other side of the river. I often slept in a bed that a German General had occupied the night before. We were received with enthusiasm in every town we entered, and they told us the Germans had said they would be back in ten years. We took over the administration of the civil population in four towns. I myself occupied the office of Mayor in one of them.

"When we said good-bye to the 161st French Division the ceremony was picturesque. We took our colors out of the division and General Le Bouc pinned the Croix de Guerre on our State flags. Our relations with the officers and men of the French Army were excellent. We had been fortunately free from sickness until we reached Brest, where, in three weeks, we lost more men than during the months in the field. One man died on the voyage from pneumonia contracted at Brest."

Saw 191 Days' Fighting.

The Colonel styled the 15th the lost regiment of the American Republic because it had never been with the American Army. During the 191 days' fighting they had only one week's rest, and were among the first 100,000 American troops to get into action.

One of the heroes of the regiment is Sergeant Henry Johnson, 20 years old, of 101 Orange Street, Albany. He joined at Peekskill. The officers said that Johnson, in a scrimmage with a wire cutting party, had killed four Germans and wounded thirty-two. He received the French War Cross with the highest citations—one star and one palm—and was decorated before the French Army.

These officers of the old 15th returned with Colonel Hayward: Major Edward Whitmore, Major Arthur W. Little, Captain Robert F. J. Ferguson, Captain Aaron T. Bates, Jr., Captain Seth B. McClinton, Lieutenant Roger Whittlesey, Lieutenant Richardson Pratt, Lieutenant George B. Delafield, Lieutenant Durant Rice, Lieutenant James R. Europe, and Lieutenant Harold M. Landon.

The Regina, which arrived late in the afternoon, had 2,037 officers and men, including the 2d Battalion of the 369th Regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. W. A. Pickering. There were also on board thirty officers and 897 men of the 163d Infantry, Casual Company 236, New York; ninety casual officers, and three civilians.

Colonel Pickering, who lives at the Lambs Club and wears the D. S. C. and French Cross with palm and star, said that fifty men of his battalion had been awarded the Croix de Guerre, five had the Medal of the Legion of Honor, and one soldier had the Medal of Honor and the Legion of Honor decorations. He spoke in high terms of Captain F. M. Cobb of White Plains, who was killed at Champagne while leading his men through a heavy barrage, and of Lieutenant Robb, the winner of the Medal of Honor and the Legion of Honor, who, although wounded five times, refused to leave his post until he was carried to the rear unconscious.

Another officer of the 369th was Lieutenant Leon J. Cadore, for three years pitcher on the Brooklyn baseball club, who expects to go back to baseball when he is released from the army.

A welcome-home concert in honor of Colonel William Hayward and the medal-winning soldiers of the old 15th Regiment will be given Saturday night at Carnegie Hall by the Clef Club Singing Orchestra of Bonbon Buddies.

287,000 OF OUR TROOPS HAVE BEEN EMBARKED

Baker Reports 87,000 Men Now in the Hospitals in France.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—From the signing of the armistice to Feb. 8, 287,332 American troops in France and Great Britain had embarked for the United States, while up to Feb. 10, 67,454 officers and 1,069,116 men had been demobilized in this country. Total arrivals of overseas troops up to Feb. 7 were 215,749.

These figures were made public today by Secretary Baker, together with others relating to the number of sick and wounded now in France and the number returned home. Men in France being treated for disease on Feb. 1 totaled 62,561, and those suffering from wounds were 24,484. The aggregate of 87,045 was 4,688 less than in the preceding week and 106,403 less than the number in hospitals overseas on Nov. 14.

Since the ending of hostilities 53,042 sick and wounded have arrived in this country, bringing the total since the beginning of the war to 63,160. On Feb. 1 the occupied beds in hospitals in the United States numbered 60,777, while there were 47,048 beds available for returning cases.

FIRST OF 27TH COMING.

Advance Guard of Division Sails on the Touraine.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The cruisers Pueblo and Montana and the transport Touraine have sailed from France with about 5,000 troops, and all are due to reach New York on Feb. 21.

General Pershing advised the War Department today that the Pueblo was bringing Company I, 161st Infantry, 41st Division, for Camp Dix; a medical detachment, and part of Companies D, L, and M, of the 162d Infantry of the same division, for Camps Gordon, Lewis, McArthur, Taylor, Pike, and Lee, and casual companies for New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and the regular army.

The Touraine has aboard the headquarters of the Second Army Corps, bound for Camp Upton and the headquarters troop of the Second Army Corps, to be sent to Camps Upton, Dodge, Dix, Grant, Sevier, and Sherman. On this ship also is an advance detachment of nineteen officers of the 27th New York National Guard Division, who are going to Camp Upton, where the division will be sent on its arrival, and a detachment of the 412th Telegraph Battalion for Camp Travis.

Units aboard the Montana are the 148th Machine Gun Battalion, complete, of the 41st Division, for Camps Shelby, Upton, Dodge, Beauregard, Devens, Gordon, and Lewis, and a detachment of ten officers and 124 men of the South Dakota National Guard, Companies E, F, and G of the 116th Ammunition Train of the 41st Division for Camp Dix; a casual company for Boise, Idaho, and one for New York State; the 302d Trench Mortar Battery of the 77th Division, bound for Camps Upton and Dodge, and a few casuals.

The transport Pocahontas, which was announced as having sailed for New York, has been diverted to Newport News, and is due about Feb. 18.

The War Department also announced that the transport America would reach New York Feb. 22 with 170 officers and 1,980 men, including the 67th Regiment of Coast Artillery detachments, which will be divided among Camps Upton, Dodge, Grant, and Pike. Most of the regiment, however, are regulars, whose destination was not given. On the America are the headquarters detachment of the 35th and 36th Brigades, Coast Artillery, all regulars; and a detachment of the 63d Coast Artillery for Camp Taylor. The other passengers are officer casuals.

The Department received a cable correction from General Pershing today, announcing that the 309th Field Battalion, Signal Corps, (84th Division,) had been assigned to early convoy instead of the 139th as previously announced.

A League of Free Nations

Help Win It

Since the League of Free Nations Association published its Principles, on November 27, the peace issues have become much more closely joined. The fifty professors, editors, publicists, and other students of international affairs, when they put out their program, were meeting the necessity for a general education of the American public. They now face rather the necessity for helping in the fight that is going well at Paris and is threatening at Washington.

The Association, in its original statement, defined the purposes of the League as primarily for:

1. Security: the due protection of national existence.
2. Equality of economic opportunity.

For security it was declared necessary to give up the old ideas that had brought on this war and substitute co-operative inquiry, agreement, and enforcement. President Wilson won his first great victory at Paris when it was agreed that the foundation of a League of Nations should precede all other business and be the basis of all further decisions.

As to equality of economic opportunity, notably in those undeveloped regions that have been the fertile cause of modern wars and threats of wars, another great victory was won when it was agreed to put the German colonies under the League. This long step is not only a precedent for further development. It also in itself constitutes the necessity for keeping the League in existence, and for having it fully equipped with legislative power. No otherwise could the task be carried along.

Was this victory hailed with joy at Washington? On the contrary, the more vocal members of the Senate viewed such progress with alarm. Speeches of almost incredible narrowness hunted for objections in such words as "infringement of sovereignty" and in imaginary dangers of "Policing Hottentots." It sounded like a backward village excited by a new invention.

Our Principles said: "The first task is legislative in its nature. The problem is to modify the conditions that lead to war. It will be quite inadequate to establish courts of arbitration or of law if they have to arbitrate or judge on the basis of the old laws and practices. They have proved insufficient."

They have proved insufficient to such an extent that the ability of the world to recover from the strain is still open to question. By co-operation it may succeed. If it has to face the old dangers and the old preparations, the chances are there will be a complete breakdown of civilization.

The conclusion of our Statement of Principles was this:

"In our Declaration of Independence, our Constitution, the Monroe Doctrine, and the Emancipation Proclamation, the New World has offered documents which have contributed to the organized freedom of mankind, and in President Wilson's state papers we have the elements of a new charter. At a time when deep-seated forces of reaction would hamper a democratic solution and assert the old scheme of competitive militarism, of economic wars after the war, of division and bitterness and unhealed sores, such as will breed further wars and rob this one of its great culmination, we call on all liberal-minded men to stand behind the principles which the President has enunciated, and we invite them to join in fellowship with us for their realization."

That call most urgently needs to be repeated now. Europe on the whole seems ready to follow the President. Thirty-three men in the Senate, from politics or ignorance, could destroy all he has done and plunge the world to despair.

Against the apathy and opposition of a narrow-visioned group in the Senate there is immediate need of vigorous support by the American public of the aims and policy outlined by President Wilson.

Your help will count.

PRINCE ALBERT

the national joy smoke

Copyright 1919 by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

Never was such right-handed-two-fisted-smokejoy as you puff out of a jimmy pipe packed with Prince Albert! That's because P. A. has the quality!

You can't fool your taste apparatus any more than you can get five aces out of a family deck! So, when you hit Prince Albert, coming and going, and get up half an hour earlier just to start stoking your pipe or rolling cigarettes, you know you've got the big prize on the end of your line!

Prince Albert's quality alone puts it in a class of its own, but when you figure that P. A. is made by our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch—well—you feel like getting a flock of dictionaries to find enough words to express your happy days sentiments!

No matter what your past luck has been on pipe smokes or makin's cigarettes, you lay your wad across the boards that Prince Albert will make you feel like you've hooked a new lease on smokesessions!

And, P. A. is as good as that listens!

Toppy red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tin humidors—and—that classy, practical pound crystal glass humidor with sponge moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such perfect condition.

FOLEY REDRAFTS RAPID TRANSIT BILL

Provides for Subway Construction Commissioner, but Leaves Public Service Board Alone.

GOOD CHANCE OF PASSAGE

Bipartisan Understanding Reported Reached—Fowler Municipal Ownership Bill Attacked at Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 12.—It seems certain now that the Legislature will give serious consideration to the proposal for the separation of the functions performed by the Public Service Commission for the First District, so that the supervision of construction work in connection with New York City's subway project may be taken over by a rapid transit commissioner and the regulation of transit lines already in operation may continue to be exercised by a public service commission, possibly reorganized through legislation before the present session ends.

The proposal came before the lawmaking body in a bill introduced by Senator James A. Foley, minority leader of the upper house, in pursuance of recommendations made by Governor Smith in his annual message. The Foley bill in its original form provides for the creation of a single-headed rapid transit commission to complete subway construction and a single-headed public service commission for the First District to regulate transit operations within the city. Today Senator Foley withdrew his bill and introduced another measure, which provides for the creation of the office of rapid transit commissioner, the prospective incumbent to be appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate for a term of five years at a salary of $15,000.

Under the terms of the new Foley bill, the Rapid Transit Commissioner would be charged with the same duties and exercise all the broad powers that devolved on the commission which took the initiative in the construction of New York City's first subway under the provisions of the Rapid Transit act passed in 1891 and partly incorporated in the present Public Service Commission law.

The Foley bill also provides that expenditures of the Public Service Commission for the First District, now defrayed from the city treasury, shall be assumed by the State. The salaries and expenses of the office of Rapid Transit Commissioner, on the other hand, are to be paid by the city.

"My original bill was withdrawn and the new measure introduced for the purpose of disarming opposition aroused by the proposal to create a single-headed Public Service Commission for New York City," said Senator Foley. "With that proposal embodied in the same bill that provided for the Rapid Transit Commission, in which the people of New York City are chiefly interested, the latter provision was bound to suffer from the opposition to the first. Now that the Rapid Transit Commission project stands on its own bottom, I expect that there will be less, if any objection. I have already been assured by Senator George F. Thompson, Chairman of the Committee on Public Service, that the Rapid Transit Commission bill will be reported out. Personally I believe that it will be enacted."

There is a report tonight that a bipartisan understanding has been reached in pursuance of which the Republicans will be left to deal with the reorganization of the Public Service Commissions in return for Republican support in the Legislature for the Governor's project to place the supervision over subway construction in New York City in Democratic hands.

Corporation Counsel William P. Burr appeared before the Senate Public Service Committee at a public hearing today as the chief objector to the enactment of the Fowler bill, embodying a municipal ownership plan proposed by the Mayors' conference but vigorously opposed by Mayor Hylan. The bill would give broad powers to the Public Service Commission in the determination of whether municipalities should be permitted to engage in public ownership ventures and the terms under which such properties should be acquired. Mayor Hylan has expressed the opinion that the city authorities should be left to deal with all such questions.

"There is no provision in this bill to give cities a voice in the appraisal of public utilities to be acquired," said Corporation Counsel Burr, "nor is there any provision for the examination of the books of such corporations by the city authorities preliminary to taking over their properties. Any attempt on the part of the people of New York City to initiate proceedings for acquiring the property of public service corporations is considered impossible by the provision which makes it necessary to secure within fifty days 100,000 signatures, all certified by notaries, to petitions which must be filed as a preliminary step."

RAID ON GAMBLING DE LUXE.

Police Discover Gaming Equipment and Elaborate Fittings in House.

Evening dress, rare paintings, and food and drink of superior quality were some of the things which lessened the unpleasantness of losses in the gambling establishment which, according to the allegations of detectives, Frank Jones and Grant Fisher maintained in a West Seventy-seventh Street house, near Broadway. Jones and Fisher were before Magistrate Corrigan yesterday in West Side Court and, after they had denied the charges of being gamblers and maintaining a gambling house, were held in $1,000 bail each for examination.

The raid on the West Seventy-seventh Street house was conducted Tuesday night by Detective Kelly of Chief Inspector Daly's staff and by Detectives Wheelwright and Sauger of Inspector McDonald's detail. As evidence the sleuths had paraphernalia for roulette games, card games, and dice, and also a set of tools for loading the dice which the Magistrate said "looked like a dentist's outfit."

The detectives also presented to Magistrate Corrigan a set of well-bound books, with gilt edges containing data about socially prominent persons in all parts of the country. All movements toward this city of these persons were carefully noted in the book. In another set of books, produced by the raiders, appeared a record of the profits and losses of the establishment, the largest gain being $15,000, and the largest loss being only $200.

Describing a tour through the premises, Kelly said the room which he regarded as Jones's "was a marvelously luxurious chamber." There were paintings on the walls which to Kelly's judicious eye must have been worth from one to ten thousand dollars. There also, said Kelly, were forty dress suits, and he had been puzzled by the wardrobe until he saw a sign in the hall. The sign, said Kelly, demanded that all appear in full dress "and to wear shoes with rubber heels." Kelly conjectured that guests who arrived informally were escorted to Jones's room and there properly equipped.

Another feature of the house which Kelly's searching eye did not overlook was the buffet. There, said Kelly to the Magistrate, was found liquor of various sorts, but all of the best quality and including champagne. Nearby were delicacies, besides, said Kelly.

SEES GERMAN RUIN IN ARMISTICE TERMS

moval of economic barriers and the establishment of equality of trade conditions, saying that Germany would gladly accept it. But how does it look, the paper asks, in connection with the fulfillment of the future league and its economic relations.

The Zeitung declares that instead of a preliminary peace an armistice, which has absolutely ruined Germany economically, has been forced on her. It expects that Germany will find no grace from England and France, but says she must hope in America and Wilson.

Nevertheless, the article goes on, Mitchell Palmer continue his work of appropriating all enemy property in America with the argument that the armistice is not peace. Everything is liquidated and publicly sold, and public war bonds are purchased with the money. Enormous sums are at stake, the private property alone being valued at $2,000,000,000, to say nothing of the insurance companies and German branch establisnments.

"The robbery of patents," continues the Zeitung, "goes hand in hand with the battle against German industry for the future. How does all this fit in with the principles of the league and the protection of private property? • • • Loud protests should be raised from all sides, especially from the Government, the Armistice Commission, and the Chambers of Commerce, as Germany's trade, commerce, and peace are menaced."

There is a very great effort to annex German Austria to Germany. The Neue Freie Presse publishes an article by Herr Hoetsch, who strongly advocates this annexation, saying that Austria would form a bridge to the east, and to the Slav world, and that the economic aspect must also be studied with great care.

The papers of the Right comment skeptically on the Weimar proceedings. The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette says that the atmosphere is by no means optimistic; that there is no feeling of greatness and no great speech or craft. Although Ebert spoke of freedom and new will power, it says, his speech was nothing more than phrases.

"We can, indeed, hardly reproach Scheidemann for continuing to read a newspaper while sitting next to Landsberg, Noske, and Wissel," the paper remarks. It deplores the "childish efforts" of the Government.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung considers the transfer of the Assembly to Weimar ridiculous, especially in view of the lack of accommodations and facilities of all kinds, including telegraph and telephone communication, and doubts if the Reichstag library can be transported so speedily. The paper alludes to the formation of new factions at the cost of the Democrats, and also affirms that the Spartacus League has a stronghold at Erfurt, having terrible designs on Weimar, even including an aerial attack.

German Officers in Switzerland Also Slurred Entente.

BERNE, Feb. 12.—German officers interned in Switzerland celebrated the birthday of the former Emperor at Lucerne, all of them drinking to his health, his early return to Germany and restoration to his former power.

They then drafted a telegram to Amerongen which is said to have been so insulting to the Entente nations that the telegraph office refused to accept it.

JELLICOE DEFENDS SEA WAR CAUTION

Reveals Defects in British Fleet Which Cause Him to Minimize Risks.

MENACE OF FOE TORPEDOES

Dangers Pointed Out Which Prevented a Night Engagement Off Jutland.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Admiral Jellicoe's book, "The Grand Fleet, 1914-16; Its Creation, Development, and Work," published today, throws a flood of new light on many aspects of the naval war.

One of the most interesting features is his discussion of the reasons why the Grand Fleet under his command did not inflict a more decisive defeat on the Germans in the battle of Jutland. Jellicoe has been strongly criticised for not closing with the enemy on that occasion.

His reply dwells partly on the advantages which a retreating fleet always has over its pursuers in a modern action on such a scale and also on the great number of special advantages which the German ships turned out to possess. Thus their searchlights were far more powerful than the Britsh and better connected with their system of fire control. They made most effective use of star shells, which the British had not until that time thought of using. It also appears that their range finding was better, their armor piercing projectiles were better, and their ships were better armored to meet a plunging fire.

Wary of Destroyers at Night.

Explaining at some length why he did not seek a night action, Admiral Jellicoe mentions the following principal arguments against that course:

"In the first place, a course must have inevitably led to our battle fleet being the object of attack by a very large destroyer force throughout the night. No senior officer would willingly court such an attack, even if our battleships were equipped with the best searchlights and the best arrangements for control of the searchlights and gunfire at night. It was, however, known to me that neither our searchlights nor their control arrangements were at this time of the best type.

"The fitting of direct firing gears for the guns of the secondary armament of our battleships (a very important factor for firing at night) had also only just been begun, although repeatedly applied for. The delay was due to manufacturing and labor difficulties. Without these adjuncts I knew well that the maximum effect of our fire at night could not be obtained and that we could place no dependence on beating off the destroyer attacks by gunfire.

"Therefore, if the destroyers got into touch with our heavy ships, we were bound to suffer serious losses, with no corresponding advantage. Our own destroyers were no effective antidote at night, since, if they were disposed with this sole object in view, they would certainly be taken for enemy destroyers, and be fired upon by our own ships. • • •

"The greater efficiency of the German searchlights at the time of the Jutland action, and the greater number of torpedo tubes fitted into the enemy ships, combined with their superiority in destroyers, would, I knew, give the Germans an opportunity of scoring heavily at the commencement of such an action."

Scant Reserve for Fleet.

Elsewhere in the book Admiral Jellicoe gives an estimate of the naval situation in May, 1916, on the eve of the Jutland battle. He writes:

"The Grand Fleet included almost the whole of our available capital ships. There was very little in the way of reserve behind it. The battleships not included in the Grand Fleet were all of them predreadnoughts, and therefore inferior fighting units.

"They consisted of seven ships of the King Edward VII. class, two ships of the Lord Nelson class, and four of the Queen class, all of these ships being in the Mediterranean except five of the King Edward VII. class. • • • Neither in October, 1914, nor in May, 1916, did our margin of superiority justify me in disregarding the enemy's torpedo fire or meeting it otherwise than by definite movements, deduced after most careful analysis of the problem at sea with the fleet and on the tactical board. The severely restricted forces behind the Grand Fleet were taken into account, and there was also a possibility that the Grand Fleet might later be called to confront a situation of much wider scope than that already existing."

The position gradually improved after 1916, until "in April, 1917, the culminating event was the entry of the United States into the war on the side of the Entente."

Referring to the loss of the Audacious, on Oct. 27, 1914, Admiral Jellicoe points out that the Grand Fleet was considerably weakened at that time. He says:

"The Ajax had developed condenser defects. The Iron Duke had similar troubles. The Orion had to be sent to Greenock for examination of her turbine supports, which appeared to be defective. The Conqueror was at Devonport refitting, and the New Zealand was in dock at Cromarty. The Erin and Agincourt, having been newly commissioned, could not yet be regarded as efficient, so that the dreadnought fleet only consisted of seventeen effective battleships and five battle cruisers.

"The German dreadnought fleet at the time comprised fifteen battleships and four battle cruisers, with the Blucher in addition. The margin of superiority was therefore unpleasantly small in view of the fact that the High Seas fleet possessed eighty-eight destroyers and the Grand Fleet only forty-two.

"If this country in the future decides to rely for safety against raids or invasion on the fleet alone it is essential that we should possess a considerably greater margin of superiority over a possible enemy in all classes of vessels than we did in August, 1914."

Some of Admiral Jellicoe's revelations seem to show that if the German naval command had been daring the sea history of the war might have been differently written. The enemy was at the outset far stronger in submarines than the British were and his vessels of that type were far better. He had, too, countless opportunities to effect landings on the British coasts up rivers which were either inadequately or not at all protected. At first Scapa Flow was not a safe anchorage.

"For my part," says Jellicoe, "I was always far more concerned for the safety of the fleet when it was at anchor in Scapa Flow during the exceedingly brief periods which were spent there coaling in the early days of the war than I was when the fleet was at sea, and this anxiety was reflected in the very short time that the fleet was kept in the harbor. It was also the cause of my taking the fleet to sea very hurriedly on more than one occasion, owing to the reported presence of submarines in the anchorage."

OCEAN FLIGHT IN SPRING.

Airship Will Cross as a Test, Says General Brancker.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Major Gen. Brancker of the Air Ministry, speaking at Newcastle today, said:

"Next Spring will see the Atlantic flown, but that will be only a freak, and not the business proposition."

An airship, he stated, would be used to cross the Atlantic in the immediate future, and the Government would do its best in the matter.

He added that the future would see the mails carried night and day by 600-mile stages to Capetown and Calcutta.

NOT JUST THE GIRL with the smile that lightens her face, though that, too, is an important business asset—but the girl with the smile that lightens her voice when she sends it out over the telephone wires and that leaves a pleasing impression with the person at the other end of the line!

TO SUCH YOUNG WOMEN of from 16 to 25, who display willingness and possess the necessary qualifications, telephone operating offers big opportunity for advancement.

IT OFFERS GOOD PAY at the start when the accepted applicant enters the Operators' Training Department for instruction. It offers increased pay as soon as she completes the training period and is assigned to a central office as near her home as the requirements of business permit. And from that time on, it offers advances in pay at frequent intervals and opportunities for promotion to many important supervisory positions.

THERE ARE OTHER FEATURES of telephone operating that you will want to know about, too—the rest rooms where the operators spend their rest periods, the dining-rooms where they may bring their lunches or, as in the larger central offices, purchase one at cost, the bonuses in the form of Anniversary Payments, and the Plan for Sickness, Disability Benefits and Insurance.

Why not call at the nearest Application Office and obtain full particulars?

TO ALL TELEPHONE USERS
You have a direct interest in the recruiting of telephone operators, for the availability of trained forces to meet the growing demands during the readjustment period is of great importance in providing satisfactory service for all.

HOUSE SENTIMENT FAVORS SMALL ARMY

Opposition on All Sides to Permanent Force in Excess of 175,000 Men.

STAFF PLAN IS REJECTED

Measure Providing for Temporary Force of 500,000 Men Subject to Prolonged Debate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—General opposition to a standing army in excess of 175,000 men, as authorized in the National Defense act, three years ago, was expressed in the House today during debate on the Army Appropriation bill with its provision for a military force of 536,000 officers and men during the period of demobilization.

Chairman Dent of the Military Committee, was questioned closely as to the future army, with several members asking if the force provided in the bill was to be the permanent army strength. The Chairman explained that it was not, and there was general applause from both sides of the house when Representative McKenzie of Illinois, Republican, said the Military Committee favored a small army.

Mr. McKenzie said the proposal of the Army General Staff for a permanent peace time military establishment of 500,000 had been rejected by the committee, and Representative Kahn of California, Republican, interrupted to say that not a single member of the committee favored the proposal.

Discussion in the House continued throughout the day, with the leaders offering no prediction as to when a vote would be taken on the measure, which carries a total of $1,100,000,000 for the War Department during the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Praise for Pershing.

Debate was not confined to the bill itself. There was criticism of the War Department, praise for General Pershing, and various American units which fought in France. Discussion of Bolshevism and a protest against President Wilson's accepting a set of books as a birthday gift from King George of England.

A statement by Representative Dent that only 175,000 troops had been returned from France drew sharp attacks upon the Administration for not bringing the troops home more rapidly.

Much of the discussion concerns the National Guard. Representative McKenzie said that whatever the future military policy might be, the National Guard should be retained, and his declaration was vigorously applauded. Other members in urging retention of the guard after demobilization praised the work of the guard divisions during the war.

Representative London of New York directed discussion to Boleshvism, with the declaration that "every new thought, or new idea was called Bolshevism," which he declared was "but a passing stage of revolution common only to Russia." He urged repeal of the espionage law, declaring that Socialists had been unjustly imprisoned by its application to throttle free speech and free assemblage.

Representative Walsh of Massachusetts, Republican, declared Mr. London's interest in repeal of the espionage law might be with the view of "prejudging the case of one of his colleagues," Representative-elect Berger of Milwaukee, whose utterances, Mr. Walsh dclared, "were not toward uniting our people during the war or to aid its prosecution."

"We do not need the urging and teachings of Lenine and Trotzky or the New York Socialist and his associates in improving our Government," added Mr. Walsh.

Brings Up Casualty Lists.

Republican Leader Mann criticised the delay in casualties reports, saying that the Red Cross, although having information, was forbidden from giving it to soldiers' relatives unless the War Department had previously announced it.

Charged by Representative Hersey of Maine, Republican, that regular army officers were unduly favored in France, resulting in the demotion of many competent National Guard commanders, were answered by Representative Shallenberger of Nebraska, Democrat, who declared that "politics was out of the army." Mr. Shellenberger, in praise of General Pershing, declared "the United States was the only country in the war to pick an army head who stood the test," and added that Pershing was the first General to declare that the German Army could be beaten and that the Hindenburg line could be smashed.

Representative Ramseyer of Iowa, Republican, protested against the acceptance of a set of books by the President from King George, saying the action was unconstitutional because it had not been approved by Congress. Suggestions that a law permitting men of the army to receive gifts from heads of foreign States covered the case, because the President was Commander in Chief of the army, brought a statement from Representative Kahn that the law applied only to military decorations.

KNOX BOOM FOR PRESIDENT.

Senator Acclaimed at Republican Club Banquet in Pittsburgh.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 12.—Senator Philander C. Knox's Presidential boom was started on its way tonight at the annual Lincoln's Birthday banquet of the Americus Republican Club, when every member rose to his feet at the call of "who will be our next President?" the answer coming "Phil Knox."

William H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, who was present, had been asked as to his attitude toward Senator Knox as a Presidential candidate, but refused to announce his choice, saying: "It is my business to elect the nominee, not to nominate."

HARDING BOOM LAUNCHED.

Senator Put Forward in Ohio as a Candidate for Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Feb. 12.—Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio was formally put forward tonight as a candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1920. Official indorsement of his candidacy was given by members of the Republican State Central Committee and officials of the State Advisory Committee.

Senator Harding was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Lucas County Republicans in celebration of Lincoln's Birthday. In his speech he attacked the present Administration, and expressed the view that the President's efforts could be better improved if he were at home at this time.

"No matter what President Wilson may engage in while on his triumphal tour of Europe, any contracts he may take up will have to be ratified by the United States Senate," the Senator went on. "The people of the United States today want American policies for this country. They showed this in November of last year, and will finish it in November, 1920. The people have grown tired of our Chief Executive fixing policies for foreign countries while our own country is left to drift as it may."

BARNES BOOMS HANSON.

Suggests Him for the Presidency at Albany Republican Dinner.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—In a speech at the Albany County Republican dinner tonight, William Barnes, Republican leader of the county, suggested a boom for Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle, for President.

Barnes attacked President Wilson caustically, contrasting what he termed the confusion in the President's utterances with the "liquid clarity" of Lincoln's.

Wisconsin Senate Passes Suffrage.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 12.—The State Senate today declared for unlimited woman suffrage, and the question now only rests with the Governor. It is thought that he will not veto the bill, despite his opposition to the ballot for women. The final action was taken today after a short, sharp debate in which the Senate by a vote of 28 to 4 passed the Assembly bill.

HAD NEW WAR ENGINES READY TO CRUSH FOE

Baker Says Losses for Another Year Would Have Equaled Those of the Four Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—At a victory dinner held here tonight by several hundred women, Secretary of War Baker gave some statistics about the war and stated that had the war gone on for another year the losses, because of the perfection which had been reached in engines of destruction, would have totaled the losses of the four years.

During the war, Mr. Baker said, 7,300,000 men were killed in action or died of wounds, while deaths in camps brought the total dead to at least 9,000,000. The nations involved, he said, spent, exclusive of loans or the value of destroyed property, $193,000,000,000, and he added that the value of all property in the United States in 1912 was but $186,000,000,000.

Among the engines of destruction which had been prepared to let loose next Spring, Mr. Baker said, it was well known that there were wireless controlled aeroplanes for bombing purposes which would have caused tremendous casualties.

Mr. Baker also pleaded for the League of Nations. He declined to believe, he said, that the people or governments wanted the war to end in the old-fashioned way without reaping the fruits of the war.

"For my part," he said, referring to the League of Nations, "I don't care whether the conception is one of yesterday or one of Methuselah's favorite meditations, I'm for it."

Referring to the idea of a balance of power he said that it was "delicate enough to be a chemist's balance."

Reverting to the League of Nations, Mr. Baker said that if America remained aloof the nations of Europe might form a league of their own, and leave the United States out.

"I am not thinking of going in because the United States is afraid," he said. "But I am afraid of the moral position we would be in if we were left out."

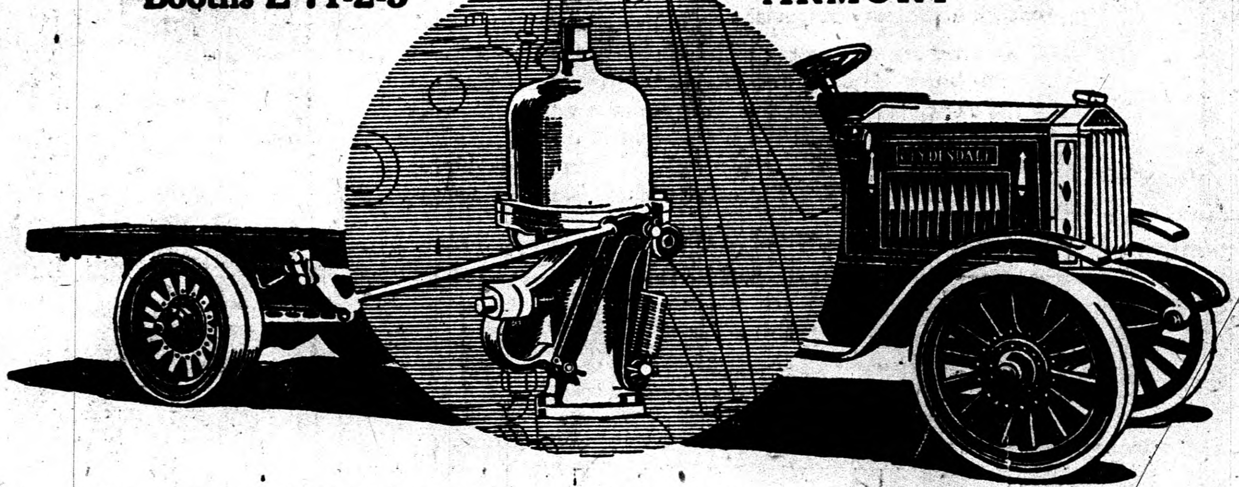
"Driver Under the Hood"

At the Truck Show

Booths E 71-2-3 ARMORY



Clydesdale Chassis Showing Distinctive Construction and Clean Cut Characteristics. "The Driver Under the Hood" is in the Circle.

THE Clydesdale Automatic Controller usually called "The Driver Under the Hood," will be on exhibition on the Clydesdale Trucks at our show exhibit.

Motor truck experts call it the most important improvement that has been put on trucks within a decade. You will agree with them when you see it and know what it does.

"The Driver Under the Hood" practically eliminates all trouble with careless, inexperienced drivers and, as every motor truck owner knows, this is, perhaps, one of the greatest difficulties encountered in motor truck operation.

Come and see how "The Driver Under the Hood" automatically controls the truck—how it automatically speeds up the motor, when the truck strikes an up-grade or hard going, thus keeping the truck at the same steady rate of speed.

Come and see how it automatically throttles down the motor when the driver suddenly de-clutches and thus prevents useless racing and wear on the parts.

Let us show you how, with more than human intelligence, it accelerates the motor as the clutch is thrown in—just fast enough to make the truck pick up speed quickly, yet without damage to the motor and bearings which sudden acceleration by a careless driver often produces.

Truck owners everywhere are enthusiastic over it. It is literally saving them thousands of dollars in up-keep bills and depreciation.

You can't afford to go to the show without seeing it. And it is found only on Clydesdale Trucks.

And yet this is only one of a large number of outstanding features which distinguish Clydesdale Trucks.

The massive, seamless, copper tube radiator with its heavy guard bars is the first point to attract attention.

Those who are familiar with European truck construction will instantly recognize the similarity of the Clydesdale to the famous London General Omnibus Truck.

The Clydesdale is practically a duplicate of this worldfamed truck.

The manufacturers of the Clydesdale Truck brought over the same corps of engineers and designers who helped develop the London General Omnibus truck now used by the thousands on the streets of London in omnibus work.

Practically all American built trucks have been strongly influenced by the London General Omnibus design, but the Clydesdale is the only truck in which all of the experience of the L. G. O. Company in building trucks has been available.

Clydesdale Trucks are handled in New York by Arlington Motors Corporation, a concern whose principals have built up an enviable reputation in New York for rendering conscientious, faithful service to truck buyers.

The Clydesdale Truck, plus the Clydesdale Controller, plus A. E. Hoffman Service forms an unbeatable combination, as an increasing number of well-known New York houses will testify.

Let us show you how it works out in your business.

Our Service Pledge

We believe that our duty to our customers and our work with them only begins with the selling of the truck.

We believe that it is just as important for us to see to it that our customers' trucks are kept running continually, day after day, as it was for the Clydesdale Company to put good materials and workmanship into the trucks to begin with.

We hereby make the pledge to Clydesdale buyers to do everything humanly possible to see to it that their trucks are not kept out of service one moment during their life.

Electric Self Starter

Creating a Sensation at the Truck Show

AFTER several months of diligent investigation and try-out of many makes of motor trucks, we finally decided upon the PARKER line, and our judgment has more than been confirmed at the Show.

For verily, the PARKER is creating a sensation!

And here are some reasons why: Six (6) Cylinders — Continental Motors — Worm Drive—Westinghouse Electric Starters and Generators — Electric Lights — Hydraulic Hoist—up-to-date fore door cabs and wind shields—every modern improvement and convenience.

The Truck With the "Six Cylinder Pull"

We have anticipated the next sweeping development in the industry. We choose to take the lead, and give the public what they should have had years ago—Trucks powered with 6-cylinder motors.

This continuous torque or 6-cylinder pull prolongs the life of the driving units of the chassis. It spares the gears, the worm and the worm-wheel, the axles, the tires and, most of all, the motor's internal self. It furnishes a smoothness and flexibility of power application heretofore unknown in motor trucks.

The Electric Starter a Time and Money Saver.

The Electric Starter adds 40% to the life of the motor—or, to put it another way, it saves 75 days useless motor wear yearly, because it cuts off at least 2 hours of motor idling per day.

It eliminates motor abuse, and prevents carbonizing. It will save $225 per year on gasoline alone. And it will save 300 hours of truck time per year—to say nothing of making it easier for the driver.

These are FACTS, and we are proving them to the satisfaction of our visitors at the Show—we would like to prove them to YOU.

The Economy Truck—Prove It Yourself.

In addition to the features mentioned, there are some others that spell ECONOMY—heavy radius rods—extremely long springs—Parker four-speed transmission—Parker full floating rear axles; they all mean economy of operation, and satisfaction to users.

We would like to have you see the PARKER, and invite you to examine it at Madison Square Garden during the Truck Show—or any time later at our salesroom.

Motor truck buyers are seeking just what the PARKER truck, more than any other, represents—the most continuous service under all conditions at the lowest operating costs.

Don't fail to see it—a genuine sensation in the motor truck field!

Dealers: Progressive dealers who are anxious to secure an agency for a complete line of trucks will do well to get in touch with us. The PARKER Agency will get you away from competition as no other agency can. Wire, write or call for particulars.

PLUTO WATER

America's Physic—and more!

YOU can get a laxative anywhere, but there is only one spot in America that will give you Nature's minerals, rich with the quality of radium, concentrated in spring water. That spot is French Lick, the historic home of PLUTO water

In the old stage coach days, French Lick was the gathering place of America's finest gentlemen. Merchant princes, statesmen, scions of fashion, came there to be rejuvenated through the miracle-working mineral waters.

As PLUTO did then, so it does now. It is more than a physic. Its minerals act as a tonic in your blood. Especially beneficial in treatment of kidney, liver and stomach troubles, rheumatism and nervous disorders.

SAYS STRIKE IS SURE IF BEER IS BANNED

C. F. U. Secretary Says Million Union Men Would Be Thrown Out of Work.

LABOR'S FIGHT FOR THEM

To Act on Demonstration Feb. 21, Demanding Beer and Wine Be Exempt Under Dry Law.

Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, who has sent a letter to all labor organizations affiliated with the union urging them to declare for a general strike against prohibition on July 1, said yesterday that the the strike plans would be canceled if light wines and beer were held to be non-intoxicating and not within the scope of the amendment.

"This movement is not based solely on personal liberty or our right to have beer," said Mr. Bohm. "We are making the fight to prevent more than a million men being thrown out of work. This measure would affect every trade more or less, but particularly the brewers, who are strongly organized; glass makers, coopers, firemen, engineers, and even men in building trades.

"About a million men will fight this amendment, if it extends to light wine and beer, because they want to keep their jobs. The other men in the ranks of organized labor will strike to help them, and for principles of personal liberty. This is not a bluff. Common sense ought to make it plain that a measure which hits at so many union men will be fought seriously.

"The sentiment in organized labor is already very strong on the subject and is growing. The laboring man is beginning to get angry. Like nearly everybody else, he is just beginning to realize that this prohibition amendment is not exactly a joke. The Central Federated Union made a fight against the amendment and even sent a delegation to oppose it before the Senate committee. We were the only union to do so. Neither the brewery workers themselves, the union men generally, nor the general public considered the matter as serious. Now they do.

"Our action will be decided upon on Feb. 21, when the delegates from the different organizations affiliated with us meet here. I am confident that the vote will be for a general strike on July 1, or earlier.

"We understand that the amendment cannot be repealed except by the same process by which it was passed, but we think that Congress or the States can see to it that beer and light wines are exempted from it. If beer containing from 3 to 3½ per cent. alcohol and light wines are not prohibited, I believe that labor will be satisfied. No fight is being made for whisky or other spirits."

"Are you co-operating in your fight with the brewers, wine interests, and saloons?" was asked of Secretary Bohm.

"We are not," he replied. "We are acting independently as labor unions. There is not the slightest connection between the fight being made by the money interests involved and the laboring men."

NAME PORT STRIKE ARBITER.

V. Everit Macy Appointed Umpire by War Labor Board.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Upon receipt of a telegram of acceptance the War Labor Board today announced the appointment of V. Everit Macy as umpire of the New York Harbor strike.

Harbor transportation was paralyzed for three days on Jan. 9, 10, and 11 last because of a strike of 16,000 members of the Marine Affiliation to enforce their demand for a basic eight-hour day and a wage increase of 25 per cent. When President Wilson cabled, at the end of three days, to the National War Labor Board urging intervention, the strikers agreed to return to work while the controversy was being arbitrated. The War Labor Board came here and appointed a sub-committee to take evidence. The appointment of an umpire is to award a decision that will be acceptable to both the boat owners and the Marine Affiliation on the evidence taken by the sub-committee.

V. Everit Macy, who has been named as umpire, was appointed by President Wilson as Chairman of the Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board of the United States. He was formerly Superintendent of the Poor in Westchester County and later Commissioner of Charities of Westchester.

Connecticut Rejects Prohibition.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 12.—The joint resolution to ratify the Federal prohibition amendment, which was rejected by the Connecticut Senate last week and adopted by the House yesterday, was in effect finally killed by the Senate today, when it voted 24 to 7 to adhere to its former rejection.

20,000 MORE INTEND TO GO ON STRIKE

Union Leader Predicts Extension of Labor Difficulties in the Garment Industry.

DISAGREE AT CONFERENCES

Strikers Plan a Picket Demonstration in the Dress and Waist District.

While the situation as regards the strike of dress and waist makers, now entering its fourth week, remains unchanged, with 20,000 workers still out, plans are being made for a strike early next week of some 20,000 additional workers engaged on white goods, muslin underwear, house dresses, kimonas, and children's dresses, according to a statement made last night by Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Garment Workers' Union. All of these workers demand a forty-four-hour week, an increase in wages, and in case of the white goods and muslin underwear workers they also want union conditions.

A meeting was held last night at Cooper Union to perfect arrangements for the strike of the workers in the latter industry, 95 per cent. of whom are said to be women. Mr. Schlesinger said that several conferences had been held between a committee of the union and the Cotton Garment Manufacturers' Association in the last few weeks, but no agreement could be reached. The strike, which he said would be called within a few days, would involve 8,000 workers.

Officers of the International Union, Mr. Schlesinger said, conferred with the employers' association in the house dress and kimona industry in an effort to avert the strike, but no agreement could be reached. This strike, he said, was scheduled for early next week, and would involve 6,000 workers.

"Several thousand girls employed at making children's dresses will also be on strike next week," said Mr. Schlesinger. "The manufacturers' association in this trade granted the workers a forty-four-hour work week and an increase in wages. The strike will, therefore, be confined to the independent firms and open-shop manufacturers only."

Strike benefits were paid yesterday to the strikers at 16 West Twenty-first Street. Mr. Schlesinger said that a picket demonstration on an extraordinarily large scale was being arranged in the dress and waist district for next Monday morning. Congressman London would come from Washington, he said, to address the girl strikers.

The Merchants' Association has approved and sent to Acting Mayor Moran a letter received from one of its members, a manufacturing house in the Murray Hill district, asking for protection for its workers against interference by strikers.

"I write," the letter reads, "as a member of the Merchants' Association to ask why, if the Mayor of Seattle can, by virtue of the authority vested in him as Mayor, guarantee to all people of Seattle absolute and complete protection, the Mayor of New York cannot do the same for New Yorkers.

"There is a strike on of the waist workers, and some of the firms affected are in our building. We have nothing to do with it, but hereby quote a few of the happenings within the last week: Our bookkeeper was threatened with the remark, in our corridor, that 'We'll get you yet.' This morning I stood in front of our doorway with the idea of preventing girls employed by us from being mauled by these strikers and they told me they would do just as they pleased, and it is quite evident to me that they are doing it."

The writer of the letter said that he had seen more lawlessness in one week on Madison and Fifth Avenues, in the manufacturing districts, than all the years he lived in the Gas House district, where he was born. The firm of which the writer of the letter is a member, he said, spent $100 for a flag pole, and he said that in looking up at America's emblem the thought came to his mind:

"If members of my family and friends were willing and have died to make the world a decent place to live in, surely there is enough law left to make New York a decent place for gentle and fair-minded American girls to work in."

There was no change yesterday in the situation relative to the strike and lockout in the building trades, both of which are temporarily held up, and under the terms of an agreement reached Tuesday the carpenters will return to work this morning, while the unionists and employers, at a conference today, will endeavor to settle their differences. The truce expires at noon Saturday, but the indications are that a settlement will be reached before that time.

RIGHT TO STRIKE HELD INALIENABLE

Railroad Labor Would Retain It, Even Under Government Ownership, Says Garretson.

AGAINST A MINIMUM WAGE

Says Labor is Entitled to a Greater Proportion of Its Production Than It Receives.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—No matter whether the railroads are Government owned or private owned, labor will still demand the right to strike, according to A. B. Garretson, President of the Order of Railway Conductors, who today again appeared before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

"The Government has no right to limit any privilege of citizenship enjoyed by labor, even though the Government itself is the employer," said the brotherhood leader.

Senator Cummins of Iowa made the point that in the past wages had been fixed by competition and collective bargaining, but if the railroads were owned by the Government one man might be empowered to fix wages. Mr. Garretson dissented from any such plan.

"Should they be decided by the right to strike?" asked the Senator.

"The right to strike must and will continue," was the reply.

Creating any law that would not be obeyed would be the "sum total of unwisdom," Mr. Garretson told the committee, because nothing but a contempt for the law would be resultant.

"Nothing," he said, "can create such contempt for law as to pass legislation of such a character. There is a point at which no power can force obedience, and where laboring men break away from their own leaders' control, as in the strike at Seattle. When men believe that a law on the books invades an inherent right and delivers them bound hand and foot over to their oppressors that law will not be obeyed."

Discussing equal representation of employer and employe on arbitration boards, Mr. Garretson said:

"I am going to make an anti-Bolshevist statement, and that is that the tyranny of one class will never be less than the tyranny of another. Between the tyranny of serfs and overlords there must be a cushion of men representative of both extremes, but removed from the basic questions involved."

Exploitation of labor had "received careful attention by the predatory class" for a long time, the witness stated, and he added:

"This predatory class never made any effort to determine the equity of the wage earners. But whenever it comes to the point where this equity is really determined, then labor will get the same consideration as capital. Labor is entitled to a greater proportion of its production than it now receives. No less should be paid labor under the present system than is consistent with American standards of living. The laboring man must live comfortably, and he must be able to fit his children to be good citizens of the Republic."

Returning to the subject of wages, the Brotherhood chief said that as profit-sharing is an "equal division of profits between all in the enterprise," the wages should be determined by a tribunal equally balanced between all interests.

"Men have wrested from the corporations the right to a vote in fixing their wages, but labor should not be allowed alone to fix the sums," he said.

Mr. Garretson went on record against a minimum wage, which he declared was not a cure, but a palliative. He also said wage adjustment boards should be composed of representative officials from labor and capital, and not of "underlings" on either side.

The Brotherhood chiefs will meet with Director General Hines tomorrow and discuss, it is said, the wage advance which the Railroad Administration is expected to allow and which, it is predicted, will be nearly $100,000,000. It is also said the heads of the Brotherhoods will ask Mr. Hines to ask the President, when Mr. Wilson returns, to abolish the order forbidding certain political activities by the railway employes. The opposition of the employes to a five-year extension of Federal control is based upon this order, and Mr. Garretson has said upon the stand that if it were revoked the opposition would disappear.

Mr. Garretson will appear again as a witness tomorrow and will be followed by S. Davies Warfield and Luther M. Wallace, respectively President and counsel of the National Association of Security Holders.

New Hampshire Sticks to Dry Law.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 12.—The State House of Representatives today, by a vote of 173 to 140, killed a bill to legalize the sale of beer and light wines. The prohibition law adopted by the Legislature two years ago made illegal the manufacture and sale of all intoxicating liquors, and the effect of the bill defeated today would have been to exempt beer and light wine from the provisions of the law.

WORK FOUND FOR 1[illegible]8,855.

Federal Employment Service Announces Record for Two Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Announcement was made tonight that during the week ended Jan. 25 the United States Employment Service received 136,940 applications for work. Of this number 126,177, or 91.4 per cent. were referred to openings, and 90,978, or 66.4 per cent., were placed in employment.

During the week ended Feb. 1, the service received 119,826 applications. Of this number 99,799, or 83.2 per cent., were referred to places, and return cards received to date show that 77,877, or 64.1 per cent., have been employed.

Striking Reduction in Package Delivery Cost Wins $500 Prize for Truck Driver

FIRST PRIZE in Class C of the Packard National Truck Efficiency Test goes to a truck driver in Chicago. Working his truck on modern business methods taught by the Packard Freight Transportation Department, this driver handled in August 6,873 packages, and reduced his carrying cost 1 cent per package—a saving of $68.73 per month, or $825 for the year.

Wholesale grocery business, delivering boxed, barreled and bagged goods to a route of retail stores.

Frequent stops and starts with short runs. Starting with full load and returning empty or practically so.

In August alone he saved enough to pay the owner at the rate of 15 per cent a year on the cost of the truck.

Many a truck owner does not realize the difference between the two classes of truck load—

The solid capacity load, hauled in its entirety from origin to destination—

And the load made up of a number of smaller shipments to be dropped off here and there along the route.

In the second case he should have a smaller truck.

Here is a distinction which may make a difference of $700 per truck on his fleet investment, and as much as $200 to $250 a year per truck in his operating costs.

It is a matter of buying the truck to fit the job.

Guessing at the size of truck needed is one cause of much of the excess cost in motor trucking.

Motor trucking, its service, its costs and economies, is one of the livest issues of the day.

The business man needs first of all to get the facts—the experience of people competent to speak.

That is the function of the Freight-Transportation Department of your local Packard Branch or Packard Dealer.

It is a Department not of Sales but of Service.

Its place and purpose are to tell you, the truck owner and driver, how modern business methods, applied to your present make of trucks, will effect transportation economies in your business.

Its services are without charge. Make use of them freely.

Some Results of Packard 100% War Work

Figures released for publication at the close of hostilities show that the Packard Trucks on the fighting fronts numbered 1000 more than the trucks of any other make.

Over four and a half million pounds of freight and express for the Packard Company were carried by Packard trucks during the past year. Exactly 3,699 Packard vehicles were sent to consignees under their own power which, with the freight and express transportation noted, released at least 2,000 freight cars to haul the mountains of war materials so desperately needed abroad. This is a very substantial realization of the slogan "Save a Freight Car for Uncle Sam," by those who originated it.

The truck transportation included work for the government as well as for the Packard Company, and frequently trucks were used in transporting material on urgent calls to points as much as 400 miles distant. Over 3,000 of the trucks sent overland were for army use, and many of them carried three tons of merchandise to the port of debarkation.

The value of this relief to the railroads by this freight movement over the highways cannot be comprehended in ton miles, for a large measure of it was achieved at the very time when weather conditions last winter practically blockaded the great munition carrying lines. It was just a year ago December 14th that the first train of 30 Packards set out overland for Baltimore. They left in 2-below-zero weather and contended with snow-filled roads all the way to the sea.

A cut of 50% in gasoline consumption, as a result of accurate cost-keeping, is reported by one express company employing a fleet of twelve Packard Trucks.

The saving covers the three months of the Packard Truck Efficiency Test, and all costs were recorded on the National Standard Truck Cost System, as perfected by the Truck Owners' Conference.

The National Standard Truck Cost System is the cost-accounting method adopted from the combined experience of several of the largest makers of trucks.

It is complete, exact, impartial—applicable to any truck and any business.

The Most Attractive Line in the Show

Judging from the number of new dealers with whom we have already closed during the past week, practically every desirable territory east of Pittsburg will be gone before the exhibition closes.

It isn't the force of advertising that has brought DAY-ELDER trucks into the limelight—but the weight of value. The DAY-ELDER line is such a phenomenally successful one because it is the greatest value-giving line in the United States—bar none. That's what sells them—the superior quality that they represent at their prices. Other worm-drive trucks of the same quality and carrying capacity are priced hundreds of dollars more!

See this complete line in centre section, Madison Square Garden. It will impress you far more favorably than any other line on exhibition, [illegible] to 6 tons. Made in Newark within easy drive-away distance for the average Eastern dealer.

57 OFFICERS AND MEN GET SERVICE CROSSES

Lieut. Decoppet, Lieut. Campbell, and Sergt. Launcelot Among New Yorkers Honored.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The names of fifty-seven officers and enlisted men of the American Expeditionary Force who have received the Distinguished Service Cross from General Pershing for extraordinary heroism in action were made public today by the War Department. Seven of the men honored are from this city or nearby places. Their names and the specific acts for which they have been decorated follow:

First Lieut. Andre Decoppet, aide de camp, 77th Division. For extraordinary heroism in action near Merval, France, Sept. 14, 1918. In preparation for an attack by units of his division, Lieutenant Decoppet helped establish an observation post. Learning a wounded officer was in front, Lieutenant Decoppet made his way twice through intense fire from artillery and small arms to where the wounded officer lay, and assisted in carrying him back to safety. Home address, 314 West Eighty-fifth Street, New York City.

Second Lieut. John A. Campbell, 9th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Blanc Mont Ridge, France, Oct. 3, 1918. While in an advanced position flanked by machine guns and under heavy artillery fire, Lieutenant Campbell carried a message to regimental headquarters by the shortest and most direct route, woods occupied by the enemy. Home address, Mrs. Florence Campbell, wife, 1,721 Glenwood Road, New York, N. Y.

Sergt. William Jackson, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, A. S. No. 38,425. For extraordinary heroism in action near Blanc Mont Ridge, France, Oct. 3-9, 1918. While acting as battalion runner, Sergt. Jackson, regardless of personal danger, many times volunteered and carried messages under the most intense shellfire, thereby greatly assisting in maintaining liason with other units. Home address, Mrs. William Jackson, mother, 143 South Carolina Avenue, Atlantic City, N. J.

Sergt. Marc V. Launcelot, 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, A S. No. 28,292. For extraordinary heroism in action near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3, 1918. During the absence of his platoon commander, Sergt. Launcelot took command of the platoon, led an attack and captured seven machine guns in strong position. He was later seriously wounded. Home address, Mrs. Anna MacNeil, friend, 559 West 149th Street, New York.

Bugler Thomas Schlokda, Machine Gun Company, 9th Infantry, A. S. No. 41,432. For extraordinary heroism in action near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 7, 1918. After having received a wound in his knee by a machine-gun bullet and a shell wound in the face, Bugler Schokda continued his duties as runner until ordered evacuated by his company commander. Home address, Philip Peltin, brother, 2,867 West Twenty-fourth Street, Coney Island, N. Y.

Corporal Harry Osborne, Co. F. 9th Infantry, A. S. No. 39,424. For extraordinary heroism in action near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3, 1918. Corporal Osborne, together with four other men, charged a machine-gun nest containing three heavy machine guns, capturing the three guns and twenty prisoners. Home address, Mrs. Agnes Osborne, mother, 1,177 Washington Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

Private (First Class) Frank J. Bart, Co. C, 9th Infantry, A. S. No. 38,512. For extraordinary heroism in action near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3, 1918. While on duty as company runner Private Bart, seeing that our line was being held up by fire from an enemy machine-gun nest, picked up an automatic rifle, loaded it, and, running out ahead of the line, wiped out the nest, killing the enemy gunners. Shortly after he repeated the same performance at another nest. Home address, Michael Land, friend, 428 Plane Street, Newark, N. J.

The other names made public by the War Department are as follows:

Lieut. Col. Creswell Garlington, Washington, D. C.; Major Hanna, Kansas City, Mo.; Major Robert L. Denig, Philadelphia; Captain Hanford McNider, Mason City, Iowa; Captain Aaron A. Plettner, Ellis City, Kan.; Captain Marvin Cappell, Bunkie, La.; Captain William C. Burdette, Macon, Ga.; Lieutenant Howard T. Fleeson, Sterling, Kan.; Lieutenant James C. Dozier, Rock Hill, S. C.; Lieutenant John H. Morrian, Knoxville, Tenn.; Lieutenant Elac F. Srygley, Nashville, Tenn.; Lieutenant Edwin B. Ives, Salina, Kan.; Lieutenant H. H. Helliwell, Milwaukee, Wis.; Lieutenant Joseph W. Starkey, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Lieutenant George E. Parker, Baltimore, Md.; Sergeant Herman Macarovsky, St. Paul, Minn.; Sergeant George C. Steiner, Port Washington, Wis.; Sergeant Richmonds S. Hilton, Westville, S. C.; Sergeant John H. Gardner, Hartsville, S. C.; Sergeant Marold J. Dupree, Syracuse, N. Y.; Sergeant Gordon A. Hambrick, Georgetown, Ky., and Corporal William [illegible] Earle, St. Louis, Mo.

Corporal Rollo Janssen, Ashley, Ill.; Corporal Elmer Zeller, Castle Shannon, Penn.; Corporal William Curlee, Charlotte, N. C.; Corporal John W. Morgan, Latonia, Ky.; Corporal Frank K. Raymond, Krat City, Mich.; Corporal James C. Jones, Knoxville, Tenn.; Corporal Bert L. Stewart, Idaville, Ind.; Mechanic Myron F. Funderburk, Pageville, S. C.; Private Albert R. Neitzel, St. Francis, Kan.; Private Albert S. Krzykwa, Alto, Mich.; Private Charles L. Beck, Westphalia, Ind.; Private William A. Edsall, Muskegon, Mich.; Private Victor Andrykowski, Saginaw, Mich.; Private Mack Williams, Wiggans, Miss.; Private August J. Massicotte, Franklyn, N. H.; Private Frank M. Harwood, Arlington, Mass.; Private Andy Toblini, Malcasine, Italy; Private William Y. Allen, Atlanta, Ga.; Private Frank G. Williams, Furnessville, Ind.; Private Edward G. Hanna, Angels Camp, Cal.; Private Charles Hunt, River Junction, Vt.; Private Frank Minelga, Westfield, Mass.; Private E. W. Walker, Fruitville, Tenn.; Private Willie Cross, Jefferson City, Tenn.

WELCOME PLEASED DANIELS

Complimented Hylan's Secretary on Naval Reception Here.

Grover Whalen, secretary to Mayor Hylan, received a letter yesterday from Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, complimenting him upon the way in which he arranged for the welcoming of the fleet recently. In his letter Secretary Daniels said:

"The review of the ships afloat and of the parade on shore was carried out without a hitch, and the reception as a whole which was offered to the officers and men of the fleet was characteristic of the cordial hospitality of New York, and was an evidence of the gratitude of the country to the men who have taken such a part in winning the war for democracy."

The disease germ is more dangerous than the mad dog

If a foaming-mouthed, wild-eyed maniac of a mad dog charged at a crowd of children, you know what you would do.

Every ounce of chivalry in your being would be in the quick spring that would land you between the children and danger.

But how about the unseen menace—more threatening—more fatal—more cruel—than a million mad dogs—the disease germ.

The danger spots in the home—places where germs positively will breed unless these places are regularly disinfected, are garbage cans, cuspidors, toilets, sinks, drains, dark, sunless corners and wherever flies gather or breed.

You can make the danger-places in your home completely germ-proof by the regular use of

for no germ can live in its presence.

Lysol is invaluable for Personal Hygiene.

Lysol is economical; a 50c bottle makes 5 gallons of powerful disinfectant, enough to last for months; a 25c bottle makes 2 gallons. Get a bottle today—use it regularly—you will then make a better fight against disease than disease can make against you.

Remember, there is but one true Lysol—the product made, bottled, signed and sealed by Lehn & Fink.

Lysol Toilet Soap

Contains Lysol, and therefore protects the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream

Contains Lysol, and kills germs on razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound), guards the tiny cuts from infection, and gives the antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

Note the number of engineers that gather around the Maxwell at the truck show

It is like spilled sugar in June time to see how the engineers gather around the Maxwell at the Truck Show.

They come from near and far; some sent by corporations that use large fleets, others sent by firms that are about to give up horses all together; others that have to date only 1 or 2 trucks; and still others who design trucks for a livelihood.

They seem to center their attention on two points of the Maxwell—one on the simple engine; the other on the sturdy worm-drive rear axle.

In other respects they will tell you nearly all trucks are like the Maxwell.

"How they can put an engine and an axle like that in a chassis and sell it for $1085 is remarkable", is a comment frequently heard.

Whereupon notes are taken, ignition looked over, brakes observed, clutch operated, and equipment noted.

"How many of these have you built?" asks an engineer.

"Over 10,000 to date," comes the reply.

"How long has the Maxwell Company been at work on this truck?"

"About four years—two in design and experimental work; two in manufacturing."

"What lines of trade are they used for the most part?"

"The Maxwell is everyman's truck. Used in practically any line that has a ton or a ton-and-a-half load."

"Mostly in this section of the country?"

"No, sir. All over the country, and in almost every latitude and longitude of the world."

"How can the Maxwell Company build a chassis like this and sell it for $1085?"

"It has been building trucks in large quantity, on a single chassis model, has 8 large plants, properties that run up into many, many millions of dollars, a rapid turnover on account of the low price, and a very small selling expense."

Visit the Maxwell exhibit at the Motor Truck Show, see for yourself, and listen to the complimentary things said about the Maxwell. Ten minutes there may save you thousands of dollars.

WAR REVENUE BILL AGAIN GOES OVER

Senate Adjourns After Three-Hour Denunciation by Penrose of 'Extravagance and Waste.'

SMOOT PREDICTS UPHEAVAL

Lewis and Thomas Retort That Republicans Themselves Approved of Expenditures.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Final action on the conference report on the $6,000,000,000 War Revenue Bill was deferred today by an early adjournment of the Senate in observance of the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln. This unexpected move came after Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, senior Republican of the Senate conferees, had precipitated a general debate with a three hours' attack on what he termed extravagance and waste in appropriations since the war began.

Senators Lewis of Illinois and Thomas of Colorado replied to Senator Penrose's charges and declared that if there had been extravagance in appropriations the Republicans were subject to the same criticism as the Democrats, as united support had been given for war expenditures. Senator Thomas read several bills, introduced by Republican members, which he said were as open to criticism as those cited by Senator Penrose. "There is no real demand from the people for economy," he added. "The people's appetite for public money is as universal as our habit for giving it to them." He advocated the adoption of a budget system.

Senator Penrose in his speech asserted that pending bills in both houses reached "the staggering aggregate" of $10,000,000,000. He characterised most of them as "useless legislation," saying that the Democrats, and some Republicans, appeared to have gone upon a "debauch" to see how much money might be weaned from the public treasury, and that the American people would be amazed when they realized how deep their legislators had planned to dip into the Government exchequer.

Railroad Blundering Charged.

The "blunders" of the Administration in handling the railroads, in putting steamship lines out of business, and in smothering other enterprises, he said, had entailed a loss "equal to the cost of the war," adding: "I say in all candor, I think the Bolshevist Government in Petrograd could have run the railroads better than the representatives of the American people have run them in the last eighteen months."

The Government, Senator Penrose said, had created 274,000 new offices during the war, involving a salary list of $159,296,695. Of the new men put at work, only 30 or 40 per cent. were found to be capable of doing the tasks assigned to them, the others being carried along as dead weight by the Government. "I say deliberately and I have been corroborated by members of these boards down here—dollar-a-year men—that maybe 60 or 70 per cent. of these offices were needless, the result of inefficiency and improvidence," he added.

He referred to the fund of $1,800,000,000 spent by the Shipping Board, which money he said was largely waste. "The policy of the Government should have been," he continued, "to have these ships built in existing yards and to have held contractors rigidly responsible for results, instead of building enormous plants like the Hog Island shipyard under a wasteful cost-plus contract, demoralizing the labor market, hiring men, clerks, and mechanics at soaring and fanciful wages."

Senator Penrose said that hundreds of millions of dollars had been spent on housing of war needs, and that the houses are now almost entirely a dead loss to the Government.

Senator Smoot of Utah, amplifying the figures quoted by Mr. Penrose as to probable expenditures this year, said that if all the appropriation bills pending were put through, the aggregate expenditures would be $20,000,000,000.

"And where is the money coming from?" demanded Mr. Smoot.

"I want to express my regret and concern that this bill has been the vehicle for irrevelant legislation," said Senator Penrose. "If that practise is to continue, a revenue bill will become a menace and a danger while it is passing through this body. Certainly the power of taxation is not meant as a method to regulate the methods and habits of this nation. It is mad enough to have 100 per cent. tax on brass knuckles because some people do not think brass knuckles ought to be discouraged. I shall not argue the merits of the so-called bone dry amendment, but certainly a revenue measure ought not to be made an agency for legislation affecting the matters of police and the sobriety of the community.

"Instead of the bill carrying $8,000,000,000, the Finance Committee of the Senate was able to reduce it to $6,000,000,000. A large part of that reduction is more apparent than real, because there must be made up the loss of revenues from intoxicating beverages.

Alarm in the Country.

"But the average sentiment was that the bill should pass, until throughout the country men began to wake up to the wasteful expenditures of Congress for every kind of chimerical bill imaginable. People began to say—and I have reference to the sentiments expressed in thousands of letters received by me—'What is the use in raising revenue if it is to be poured like water out of a bucket into the gutter?—what nation, however wealthy, can stand expenditures like these?'

"Only the other day the Senate passed a $100,000,000 appropriation for the so-called famine sufferers in Europe. Nearly half the Republicans voted against the bill. Many who voted for it did so with the greatest reluctance. There was no information before the Senate, only a vague telegram from the President; no definite information as to how the money would be spent.

"Money has been poured out in a kind of debauch by those who seem to have lost all idea of what $1,000,000,000 means. I wish merely to allude to the most casual survey I have made of propositions floating around in this chamber and in the House of Representatives, all of which have the purpose of extracting money from the public Treasury without any authority of a budget system, apparently without any consultation with anybody else, to gratify the whim, the caprice, or the fad of some theorist without any basis of investigated fact; and yet many of these have passed this body notwithstanding the protest of a few of us."

Secretary Lane's bill to reclaim swamp and logged-off lands for discharged soldiers, at a cost of $4,000,000,000, he characterized as "chimerical." Criticising the Kenyon bill for $400,000,000 to be spent in public works to check unemployment, he said Senators advocated a pet project, and that the unemployment question had been greatly exaggerated. The bill for $1,000,000,000 to maintain guaranteed wheat prices was referred to by the Pennsylvanian as a measure "to make good the folly of Hoover" in fixing prices. He urged an accounting of President Wilson's special war fund, saying any balance now remaining should be turned in.

Senator Jones of Washington suggested that the new navy program involved the expenditure of almost $1,000,000,000. He wanted to know how the Government was going to meet this and other largely increased expenditures.

Senator Smoot suggested that even not considering the bills mentioned by Senator Penrose there would be vast appropriation bills that must come before this session of Congress aggregating over $10,000,000,000. If these became a law, he said, the country instead of having to meet a $10,000,000,000 expenditure next year would be forced to meet one of $20,000,000,000.

"The country cannot do it," concluded Senator Smoot. "If Congress appropriates money for all these bills which have been referred to today the country will rise in its might and power and drive from public life every man who would approve of such appropriations, and I hope that they will do it if anything like that happens."

Senator Lewis observed that $7,000,000,000 was due the American nation from foreign nations, and suggested that they could issue bonds which could be turned over to the United States Government to be used through the Federal Reserve system and that taxes could be lessened to that extent.

Senator Smoot said he was preparing a bill somewhat along that line, to meet expenditures caused by the war, to provide that the foreign Governments meet their obligations through the issuance of notes or bonds.

BALTIMORE CLUB'S SUIT AGAINST ORGANIZED BASEBALL UNDER ANTI-TRUST LAW IS REVIVED

BASEBALL SUIT UP FOR TRIAL MARCH 10

Baltimore Federal League Club Asks $900,000 Damages in Anti-Trust Action.

BAN JOHNSON IN TOWN

Holds Conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert on Chairmanship of National Commission.

The $900,000 damage suit which was brought against organized baseball several seasons ago by the Baltimore Federal League Club has again bobbed up, and President John A. Heydler of the National League, who returned from Washington yesterday, announced that the case would be heard on March 10. The action is brought under the Sherman anti-trust law.

This case, which has been in litigation for some time, was heard in Philadelphia a few years ago; but after one day's testimony had been taken the Baltimore Club voluntarily withdrew the case and it was transferred to Washington. The case has been on the court calendar since that time. The suit was the outcome of the settlement of the Federal League war. In the adjustment of the controversy the Baltimore Club owners of the Federal League held that they had been overlooked in the settlement.

Not only the major leagues are defendants in the action, but also the Wards of Brooklyn, Harry F. Sinclair, who owned the Newark Club in the outlaw league, and Edward W. Gwinner of Pittsburgh. In the settlement of the baseball war these three club owners were compensated, while Phil Ball, then a Federal Leaguer, became owner of the St. Louis Browns, and Charles F. Weeghman and his Chicago associates bought the Chicago Clubs. All these men are also defendants in the action.

Mr. Heydler said that Benjamin Minor of the Washington Club would represent the defendants in the preliminaries of the case.

President Ban Johnson of the American League was in this city yesterday and talked over the suit with President Heydler. Mr. Johnson's trip had a twofold significance because he was also in conference with Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yankees. Colonel Ruppert is a member of the committee which is to choose a Chairman of the National Commission to succeed August Herrmann of Cincinnati, and Ruppert and Johnson talked over this matter yesterday.

Besides Ruppert, Frank J. Navin of Detroit is also on the committee representing the American League, while the National League representatives are William F. Baker of Philadelphia and William Veech of Chicago. As far as is known, this committee has not been able to agree on a candidate yet, although several names are under consideration. Herrmann is still Chairman and will hold the position until the major leagues take some joint action. It is believed that a change in the chairmanship will be made before the opening of the coming season.

The failure of Herrmann to withdraw voluntarily from the chairmanship was a matter of disappointment to his fellow club owners, and they are anxious for a change as soon as possible. It would not be surprising if there was some important action by the committee in a short time.

The Telegraph Committee of the National League, made up of Barney Dreyfus of Pittsburgh, William F. Baker of Philadelphia, and Charles Ebbets of Brooklyn, held a confab at the Waldorf yesterday, but they talked of other matters, more important than the wire accommodations at the baseball parks.

Brooklyn is looking for another catcher, and Baker is also in the field for a trade. He has an iron in the fire with the Boston Braves, but nothing has materialized yet. Dreyfus has some players whom he wants to trade, but if these three club owners made any deals last night they kept the news to themselves.

A meeting will be held at the office of the National League this afternoon to form an Eddie Grant Memorial Association. Manager McGraw is one of the moving spirits of the organization, and its aim is to establish some sort of a permanent memorial for the former baseball player of the Giants who was killed in the Argonne Forest.

For the first time in five years the Yale baseball team will open the exhibition baseball season with the Giants at the Polo Grounds, and the Elis will meet McGraw's men on April 22. The Giants have also booked two more exhibition games with Washington in Norfolk, Va., for April 16 and 17.

FORDHAM SQUAD OUTDOORS.

Coach Arthur Devlin Gives Players Workout on Diamond.

Arthur Devlin, the Fordham baseball coach, took advantage of the mild weather yesterday afternoon and brought his charges outdoors for a long workout. The squad, which now numbers about twenty-five players, has been practicing in the university gymnasium for the last week.

During the batting practice Martin, Halloran, and Capain Finn, the three veteran twirlers, and MacNamara, a youngster from Milford, Mass., each took a turn on the mound. The infield for most of the afternoon consisted of McLoughlin at first base, Howe at second, Lefevre at third, and McCarthy at short. In the outfield were Keough, Eustace, Ferguson, and Rooney.

BOYD VICTOR AT BILLIARDS.

Concedes 20 Points to Blaisdell and Defeats Him, 150 to 126.

Frank Boyd overcame a twenty-point handicap last night in defeating James F. Blaisdell in the Victory Handicap 14.2 balkline billiard tournament at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. The score was 150 to 126 in forty-five innings.

A consistent display of form in the forty-third inning, when he gathered in 37 points, placed Boyd in the lead, and he quickly completed his string in the succeeding two innings.

The victor had an average of 3 15-45. Blaisdell had a high run of 14, with an average of 2 36-45.

CANNEFAX CLEVER WITH CUE

St. Louis Player Defeats Frisch in Handicap Match at Lawler's.

Robert Cannefax of St. Louis, former champion, played brilliantly yesterday in his two three-cushion carom billiard matches at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. In the evening Cannefax defeated Harry Frisch in a handicap match by 40 to 27 in forty-four innings. Frisch was playing for 30 points.

Cannefax's success brought his total up to 85 for the three blocks decided, while Frisch has 87 points. Cannefax made two runs of four and an unfinished cluster of six. In the afternoon the former champion defeated James Lawler by a count of 40 to 19 in forty-one innings. Cannefax had runs of seven and five.

Red Sox May Go to Cuba.

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—The Boston American League Club received an invitation today from a group of business men of Havana to play a series of games in Cuba during the Spring training tour. Manager Edward Barrow said the proposition might be accepted, as the club could get to Havana from Tampa, its [illegible] without difficulty.

LA GROS AND KEYES BEATEN

McAllister and Cunningham in Semi-Finals at Seventh Regiment.

The indoor tennis courts at the 7th Regiment Armory were alive with players yesterday afternoon, several of the junior and boy players practicing for the Middle States indoor tournament, which is to be played in Philadelphia on Saturday. Vincent Richards, Abraham Bassford, 3d; Harold Taylor, the two Donaldson brothers, and several others took part in spirited practice matches.

In the 7th Regiment tournament doubles Samuel R. McAllister and C. D. Cunningham defeated Teddy La Gros and John Keyes, 6—4, 8—6, in a hard-fought match. McAllister and Cunningham were hard pressed in the second set and won only after a stiff struggle.

Jay Anderson and Harry Follett, who will play in the finals on Saturday, were also practicing for their match yesterday.

EPSTEIN TENNIS MANAGER.

The election of Shirley Epstein, 1919, as manager of the City College tennis team for the coming season was announced yesterday. The Executive Board of the Athletic Association of the College of the City of New York met officially yesterday for the first time since the advent of the Students' Army Training Corps.

The newly elected tennis manager announced that practice for the racket-wielders would begin within a week or two at the most. The lavender netmen will have a hard time of it the coming season because very few veterans are back in college. Only three of last year's players will don the flannel for the Heights institution. They are Algase, Schapiro, and Rabinowitz, who will probably be chosen captain of the lavender forces for the ensuing season.

SCHOOLBOYS PLAY CHESS.

Boys' High Players Lead in Championship Tournament.

Thirty-eight players, representing ten high schools—Boys' High of Brooklyn, Commercial, Curtis, De Witt Clinton, Erasmus, Evander Childs, Manual Training, Richmond Hill, Stuyvesant, and Townsend Harris Hall—entered the annual high school individual championship tournament and contested the four preliminary rounds at Marshall's Chess Club yesterday.

Six of these qualified for places in the final round for the medals, which will be played off on Washington's Birthday. The sextet included Morris Schapiro, Samuel Katz, and Joseph Weiner, all of Boys' High; Joseph Kalb of Stuyvesant, Loyd Campbell of Erasmus, and Samuel Avin of Curtis. Schapiro, Katz, and Kalb made clean scores of 4-0 each, Weiner and Campbell each had 3½-½ to their credit, while Avin, the Staten Island player, was one of ten with totals of 3-1, but was lucky enough to be chosen by lot in order to make an even number of players in the final round.

Boys' High and De Witt Clinton led in the number of entries, having nine each in line, Commercial being next with four, and Erasmus and Manual Training with three each. Frank J. Marshall, the United States champion, acted as referee and adjudicated all of the unfinished games at the close of each round.

Marquand Beats Boys' High in Tank

In a fast and interesting meet, held at the Central Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn, the Marquand School swimmers beat the Boys' High natators last night before a large crowd by the score of 30 points to 22. B. H. S. was handicapped by the illness of the Captain, Sid Patton, who nevertheless put up a plucky fight and was barely nosed out in the 50-yard swim. Using all his pluck and strength he won the 100-yard swim. Schaap of Boys' High won the plunge by one-half foot, plunging 52⅕ feet and beating Kirston of Marquand.

MRS. DE MEO'S POMS MOW RIVALS DOWN

Pall Mall Wee Goldspeck and Mlle. Rosellina Get Chief Honors at Show.

Mrs. V. S. De Meo of the Bronx, owner of the Pall Mall Kennels, monopolized the major laurels yesterday at the ninth annual specialty show of the American Pomeranian Club, held in the Park Avenue Hotel. To Mrs. De Meo, who was formerly Mrs. Henry Hill, went the distinction of owning the best dog of the show and the best of opposite sex. Pall Mall Wee Goldspeck, a beautiful flaming orange, carried off the best crown, while Pall Mall Mademoiselle Rosellina, formerly Pall Mall Rosellina, was adjudged the best of the weaker sex. This is the first time in the history of the fixture that the leading prizes have fallen to the same exhibitor.

Pall Mall Wee Goldspeck's success gives this attractive little Pomeranian another triumph in a remarkable career. Best of show honors have been awarded this dog in four previous shows—at Greenwich, Conn.; Spring Lake, N. J.; Bala, Penn., and New Rochelle. The success of Pall Mall Mademoiselle Rosellina was one of the features of the show. This female is but eleven months old. In all of the classes in which she was entered Mademoiselle Rosellina got chief laurels.

Mrs. De Meo's two best prizes topped a comprehensive day of successes. Not once was her exhibit defeated. In addition to the chief prizes Mrs. De Meo received awards for the best dog, best bitch, best American bred, best puppy, best brace and best team. Pall Mall His Majesty scored brilliantly for Mrs. De Meo, going from the puppy class to the prize for best American-bred dog. His Majesty received the prize for the best novice of any color, and was one of the successful brace and team.

The show was among the most successful ever held. Officials admitted the biggest "gate" in the history of the organization and the judging was accepted without unfavorable comment. A total of 105 Pomeranians were entered, and there were few absentees. Another feature which made the show a record-breaker was that there were more prizes to be won outright this year than ever before. American-bred dogs scored convincingly over imported rivals.

SCHAEFFLER TAKES MEDAL.

Defeats Adversaries in Duelling Swords Competition at Turn Verein.

J. C. Schaeffler of the New York A. C. won first place last night in the junior duelling swords competition at the New York Turn Verein, winning three victories in bouts against four rivals. The prize was the gold medal of the Amateur Fencers' League of America. While the league officials do not term the tournament a championship affair, it is accepted as of title significance among the junior fencers.

S. B. O'Connor and Ray W. Dutcher of the New York A. C. and Ernest Riebe of the New York Turn Verein tied for second prize, a silver medal, each with two victories. On the fence-off, Dutcher won two bouts and Riebe one, so that the New York A. C. fencer received the silver medal and Riebe the bronze token. J. C. Piene of the New York A. C. was the other participant.

C. C. N. Y. Cancels Yale Meet.

The City College swimming team will again be forced to postpone the opening of its season. The scheduled meet with Yale at New Haven tomorrow night has been called off by the local college because of lack of practice due to repairs being made in the pool.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR OWLS.

Polo Trio Goes Down Before Eagles in Durland's Tourney.

The White Owls polo trio suffered its first defeat of the indoor season last night at the hands of the Eagles in the Phillips Cup tournament at Durland's Riding Academy. The score was 10 to 7. The contest resulted in one of the fastest and most interesting played complete surprise.

In offensive strength the teams were evenly matched, but defensively the White Owls were found wanting at critical stages of the game. Otis Coleman played back for the vanquished trio. His efforts were mediocre when compared with the play he has furnished in previous games.

The first half ended with the teams, both of which were playing on even terms, tied at 4 to 4. In the second period Archie Kinney led a victorious attack, in which he accounted for five goals.

The lineup:

EAGLES, (10.)	WHITE OWLS, (7.)
No. 1—G. Sherman.	No. 1—M. Wilder.
No. 2—A. Kinney.	No. 2—H. Winn.
Back—G. Maynard.	Back—O. Coleman.

Goals—First period: Sherman, (2,) Kinney, Maynard, Wilder, Winn, (2,) Coleman; second period: Sherman, Kinney, (5,) Wilder, Winn, (2.) Time of periods—Ten minutes. Referee—A. Bartel.

FEITNER LOSES ON LINKS.

South Shore Golfer Eliminated in Palm Beach Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—The second round of match play in the South Florida golf championship today eliminated J. N. Van Buren, Sherwood, who was tied for the low medal score with W. J. Baxter, Oakland. There was a twenty-hole match in which Quintin Feitner of the South Shore Field Club was eliminated after being dormie at the fourteenth.

J. B. Elwell, Apawamis, though in the third flight, led the entire field with a medal score of 32 at the turn and won, 5 and 3, from H. L. Hankinson with a card of 67 for the fifteen holes.

The summaries:

First Flight.—C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., Montclair, defeated J. N. Van Buren, Sherwood, 2 and 1; H. C. Clarke, Myopia, defeated Quintin Feitner, South Shore Field, 1 up, (20 holes;) Andrew Carnegie 2d, Myopia, defeated A. H. Poehler, Minneapolis, 1 up; W. J. Baxter, Oakland, defeated W. R. Simon, New York, 2 up.

LOW SCORE FOR MRS. HURD.

Wins Medal Round in Women's Tournament at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd won the medal in the qualifying round of the St. Valentine Tournament for women, played on the No. 1 course at Pinehurst today.

Mrs. Hurd finished in 48, 45—93, three strokes ahead of Mrs. Francis Talfourd Keating of the Agawam Hunt Club, and Miss Eleanor T. Chandler of Philadelphia, each of whom covered the course in 49, 47—96. Three-eights qualified for match play.

The summaries:

First Division.—Mrs. D. C. Hurd, Westmoreland, 48, 45—93; Miss Eleanor T. Chandler, Philadelphia, 49, 47—96; Mrs. F. Talfourd Keating, Agawam Hunt, 49, 47—96; Miss Kate Bomann, Plainfield, 50, 57—107; Mrs. J. D. Chapman, Greenwich, 55, 53—108; Mrs. H. D. Saxton, Brookline, 55, 55—110; Mrs. C. S. Waterhouse, Ardsley, 59, 54—113; Mrs. J. H. Wright, Gedney Farms, 60, 54—114.

ENGLISH SOCCER TEAM WINS

Defeats Sweden in International Cup Tie Match, 3 to 2.

L. F. CURTIS IN LEAD AT N. Y. A. C. TRAPS

Gunner, with Total of 167 Targets, Takes Holiday Shoot at Travers Island.

For the first time in its trap shooting history, the New York Athletic Club was completely swamped with gunners yesterday. Not that the number was exceptional, as there were only seventy-six numrods on the firing line, and there have been times when more than two hundred gunners have shot over the Travers Island traps of the organization. However, the field was entirely too large to handle on four traps and as a result about two and one-half squads were unable to finish the full program of 200 targets.

When it became so dark that it was absolutely impossible to see the flying blue rocks, Chairman George J. Corbett ordered the shoot stopped and ruled that as all the gunners had completed their string of 175 targets, the prizes for the day go to the leading gunners at the 175 mark. Several protested the decision of the Chairman of the Shooting Committee, stating that they might be among the prize winners at 200 targets, while they were out of the running among the 175 scores.

So that there would be no complaint, Chairman Corbett stated that, in addition to the prizes given for the winners at 175 mark, the New York Athletic Club also would give prizes to any gunners who might have beaten out the 175 target winners in the final string. The decision met with the approval of all hands. The Shooting Committee then went into executive session and started to do some figuring. Finally, the committee made the following statement:

"In the shoot for the prizes at 175 targets, in which the regular handicap was cut to ⅞, the winner of the high scratch prize was L. F. Curtis with 167. Then came A. L. Burns with 162. Tracy H. Lewis and Dr. Culver were tied with 161 targets each. Then came J. P. Donovan, H. D. Knight, A. P. Bennett, and G. H. Martin with 159 targets.

"In the shoot for the handicap prizes under the same conditions the winner was E. H. Morse, with 174. Then came W. G. Allen and F. A. Baker, tied with 173½ targets each. F. J. Ham and H. G. Vogel, with 172¾ targets each. The shoot-off will be held next Saturday. No attempt was made to figure the 200 strings."

VOORHIES FAMILY IN VAN.

H. W. Is High Gun, and J. K. and E. W. Get Other Prizes.

The opening of a new series of shoots brought a record field of twenty-nine gunners to the Jamaica Bay traps of the Bergen Beach Gun Club yesterday. Four special prizes have been offered by club members for shoots during February, March, April, May, and June. All who had full scores of twenty-five targets on any of the strings yesterday scored legs on the prizes.

In addition, there was the usual high-scratch prize and five high handicap prizes. The trophies were largely divided by the Voorhies family. H. W. Voorhies won the high-scratch prize with a card of 94 out of a possible 100 targets. J. K. Voorhies won the high handicap prize. The second handicap prize went to W. A. Royce. Then came D. K. Morrell. E. W. Voorhies took the next trophy, and the last was won by F. E. Hewens.

MONTCLAIR WINS IN POOL.

Taylor's Speedy Swimming Helps Largely to Beat St. Paul's.

William Taylor of Montclair High School led his team to victory in a dual swimming meet yesterday with the St. Paul's School swimmers, in the latter's pool at Garden City, L. I. The final score was 38½ to 14½. Taylor, swimming in excellent form, accounted for two victories. He touched off in the lead in the 50 yard swim, in which his time was 0:26 3-5, and in the fancy diving contest he corraled the commanding total of 29 points.

Taylor also gained second place in the 100-yard swim, and was a member of the victorious Montclair relay team.

STUYVESANT IS DEFEATED.

High School Swimmers Yield to Montclair Academy in Tank.

Montclair Academy's swimming team scored an easy victory over the Stuyvesant H. S. natators in the former's pool at Montclair, N. J., yesterday, by the score of 43½ to 9½. In five of the six events contest Montclair Academy victories were recorded. The only exception to the rule came in the fifty yards swim, when Lybecker of Stuyvesant splashed to a close victory over Van Vleck.

ANOTHER GAME FOR TAFTS.

Watertown School Hockey Team Beats Canterbury by 6 to 0 Score.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, Conn., Feb. 12.—By defeating Canterbury School of Milford, here this afternoon, the Taft School hockey seven scored its sixth consecutive victory of the season. The score was 6 to 0.

The local skaters outclassed and outplayed their rivals from start to finish, easily breaking through the Canterbury defense, while the offensive efforts of the latter team were successfully beaten off. At the end of the first half the score favored Taft by 3 to 0, Captain Valentine Ely, J. Stevenson, and Chapin accounting for the goals.

Porin Takes Pinehurst Race.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 12.—Nat Hurd's Porin, with Diamond up, won the nine furlongs flat race at today's race meeting of the Pinehurst Jockey Club. Marshall Hall's Ray o' Light finished a close second. Hayden Preston's Abden, who has carried off many purses at Pinehurst this season, had a bad fall near the end of the long race and was injured so badly that the racer had to be shot.

OPIE'S SKILL GIVES PRINCETON VICTORY

Tiger Basket Ball Player Big Factor in Defeat of Columbia Five.

Princeton sent Columbia down to its fourth straight defeat in the Intercollegiate Basket Ball League series last night when it won a hard fought game in the Morningside Heights gymnasium by a score of 16 to 11.

Through the first half the teams battled on virtually even terms, with Columbia, which drew first blood on a basket by Johnson, holding a slight advantage until within a minute of the end of the period, when Opie made the tally 7 to 7 by getting a neat basket from midfloor.

Princeton opened with a rush in the second half, and successive goals by Opie and Wood in rapid-fire order gave it a four-point margin, which it was able to hold by strong defensive tactics that throttled more than one Columbia rally.

Opie was the most brilliant individual player on the floor. He was a wizard at covering ground, and the Columbia guards could not hold him in check. His shooting was no less remarkable than his floor work, for he made four baskets in addition to netting one point on a try from the foul line.

Johnson, Columbia's negro player, and Davis, the opposing centre, had a bitter tussle all through the game, and in the end held each other to a stand-off, each making two baskets.

The game was one of the cleanest that has ever been played on the Columbia floor. All told less than ten fouls were called, and only three were converted into points. Both on attack and defense the teams were well matched, but Princeton's shooting was a trifle more accurate all the way through. Columbia wasted many shots by not taking enough time.

The lineup and summary follow:

Princeton, (16.)	Position.	Columbia, (11.)
Opie	L.F.	Tynon
Wood	R.F.	Farrell
Gray	C.	Johnson
Margetts	L.G.	Kiendl
Davis	R.G.	Weinstein

Goals from field—Opie, (4,) Gray, (2,) Wood, Johnson, (2,) Tynan, Farrell, Kiendl. Goals from foul—Opie, Gray, Johnson. Referee—J. H. Deering, Manhattan. Umpire—A. Koch, Yonkers Y. M. H. A. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

COSTIGAN MAY GET JOHN DOE INQUIRY

An Application May Be Made for It to Chief Magistrate McAdoo.

THINK MORAN HAD ORDERS

Citizens Union to Take Up His Reply to Request for Investigation on Monday.

The possibility of a John Doe investigation before Chief Magistrate McAdoo to clear up the circumstances surrounding the demotion of Daniel E. Costigan from Inspector to Captain, was reported yesterday. Chief Magistrate McAdoo said last night that no application had been made to him to begin such a proceeding, either by a citizen or by District Attorney Swann.

He explained that a John Doe investigation may be begun either through the application of a citizen or through the District Attorney. Before it can be started, he said, the complainant must state that to his best belief or knowledge the law has been broken by an unknown person or persons, since it is similar to a Grand Jury investigation and cannot be begun without the allegation of a specific crime.

It was thought yesterday among members of the Citizens Union that the promptness of the reply of Acting Mayor Moran to the union's request for an impartial inquiry into the Costigan case indicated that the Mayor had left definite instructions as to the course of action to be followed in such an event. It was pointed out that the Mayor had a long conference with Mr. Moran last Saturday before he left for Palm Beach. The reply will be taken up on Monday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Citizens Union.

Goff Authorized No Denial.

An effort was made yesterday to obtain from John W. Goff, Jr., who recently resigned as Third Deputy Police Commissioner, a statement of the circumstances surrounding his talk with Police Commissioner Enright which caused the Commissioner's secretary to issue an unsigned statement on Tuesday alleging that Mr. Goff denied criticising the Police Commissioner or conditions in the Police Department because of Costigan's demotion. At Mr. Goff's home in Bronxville it was said he was away motoring with friends. He had not returned at a late hour last night.

Before leaving, however, Mr. Goff talked over the telephone with The Tribune reporter who obtained the original interview, and, according to the reporter, declared that not only had he not been misquoted in the interview, but that when he spoke to Commissioner Enright on the telephone "for about half a minute," he merely said he had no comment to make on his interview. Mr. Goff also said, according to the reporter, that he did not authorize "Commissioner Enright or anybody else" to issue the denial.

"There was a rumor at headquarters that they were going to try to force a repudiation from you," Mr. Goff was told.

"Well, I didn't see anybody. That answers that."

Enright Reversed in Jones Case.

Another case which caused considerable comment in police circles yesterday was that of Lieutenant William A. Jones, who recently applied to Commissioner Enright for retirement on the ground of physical disability, after more than twenty-five years of service. Commissioner Enright denied the application. As in the Costigan case, he explained his action in a letter to Mayor Hylan, and, as in that case, received a reply from the Mayor, who commended him and approved his course, although two Boards of Police Surgeons had pronounced Jones physically unfit to perform his duties.

Jones obtained a writ of mandamus from Supreme Court Justice Cropsey and last Saturday this was sustained by the Appellate Court in Brooklyn. At the time Commissioner Enright refused to retire Jones he gave out a statement in which he said that "political influence" had been brought to bear in the case. Later it was learned that Jones was an enrolled Republican. The court ruled there was nothing political in the application, but that it was a question as to facts.

In trying to trace the possible causes that brought about Costigan's demotion it was discovered yesterday that he made many enemies among a large group of patrolmen two years ago when he was active in tracing a "leak" of examination questions prior to an examination of patrolmen for promotion to the grade of Sergeant.

Rumors of the "leak" reached Mayor Mitchel and he referred the matter to Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein. Costigan was assigned by Police Commissioner Woods to aid in the investigation, and by reason of the evidence he unearthed the examination was canceled. There was no doubt in the minds of the investigators at the time that some of those who had planned to take the first examination had paid well for a copy of the questions in advance.

Magistrate Short, an appointee of Mayor Hylan and a nephew of former Police Captain Martin Short, sitting in the Bridge Plaza Court, Brooklyn, told reporters there yesterday that Enright was the most efficient Police Commissioner that New York had ever had. "The people must be patient with him," he continued, "for he is going to give them the best police protection they ever enjoyed. Because he made some changes in the Police Department he should not be criticised. These changes he made for the good of the department. The crime wave that now exists is only a temporary one. People should not become panicky over this. It got a start on Commissioner Enright, but he is fast catching up with it and will soon wipe the crime wave out. The Commissioner knows his business."

The police were also praised yesterday by the Very Rev. J. H. Healy, O. P., Superior of the Dominican Missionary Band, in a sermon delivered at the annual solemn high requiem mass for dead members of the Police Department, held in the Church of St. Vincent Ferrer, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street. Nearly 500 members of the Police Department, including several Deputy Commissioners, members of the Police Veterans' Association, widows of the dead policemen, and wives and relatives of the uniformed men, attended the service.

Mayo Wadler Plays New Music.

Mayo Wadler gave a violin recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon, with the distinguished help of Leo Ornstein at the piano, in new music of interest at a time when European novelties are few, a sonata by Guy Ropartz and a concerto by Tor Aulin, both announced "for the first time in America." The concerto especially favored the violin, and Mr. Wadler played with intelligence and taste, qualities that as yet outstrip his skill as a performer, though not his youthful zeal. Richard Hageman assisted in later pieces by Cecil Burleigh, as well as Marion Bauer's "Up the Ocklawaha" and Rachmaninoff's "Hungarian Airs." The audience was large.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

Plot Thickens at Winter Garden.

MONTE CRISTO, JR., a musical extravaganza in two acts and eighteen scenes. Dialogue and lyrics by Harold Atteridge; music by Sigmund Romberg and Jean Schwartz. At the Winter Garden.

The music show is redeeming its plotless past with a vengeance. Nowadays no classic is safe from its ravages. Last night the Winter Garden made a Sabine Woman of "The Count of Monte Cristo." The result, be it said with all possible emphasis, was fortunate. Fortunate, that is, from the point of view of the Winter Garden. Lovers of Dumas may have mental reservations.

In the matter of gorgeous scenes, gay gowns, and tumultuous dances, certainly the local management surpassed itself—or it seemed to do so, which, after all, is the most one can expect. The harbor of Marseilles, the prison cell, the cave of jewels, the carnival at Rome, and the ballroom in the house of Mercedes provided the setting for multitudinous, gorgeous throngs of singers and dancers, while the wildly raging sea, with its surges dashing over the haven rock, afforded its moment of exciting adventure.

Charles Purcell was the Count, and a romantic figure he made, with a variety of splendid costumes that must have made a considerable draft upon his celebrated treasure. And he sang with rare taste and a quite considerable voice. Ralph Herz was Jameson, and used one of the purest comedy talents on our stage to excellent effect. Flora Revalles was an agile Haydee and Audrey Maple a charming Mercedes.

Gordon and William Dooley were the low comedians, and they stumbled and tumbled, straddled the great throne and slid down the banisters with obvious effect. Adelaide and Hughes shone in a series of grotesque character dances, especially in a novel variation of the familiar toy dance. Chic Sale was momentarily amusing as a village wit and hayseed cut-up. The Watson Sisters did a series of heavyweight turns which the house seemed to take as good avoirdupois measure.

Avoirdupois is probably the word for the show as a whole. There is no short weight at the Winter Garden.

GALLI-CURCI TRIUMPHS.

Sings "Home, Sweet Home" as Encore in "Barber of Seville."

Holiday opera-goers made perhaps a record, yesterday, when 11,000 New Yorkers paid their $30,000 and over to hear the three greatest favorites among singing stars. Place aux dames!

Galli-Curci, at the Lexington last night, returned to what many found her best rôle last season, as it had been Malibran's ninety-odd years ago, for the gay old "Barber of Seville" is near its centenary here. After introducing Benedict's gold-embroidered "Carnival of Venice" variations in the lesson scene, she encored it twice over with Patti's own "Home, Sweet Home."

There was again the strange, spiritual, floating voice of one's boyhood dreams in that old song. A house packed to suffocation recognized it with breathless silence, refusing to allow an interrupting "brava" till the last faint note faded to a memory, then some seconds of no sound at all, before the thunders broke and the singer had to give the second stanza.

"The Barber" was better supported than last year, Stracciari was Figaro, Fernando Carpi as the Count, and Campanini at the baton adding to an artistic ensemble. The veterans, Arimondi and Trevisan, reappeared, and others were Claessens, Correnti, Oliviero, Defrere.

In the intimate theatre a fine delicacy was possible in Rossini's rare lacework of songs and chatter. The stage settings and costumes were bright and new, and the whole work had a freshness and bloom that echoed the voice of its leading star.

CARUSO SINGS IN "AIDA."

Cuts Capers at Holiday Matinee—Geraldine Farrar in "Faust."

Caruso, in rare form, appeared in the Metropolitan's special matinée of "Aida" yesterday before an audience among the largest seen this year, and large houses are the daily rule now. The tenor was received with acclamation, as his singing deserved. He entered into the holiday mood by cutting capers on recall before the golden damask curtains till the big theatre rang with shouts of amused delight.

The performance of Verdi's masterpiece was notable in the return of Clarence Whitehill, the American baritone, as Amonasro, hoarse at first, but at his best in the Nile scene. Muzio was Aida, Julia Claussen the Amneris, and Mardones the King. Vera Curtis sang the bidden Priestess's air, Queenie Smith led the ballet, and Moranzoni conducted.

Geraldine Farrar in "Faust" completed a day of old favorites in the "Faustspielhaus," with a subscription audience reinforced by more holiday crowds. Mme. Farrar looked a charming Marguerite in the early tableaux. Martinelli again sang Faust, and Rothier was Mephisto. There were also Chalmers, Delaunois, Howard, Ananian; the classic ballet, with Galli and Bonfiglio, and Monteux in command.

Winifred Christie in Novel Program.

Winifred Christie offered "A British Tribute to America" at her Lincoln's Birthday matinée yesterday in Aeolian Hall. She is a pianiste well known here. Her program was novel, beginning and ending with MacDowell, whose "Sonata Tragica" fitted well with the day. There were French pieces also, one a transcription by Leonard Borwick of Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," and in a closing group Charles T. Griffes's "Fountain of the Acqua Paola" and "Nightfall."

MAYOR HYLAN SEES MERIT IN ALDERMEN

Many Are Not College Graduates, He Declares, but They Represent the People.

ASSAILS CITIZENS UNION

"One of the Biggest Four-Flushing Fakes," He Asserts in Palm Beach Interview

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—What Mayor Hylan thinks of the New York Board of Aldermen, as at present constituted, and also what he thinks of the Citizens Union, which has been criticising that body, was readily ascertained when the newspapers reached him today. The newspapers said that the union had assailed the Aldermanic body as ignorant, lazy, superficial, incompetent, of low standard, and given to passing measures the purpose of which had been to allow heads of city departments to buy supplies without public letting.

In his comments today, Mayor Hylan said that the Citizens Union was largely in the hands of two men and its expressed opinions therefore were personal and subject to association with the "interests." The Aldermen, if not college graduates, he said, were at least honest, and as far as he was concerned he cared more for the approbation of the poor, whom his administration represented, than for the opinions of certain experts who, the Mayor said, "in their attempts to discredit me are merely representing wealthy interests of New York."

"There are a lot more poor men than there are rich ones," said the Mayor, "and I don't care what traps the rich ones try to set for me, I am sticking by the poor ones. I am in my prime and in good health, and when I get through this job I am not afraid but that I can make a living. That is my entire attitude. Sufficient unto the day is the trouble thereof, and we won't worry yet a while about what might happen in the sweet by and by."

The Mayor then said:

"The people of the city pay no attention to the Citizens Union, as it is one of the biggest four-flushing fakes, so-called reform organizations, that we have, and it is practically composed of only two men. People who know much about it know that.

"The Citizens Union represents the class of reformers who put across the $20,000,000 Court House deal under a reform administration. The Aldermen represent the people of the city. That is the real reasons this fake organization is opposed to them.

"I have found the Aldermen, with few exceptions, working in the people's interests. It is true many of them are poor men whose parents were unable to give them a college education, but nevertheless they are honest, and it is better for New York City to have these men in her service than to have there those highly educated representatives we can remember whose chief concern has always been for what we call 'the interests.'"

The Mayor was asked what comment he had to make concerning the Citizens Union assertion that Aldermen had passed measures providing for the purchase of supplies without bids. "The reason for doing so," Mayor Hylan said, "is to save money for the city. These provisions have a tendency to break up the contractors' trust. It is enlightening to note how many of the reformers are interested directly or indirectly in the contractors' trust. They all get together and put up the prices. Almost every day we have had the opportunity of saving the city $3,000, $5,000, and $10,000 at a time just because of these measures about which the so-called Citizens Union is complaining."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

E. Lyall Swete has been engaged for the leading role in the new Maeterlinck play, "The Burgomaster of Belgium."

The cast of "The Royal Vagabond," which will be seen at the Cohan & Harris Theatre next Monday night, will be headed by Dorothy Dickson, Carl Hyson, Tessa Kosta, Robinson Newbold, Frederick Santley, and Frances Demarest.

Lola Fisher will play the principal role in George Middleton's new comedy, which Cohan & Harris will produce.

The Provincetown Players will offer the fourth bill of the season in their theatre at 133 MacDougal Street tomorrow night. The plays will be "The Baby Carriage," by Bosworth Crocker; "The Squealer," by Mary F. Barber, and "Not Smart." They will be presented nightly for a week.

Percy Marmont is out of the cast of "The Invisible Foe" because of illness. The part is being played by Frank Stevens.

Members of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, the Daughters of the Revolution, the Drama League, the Theatre Club, and Le Lycee des Femmes de France will attend various performances of Percy MacKaye's "Washington" at the French Theatre next week.

The 300th performance of "Everything" will be given at the Hippodrome this afternoon.

INDUSTRIAL PRUSSIANISM.

Domination by any class in any nation is as obnoxious as domination by any nation. Just as all nations united against Germany, so will all classes in any nation unite against any class which puts other classes under duress for selfish gain. The brief success of Bolshevism in Russia is the exception which proves the rule, and soon will come under the rule, for permanent terrorism is unthinkable. Germany, which rejected autocracy too late for its own good, sees that democracy is the safe and sane midway stopping-place on the way down toward anarchy through autocracy at the other end of the scale. The words of the British King and Premier published yesterday show that England has once more put its back against the wall, this time against an enemy within, a class which threatens social revolution unless the nation ransoms itself by concession of demands upon all the nation by a minority of it. The same demands are made here by the same class, which should get the same answer as that given in Parliament in words both temperate and resolute. King George and Lloyd George declared that national resources would be strained to make life easier for the needy, industrious, and deserving, but also that all national resources would be used to repress those who threatened the national life. Certainly public sentiment here is no less sympathetic toward those distressed by the high cost of living, nor should it be less resolute toward those whose threats are as plain as those made in England.

Speaking to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, Mr. Garretson, President of the Order of Railway Conductors, said on Friday that any attempt to reduce wages would bring the nation to the edge of a powder mine, and that a careless spark might start a conflagration of which the end was difficult to foretell. Mr. Garretson seems to think that his powder mine is dangerous only to others, and that he can explode it with profit to his order. These further demands and threats come from a class which already has received an increase of nearly a billion dollars in wages. That increase is more than double all dividends paid by all railways. It is more than all railway dividends and interest together. Everybody contributed something to that increase, and everybody suffers from the embarrassment that payment causes to the country's railways. Such considerations concern others more than Mr. Garretson's order, but his warning and threat concern everybody, including all wage earners.

There is now in this neighborhood a wage demand by carpenters, who threaten to stop building throughout the country unless they receive more than was awarded them by a Government board. These carpenters have been on strike for several months, although they were on army work during the war, although their grievances had been considered and settled fairly, and although they were pledged against striking. Now other classes of labor, without grievance of their own, are threatening to strike in sympathy with this unfair strike, and plainly without sympathy for the general good.

This threat of the class against the community was peculiarly obnoxious in Seattle. There the strike was declared the beginning of the "iron march of labor," which organized under the pretence of alleviating the distress which it planned to cause. It proposed to police the disorders due to others taking the work which the strikers refused. That was the strike which gave Mayor Hanson, himself a labor sympathizer, cause to say "the calling off of the general strike "will not replace union labor in the "high position it held in Seattle. "Union labor must clean house, "* * * Labor unions must now "cleanse themselves of their anarchistic element or labor unions must "fail." This was the first general strike in the United States, and is an example of syndicalism. Too few know what syndicalism means, and too many think it is one way to end poverty. Seattle illustrates its meaning, which is revolution. Thanks to Mayor Hanson this first case on record, in his picturesque words, "never got to first base." It failed because it was met in its own manner, the manner hinted in England as an alternative when agitators get beyond sympathy and reason. Threats and force are a double-edged weapon, liable to wound those who begin its use when turned against them. The new international which is uniting against all the world is uniting all the world against "industrial Prussianism" as surely as all the world united against German domination by similar methods. Labor deceives itself if it thinks itself superior to the forces of law and order, never more benevolent toward labor.

THE FIELD IS THE WORLD.

It is discouraging to see the missionary army of world reformers halting at the frontier, hesitant, preparing only to defend their own domains against the cohorts of sin. Yet they seem to be doing this very thing, while just across the Atlantic, in the perverted isle of Albion, there rises a Macedonian cry for salvation from the cigarette. The British Y. W. C. A. now allows women to smoke in its houses, and Newnham College, Cambridge, has lately made the same concession to ladies in pursuit of learning. The beginning of all this seems to lie in the spread of smoking among women war workers, who found that it afforded considerable relief in the strain of hospital, munitions, or supply work. Having found it useful in war, they continue it in peace, and the British Y. W. C. A. recognizes a condition.

But of course arguments of expediency, of the comforts of tobacco, have no standing against a great, immutable moral principle. The Irish Y. W. C. A. holds out for the ancient faith, and in consequence is getting numerous accessions from the British conservatives. What sort of a moral principle is it that holds good in Ireland and not in England? And where are our reformers who so bravely started out a week or two ago to convert the nation to the Nineteenth Amendment abolishing the "filthy weed"? They falter at the brink of the Rubicon.

One of the originators of the new crusade has suddenly discovered that tobacco is useful as an insecticide. A leader of our Y. W. C. A. solemnly affirms that never, never shall it open its doors to the cigarette—a defensive position regrettable in itself at a time when Britain is crying for salvation, but doubly regrettable since the lady admits that one reason they don't want the girls to smoke is because it means increased expense. What has expense to do with it? Sin is sin, whether expensive or cheap. America is in grave danger of losing her moral pre-eminence; she can retain it only if the forces represented by Mr. Anderson and Dr. Pease go boldly forth to conquer, and present an ultimatum demanding the abolition of tobacco as an integral part of the treaty of peace.

JAPAN AMONG THE NATIONS.

Some years ago an eminent California reformer, visiting the East to marshal the forces of moral reform against the Japanese aspirations in that State, said, with a charming naïveté, "the Japanese are altogether "too clever. That is our real objec"tion to them." As the earth's diameter or zone is more narrowly embraced, as the relations and counter-relations of the peoples of the world are more intimately apprehended, the Japanese point of view, not exclusively Japanese, but that of many cultivated nations or aristocratic parts of nations, brought up on the traditions of correctness, becomes especially interesting. Not that the Japanese diplomatic outlook on foreign affairs is not of the most modern and contemporary; but the "attitude" is that which Mr. Balfour, for example, or, substituting for a great philosophic Conservative the flower of the Whigs of old days, say Lord Granville or Lord Clarendon, would have appreciated.

The great services of Japan to the Entente, her special relations under her alliance with Great Britain, her agreements with the United States, her geographical position, her commercial and marine advantages, and, above all, the spirit of an old cultivated people enjoying the most modern advantages, give to Japan a great authority and potentiality, which are not decreased by the intelligent reserve, the wise habitual reticence, and the large previsions of its leaders, among whom no accident of mortality seems to diminish the number of those called the Elder Statesmen.

In its desire to injure the Germans it happened to Japan to secure control of the Marshall and Caroline Islands before the British, seeking the same common end. The future of those islands will doubtless be determined at the Peace Conference, where Japan plays so great and strong a part. Under a League of Nations the far-reaching influence and the actual power of Japan will be, perhaps, greater than most of the nations, looking mainly to Europe and its Asian extensions or to the African colonies, with their possibilities of immediate or distant economic value, have yet had time fully to understand.

There remains, to China itself, to Japan, to the United States and the other Governments pledged, like Japan, to the policy of the "open door," the cardinal matter of China. The resources of China are practically infinite. Japan and the United States have agreed, by the interchange of notes on Nov. 2, 1917, that Japan "has special interests in China, par"ticularly in the part to which her "special possessions are contiguous," which is saying a good deal. The independence, the territorial integrity of China, the equal opportunity to the commerce and industry of China, are specifically promised by this agreement.

Certain old treaties or "demands," belonging to the outworn period of diplomacy which we know too well in Europe, have been made, have not been made, are or are not in the twilight of the Powers between 1914 and the hour not yet definitely declared even in Europe, when weakness is not to be exploited and strong interests of neighborhood not too violently to be asserted. If in the East an assertive and a coercive view of international exigencies and bankruptcies made itself felt in treaties now exposed to a more enlightened conception of international relations, certainly the West has no ground, has perhaps considerably less ground, for a pretense of superior virtue.

Mr. Shidehara, Vice Foreign Minister for Japan, speaking of these obsolete or tentative treaties or concessions on the part of China to Japan, says that "Japan has no in"tention to interfere with any de"mands or contentions which the "Chinese prefer to present to the "Peace Conference." Exactly; and here still we see the "correct" position of Japan. Everybody puts his claims into the common stock. The greatest and the smallest make a general assignment. That a singularly acute nation like Japan stands to lose something is possible. That, in the general settlement, the compromises arrived at will not be hampering to a nation of such old cultivation and modern genius cannot have escaped the leaders of a nation eminently and constantly well-led.

LABOR AND BEER.

In its contemplated resistance to the enforcement of the organic law in respect to the manufacture and sale of beer and other "intoxicating beverages," the Central Federated Union has overlooked many things, notably that other provision of the Constitution of the United States in the First Amendment which declares that Congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of "the right of the "people peaceably to assemble and to "petition the Government for a re"dress of grievances."

Mr. Ernest Bohm, Corresponding Secretary of the Central Federated Union, in his letter to affiliated unions and organized labor generally, declares that the adoption of the prohibition amendment by what he describes as a minority dictating the mode of life of Americans "is a dangerous procedure "and if accepted without drastic pro"test may lead to even more damag"ing curtailment of American per"sonal rights." Therefore, the members of the unions are to vote upon the proposal that "if the bone-dry law is "really enforced on July 1, 1919, to "then cease work until this law is "annulled." Against the enforcement of laws unacceptable to the people, we have and have frequently used in this country a form of "protest" that is all-sufficiently drastic. The American way in such matters is to procure the repeal of the law, not by strikes and violence, but through the orderly process of legislation by the people's representatives in the State or National Legislature. Mr. Bohm and his associates throughout the Union will be entirely within their rights if they begin forthwith a political agitation to convince the people that the prohibition amendment is wrong and should be repealed. When the people are convinced, their representatives in Congress from the various States will not be slow to obey their will.

A strike against prohibition, the adoption of the proposal to cease work if the law is not annulled, the attempt to nullify it by raising the banner of "no beer, no work," would be far more dangerous to liberty, to the rights of the people, than the enforcement of the amendment even if it be true, as Mr. Bohm assumes, that it was forced upon the country by a minority. Wherever the republican form of government has failed, it has failed because of habitual and organized resistance to law. Respect for authority and obedience to law are the foundation stones of our institutions. It is only through law and under law that we can enjoy liberty. Resistance to law is lawlessness, and a lawless country is doomed.

Mr. Bohm is quite too positive in his assertion that "it is a minority" that has dictated the prohibition amendment. That is possibly true in a few of the States, notably in this State, where the surprising result of the November election should have warned the Legislature that the people did not desire the amendment to be ratified. But it may well be doubted whether the Legislatures of so many States could have or would have ratified the amendment if majority sentiment had not supported the ratification. However much opinions may differ on that point, it is a fact that the amendment has been ratified in the manner prescribed by law, it is law, the statute prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor after July 1 is law, and no American citizen worthy of his privileges will attempt forcible resistance to the enforcement of one or the other.

Organized labor is asking much in these days. It is at present the desire and purpose of employers to grant every reasonable request of labor, to do the utmost that can be done even at the sacrifice of much of their own profits, to establish and maintain for wage earners conditions of living which it is for the interest of the body politic that they should enjoy. Good wages and reasonable hours are more important to labor, we suppose, than beer. Certainly, the unions will not be so foolish as to impair their good standing and forfeit their chances of success in the endeavor to secure for themselves this greater good by engaging in a rebellion against the laws of the land. The unions could adopt no course of action more surely fatal to themselves and to the interests of their members.

THE MERCHANT MARINE.

Upon his return to this country after an intimate study of the international shipping situation, Chairman Hurley says that the United States can compete with the rest of the world successfully; but, except to remark that the wages our Government is paying seamen are only three dollars more a month than the British rate, which is $72, and that France, Holland, and Sweden are all paying high wages, Mr. Hurley does not discuss the matter. He "points with pride," however, to the fact that "today we "have 2,072 seagoing vessels of "6,470,396 gross tons under the "American flag, as against 1,329 "vessels of 6,634,926 gross tons of "foreign shipping trading with the "United States." That is highly satisfactory to everybody who desires to see American ships carrying American goods, but it throws no light on the problem of maintaining a merchant marine adequate to our growing needs, a merchant marine that shall never go into a decline. Once we had the ships and feared no rivalry; but there came a day when the American flag was a curiosity in foreign ports.

Congress must decide whether the American merchant marine is to have a future. The problem is complicated. Up to the time of the armistice the Emergency Fleet Corporation was constructing ships, with unavoidable disregard of expense, to win the war. Models and interior structure left something to be desired, but speed in launching the ships was the prime consideration. Recently the Shipping Board appointed a committee to go over the plans and see that mistakes were corrected, that better work would be done in future. For one thing, more attention had been paid to accommodations for the crews than was perhaps necessary, in the sense that too much space was provided for them, with the result that cargo requirements suffered. This, however, was a good fault, and there is no intention of returning to the old cramped and unsanitary quarters; the sailors of the American merchant ships are to be not only well paid but comfortable. But the bill for the ships built during the war and for those to be turned out after the war will be heavy. The cost makes the solution of the problem more difficult. At the same time, it must be remembered that Great Britain also incurred high construction costs during the war. The question to be faced now is what shall be done with our large and growing fleet, and how shall it be operated after paying the price, which was worth while, since the enemy was beaten and rendered impotent.

It is inconceivable, of course, that the United States will sell its ships to the highest bidder and scuttle out of its declared policy of maintaining a merchant marine to carry at least two-thirds of American goods, also to provide a reserve for war purposes; that is to say, an auxiliary to the navy. What is the Government going to do? Will it operate the ships, or allow private enterprise to do it? Government ownership has become so unpopular as a solution of the railroad problem that there would be very little support for a system of Government ownership and operation of American cargo-carriers. But if the decision is in favor of substituting private enterprise for the Government in conducting the merchant marine, what arrangements shall be made for taking over the fleet and operating it on a basis sufficiently profitable to the owners? It is evident that they cannot pay as much for the ships as the ships cost the Government; it is more than doubtful whether they could operate the ships without new legislation to protect the interests they had acquired. First of all, the Government would have to write off a considerable part of the original cost and charge it to the war account. It has been suggested that the Government lease the ships, retaining title, but this plan would be modified Government ownership. The country, judging from sentiment sounded in the West as well as in the East, does not look with favor upon any kind of Government ownership of transportation.

The question of amending the Seamen's act will have to be threshed out. One thing is certain. Unless private enterprise is permitted to take over the ships on reasonable terms the alternative is Government ownership, with the prospect that it will increase the burden of taxation intolerably, and in the end fail, because of inefficient methods, to hold the seas against competition.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Those Who Defend the Bolsheviki. Whatever of uncertainty as to the nature of Russian Bolshevism and the character of Russian Bolsheviki now exists or is pretended in certain circles here is due to the fact that a few Americans have returned to this country after visits to Petrograd—usually very short visits—with announcements that Lenine and his followers are not such a bad lot as their critics declare them to be. They have made mistakes, of course, these defenders declare, but their aspirations are not to be scorned and most of the charges against them and their rule are either false or wild exaggerations.

Some of the people who say these things are so open to the suspicion of being paid propagandists that their testimony is valueless, while most of the others either are of the "parlor Socialist" type, unwilling and therefore unable to believe that their pretty theories could possibly work out ill in practical application, or else they have special reasons, usually of a commercial nature and not unconnected with concessions, for speaking well of the the Russian powers that be. They seek, for the most part, to palliate rather than to excuse, and they are particularly fond of using the argument that not alone in Russia have evil things been done, and that even the countries of the Allies are not inhabited exclusively by saintly folk who never give a thought to self-interest and get no enjoyment out of the exercise of power.

This argument always appeals strongly to those who by resort to the notion that wrong-doing is pretty fairly divided among all nations can free themselves from the irksome duty to take action in any given case of criminality. Nevertheless, it is a most poor argument. These witnesses attempting the defense of Bolshevism are few in number, while against them is a whole army testifying to the contrary with an enormous mass of evidence to present, all of it in harmony with the known and admitted facts—which none of the opposite evidence is.

Testimony Based on Knowledge. Among the men notably well qualified to tell the much-desired "truth about Russia" is Dr. William Chapin Huntington, who was called to the stand this week by the Senate committee now looking into Bolshevism as it exists in the United States. Naturally the Senators wanted to know about it in the land, not of its origin—that was Germany—but of its first practical application and triumph. Dr. Huntington's official position as Commercial Attaché to the American Embassy in Petrograd brought him into relation with all social classes. He was there while the old régime was in power and through the first and second revolutions, and he visited many parts of the great country. Unlike most of the foreigners in Russia, he spoke the language with facility, and he also spoke both German and French, so that he never was obliged to trust to interpreters for information, always a somewhat dubious source.

He has no imaginable motive either for exaggerating or for minimizing the sins of the Bolsheviki, and it cannot be charged that he went to Russia lacking in sympathy for liberalism, or that he did not share the joy felt by the vast majority of Americans when Czarism fell. And, according to Dr. Huntington, the crimes of Bolshevism have not been in the slightest degree exaggerated, even by those who made the most appalling reports about them. His testimony confirmed rather than added to that already received, except in the respect that it was based in part on official documents as well as on personal observation.

The Bolshevism he described before the committee is considerably less Socialism than it is organized murder and theft, and—well, if that pleases the "parlor Socialists" of America they are easily pleased.

A Word of Many Meanings. Readers of the recent dispatches from Germany have been puzzled by the frequent appearance in them of the words "empire" and "imperial," applied to the country and its government by the men now in power. As Germany is not now an empire and only a single group of Germans—one without any known influence on the progress of events—wants it to become again an empire, the apparent clinging to the old terms has excited much questioning.

The explanation of the mystery is not far to seek. The confusion arises from the fact that while in other days the word "Reich," when heard by a German, meant for him the German Empire, it did not mean that really, or at least not primarily, but the State, which happened to be an empire. The Germans, after their familiar fashion, have always put the word "Reich" to many uses besides the one they considered most important, and that it could mean to them other things than the German Empire is shown, among many other ways, by its employment by them as a part of their name for France. It is not unnatural, therefore, that at Weimar there continues to be talk of a "Reich" by men who are about as far as possible from being imperialists.

It is the foreign correspondents who have tripped in translating the old word in the old way. This the delegates to the convention have realized, and, feeling that the mistake is hurting them in the judgment of the outside world, they are already demanding that some word less ambiguous be substituted for "Reich" in the daily discussions and the documents drawn up.

The Response to the Neediest Cases.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In The New York Times I have just read the report of the two hundred neediest cases. It seems remarkable that such splendid results should ensue, and I wish to offer my heartiest congratulations. Eighty-one thousand dollars was surely beyond greatest hopes. It was most interesting to note the yearly increase from 1912 to 1918. Of all the splendid things The New York Times has accomplished this is one of the best. If I had been instrumental in relieving for one year but one family in distress I would rejoice, and to think of the hundreds you have relieved arouses my great admiration.

Accept my wish that next Christmas receipts will increase as in the past years and that at least $100,000 will be contributed to the noble cause you so successfully fostered.

ART NOTES.

Quinn Sculpture—Hudson River Painters—Borglum's New Lincoln.

In the upper room of the Knoedler Galleries is an exhibition of sculpture by Edmond T. Quinn. The artist works in a remarkably engaging way, recording subtleties of expression that play like rippling water over the rock structure of the human head. Many of his subjects have the flexible mouth of the mime, and it loses nothing of flexibility under his sympathetic treatment. Here is a delightful bust of Francis Wilson with whimsy and compassion, gravity, reflection, and humor living in harmony in the complex physiognomy. Here are Clayton Hamilton and Edwin Markham and Paul Burty Haviland and Albert Sterner, each happily discriminated. The most interesting piece of sculpture in the exhibition, however, is the portrait bust called "Dorothea," a fine expression of a temperament ductile, ardent, and disciplined, the eyes with their beautiful form and half drooping lids far more eloquent than sculpture usually permits this feature to be. The exhibition lasts through the month.

Hudson River Painters and Others.

At the American Art Galleries is an exhibition of paintings by the Americans of the so-called Hudson River School and by other artists of a type not now in the height of fashion, but with many points to their credit. There are certain painters, E. L. Henry for one, who have made their own quiet style and no more go out of fashion or come into it than a Quaker bonnet. Mr. Henry's "The 9:45 Accommodation" is a picture that never will stir a collector's pulses or bring throngs to an auction room, but if you meet it on a wall you linger for a word with it. The scene is a country railway station of the period when carts were drawn by horses. There are horses in the picture, frightened by the snorting engine. Would-be travelers are hastening toward the accommodation train. On the forlorn shed that was all we once expected at way stations an Autumn sun lavishes its gold. Autumn trees make a halo about the ugly beautiful little houses by the roadside that have the air of looking on and enjoying the hubbub of "catching a train." An interested dog has the same air. Beyond are sweet blue hills and shallow valleys, and the air is clean and cool in spite of the turgid smoke that pours from the engine's throat. Dots of crimson and blue in odds and ends of detail lend snap to the pleasant color. The picture gives you all that fascinates you in the village life you would not live for a brass penny.

Worthington Whittredge is one of the older men and is represented remarkably well by a park landscape framed in with a foreground of arching trees, and receding in a gradual perspective to stretch of water dotted with sails. There are greenhouses at the right of the composition, there are ladies walking on curving paths, there are showy plants in formal pots and vases, and garden flowers making an embroidery of color against green lawns. But the beauty of the picture lies in its serenity and the bland, pure light that flows over its detail.

There are a number of paintings by Kensett, Casilear, Cropsey, and Hicks. There is a handsome landscape, rich in color, by the English painter Bryan Hook, which took the Turner Gold Medal at the Royal Academy in 1882 and after the fashion of British pictures of that period wears a bit of verse attached to it. And there is a charming little picture by Alfred Stevens, a woman looking into a mirror. She wears a gown of brown watered silk—and, since Stevens painted her, it is very important what she wears—with a little belt of brown velvet and a narrow white collar fastened with a brooch, and she has just laid off or is about to put on a camel's-hair shawl and a large poke bonnet. You may take it for granted that the costume in its day was a worthy one and the work of an artist of talent. Stevens concerned himself very little with the ordinary dress of women. For his important pictures he sought masterpieces of the dressmaker's art and borrowed such from the aristocratic ladies of his acquaintance. The brown watered silk is of a distinction. And the picture is distinguished, although it is difficult to understand how a Stevens can have so little in the way of reflecting surfaces. The waxed floor hardly answers the purpose, from his habitual point of view.

A New Head of Lincoln by Borglum.

Gutzon Borglum has modeled a new head of Lincoln for Colonel Samuel B. Colt, who has placed it on exhibition in the windows of the United States Rubber Company. It is executed in Grecian marble, cut from a block weighing six tons, and is on a heroic scale, the head standing on a rough pedestal. It differs from the head made by Mr. Borglum a few years ago, and now in the rotunda of the Capitol at Washington, in many important particulars, principally in showing the back of the head in full detail. The features and expression are supposed to represent Lincoln as he looked at the time of his first nomination in 1860, but the weariness of the eyes forecasts the weight of responsibility that was soon to rest upon him.

Water Colors by Caroline Van H. Bean.

Water color is a cheerful medium adapted to rendering the effects of sunlight and sparkling atmosphere. Caroline Van H. Bean, in the water color drawing she is showing at the Mussman Gallery until Feb. 19, develops this characteristic with intelligence and taste. Her little Florida scenes, in particular, are drenched with sunlight, and "The Pringle Mansion" of Charleston, S. C., has all the beauty of its aged walls enhanced by the pleasant play upon them of sun and shade. The New York scenes are more restless, fuller of color, and less atmospheric. The Public Library is here, of course—that not yet venerable building has as many portraits to its credit as George Washington. Mrs. Bean has seen it from an effective point of view, its architectural dignity suffering no eclipse from the presence in the foreground of the "Treat 'em rough" tank. "The East Side" is the gayest of the New York subjects, and might be produced as evidence of the way the great metropolis treats her foreign children. All the flags in the world seem to be garlanding the populous street in the drawing with color, and above them all and most brilliant of them all, a row of the Stars and Stripes is flung to a cavorting breeze.

Evening High School Art Exhibit.

The Art Department of the Bronx Evening High School (Prospect Avenue and Jennings Street) is holding an exhibition of the work of its students in the Melrose Branch of the New York Public Library, at 162d Street and Morris Avenue, Bronx. The exhibition opens on Feb. 18 and continues to Feb. 29, inclusive. There will be on view costume illustration in various techniques, textile designs to be carried out in the various kinds of block and roller printing as well as work in applied design. Another part of the exhibition will be devoted to posters. It is hoped by means of this exhibition to spread the fact that a good evening art school is within the reach of the people of the Bronx and also to prove that the work done is entirely of a practical nature.

THE PRINKIPO CONFERENCE.

It Gives New Breathing Space to Bolsheviki, Says Former Correspondent in Russia.

From an Article in The New Europe by Dr. Harold Williams.

The worst feature of the proposal for a Russian conference in the Sea of Marmora is that it remains incredible. It is incredible that the associated powers in council should have perpetrated such a poor joke at such a tragic moment, and on a subject of such surpassing gravity. No wonder that even the Bolsheviki are suspicious. For them the news is too good to be true. For those who still hope for the triumph of reason and justice it seems too unrelievedly bad to be possible. No discussions on the psychology of President Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George, on the nature of diplomatic conferences in general and the new diplomacy in particular, throw any further light on this curious problem. One is driven up against crude and elementary alternatives. Either the proposition was meant seriously—then it betrays an appalling ignorance of the present state of Russia and of Europe generally, and this alone is sufficient to darken the hopes of a satisfactory readjustment of equilibrium by the Peace Conference—or else the proposition is a rebus, a stratagem whose recondite purpose is invisible to all save the inner circle of the initiated. In that case the finest Machiavellian tactics are outdistanced by the new diplomacy, and the idea of basing on the force of an enlightened public opinion a democratic reorganization of world politics is a bubble, a shadow, an empty dream. Either alternative is destructive of that public confidence which it should be the first business of the conference to create and confirm.

A year ago there were in clear evidence two competing schemes of political reconstruction—that of Germany and that formulated in general terms by President Wilson. When hostilities ceased President Wilson's program was confronted with another program as irreconcilably hostile and aggressive as that of Prussianism—with Lenine's program of a world revolution of the proletariat against the capitalist system.

The allied statesmen were hampered. They could not make a secure peace with Germany until they had settled the Russian problem. The difficulty was that it was not merely a Russian problem. If the question had been merely one of rescuing Russia from civil war, of making peace between two contending groups of Russians, the Allies might have enforced their will and restored the Russian State. But during the last year of the war they had missed the real significance of what was happening in Russia. Absorbed in the contest with Germany, they had regarded the Russian collapse primarily as a military defection. They failed to apprehend that it was something far more serious. They engaged in a feeble and hesitating intervention that simply strengthened the position of the Bolsheviki. On the day after the British troops landed in Archangel, Lenine said, in a Cabinet meeting in Moscow, "Our position is hopeless." Lack of troops, lack of energetic leadership and dissensions among the Allies as to the principle of intervention in Russia, paralyzed our efforts. The Bolsheviki dreaded our coming, our friends waited for us week after week, peasants rose again and again all over Northern Russia, but we did not come. When victory over the Germans was in sight we hardly increased our efforts. Even when the Germans were defeated the Allies failed to realize the full significance of the Russian problem. The Bolsheviki were in a state of panic. The Bolshevist commissaries asked their friends to hide them when the British came. A British squadron entered the Baltic, but no British troops were landed in the territories occupied by Germany. Instead of replacing the Germans by allied troops and so making the overthrow of Lenine certain, we allowed the Bolsheviki to swarm out from the regions they had destroyed and exhausted and embark on a scheme of world conquest.

Bolshevism is dying in Central and Northern Russia. It knows it is dying there, knows it must die. It is a common saying in the inner circles of the Bolsheviki that their one hope of continued existence is a world revolution. In Russia they have destroyed their economic basis. All the ingenious devices of their economic experts cannot disguise the fact that they have dried up the sources of production, that their system of violent reorganization by terror and brute force has simply destroyed the motive power of economic action in Russia. They have reduced the population over whom they rule to an intimidated, starving herd. They are being stifled by the atmosphere they themselves had created. But Russia was for them merely an experimental ground in which, owing to the failure of the old régime and the ignorance of the masses of the people, they had been able to secure an easy victory. Their aim was to extend the area of their operations to countries with a far more complex social and political structure, to the centres of modern industry. There they anticipated that they would be more successful in the application of their theories. They dared not hope that the rulers of these more advanced countries would give them the opportunity.

So long as the war lasted Lenine was able to take advantage of what he called "the breathing space." So long as the great capitalist powers were engaged in a death struggle he felt that he might be left free to carry out his experiment in Russia. The Germans, for their own reasons, let him alone, though they might have overthrown him in a week if they had wished, and probably would have done so if they could have foreseen the flight of the Kaiser and the Spartacus riots in Berlin. The Allies failed to overthrow him from sheer lack of clearly defined purpose, because, as I have said, they missed the real significance of events in Russia.

But when the Germans were defeated, and the hands of the Allies were free, Lenine's fears revived. He had hoped that the war would end in a draw, and that he might long be able to balance between the two contending forces. But now the Allies could have overthrown him in a moment, and he knew it. Instead of that we gave him opportunity after opportunity. Every fresh advance of the Bolsheviki denotes a fresh rally after a panic. The whole attitude of the Allies since the armistice, culminating in the remarkable invitation to Prinkipo, has been one increasing stimulus to Bolshevist action.

The position is inexplicable. The victorious Allies, instead of grappling directly with Bolshevism at its centre, gave it every opportunity to undermine their own strength. By the long delay after the armistice they gave the Bolsheviki a splendid opening for propaganda in a war-weary world. And then, when the danger had become manifest to every newspaper reader, the eminent gentlemen who sit in conclave in Paris suddenly decided that it was merely a local Russian affair, that might be settled by a negotiation in a remote island.

The proposal is a negation of the principles expounded in the fourteen points. This is its most alarming feature. The language of the document is the language of President Wilson. The style is reminiscent of many messages addressed to the Germans, but the tenor is entirely different. With the Germans, who asserted the supremacy of force over right, President Wilson refused to negotiate. He demanded complete submission. With the Bolsheviki, who assert the supremacy of force over right, and, like the Germans, commit abominable crimes in the name of their particular ideal, President Wilson suggests friendly negotiation. Lenine is a more bitter enemy of President Wilson than ever the Kaiser was. Then why this extraordinary difference in tone and principle? * * *

The reflections awakened by this initial act of the Peace Conference are extremely depressing. Is it possible that the real motive of the proposal was a desire to temporize with those forces to which Bolshevism makes its strongest appeal—that it was, in fact, a confession of weakness? And could anything be more dismaying in the present condition of the world than that a Peace Conference which should have begun its proceedings by strong acts and joyful affirmation of common principle should make a solemn exhibition of its own timidity? Absit omen. It can only be hoped that this painful revelation may shock us into sobriety and a renewal of courage.

PRESSURE ON CHINA.

Japan's Treatment of the Nation at the Peace Conference.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read the statement given out by Viscount Chinda, denying that Japan has exercised pressure on China to restrain the action of the Chinese delegates to the Peace Conference. But the deeds of the Japanese Government speak louder than the words of its Ambassador. It may be interesting to the intelligent public of America if you would let me mention a few events which have recently taken place, showing the persistent efforts made by Japan to prevent China from disclosing the secret treaties.

First, the Japanese Government had tried to secure the right of representing China at the Peace Conference. In a note to the Chinese Government last November the Japanese Minister asked that Japanese advisers be allowed to participate in formulating the proposals to be submitted by China at the Peace Conference. Secondly, when Ambassador Lou Tseng Tsiang passed through Japan on his way to the United States, his baggage containing copies of the secret treaties was stolen. Thirdly, the Japanese Minister brought economic pressure to bear on the Peking Government when the Chinese delegates verbally revealed the substance of the secret treaties to the peace delegates of some friendly powers. Japan intimated that the loan of $[illegible]0,000,000 would be canceled and the [illegible]3,000,000 already advanced would be refunded if the Chinese Government failed to disavow the acts of its peace delegates. All these attempts to prevent the exposition of the secret treaties have failed. Japan finally resorted to the threat of military force. Will the American people, who have heretofore championed the cause of liberty, democracy, and justice, allow Japan to do what she will and let China suffer without redress?

The threats of war conveyed to the Chinese Foreign Office by the Japanese Minister at Peking are not only an intimidation of China but, in my opinion, a distinct challenge to the principle of open diplomacy, the first point in President Wilson's fourteen conditions of peace as stated in his address of Jan. 8, 1918. The Chinese delegates, in disclosing the secret treaties which have been imposed upon China by Japan, when the whole world was engaged in a death struggle, are merely observing the principle laid down by President Wilson in his address of Sept. 27, 1918, that "all international agreements and treaties of every kind must be made known in their entirety to the rest of the world."

While the Japanese delegates disputed the contention of the Chinese delegates that the treaty of 1915 is void and that the agreement granting to Japan the German concessions in Shantung is invalid, the issue may be said to be merely between Japan and China. But Japan has been audacious enough to resort to the threat of military force in order to restrain China from making public the secret treaties imposed upon her. This is a distinct challenge to "open diplomacy," a principle espoused by President Wilson and accepted by the allied powers as the basis of negotiation for peace. The issue is now not only between Japan and China, but also between Japan and the allied powers, particularly the United States. Will President Wilson yield his first principle of world peace to the military power of Japan? Will the American people suffer Japan to keep her peaceful neighbor in the bonds of her secret and rapacious diplomacy?

A Familiar Argument.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The policy of England in excluding American goods has suffered from the use of that unfortunately chosen word "embargo." If the English had been shrewd and had announced that the policy of exclusion was designed solely "to protect the British workingman against the pauper labor of America," such a declaration would have made thousands cheer who now condemn the policy because it is labeled "embargo."

UNSUPPORTED.

I would that a snow-clad soldier could enter the Congress Hall, Stride to the desk of the Speaker, and,
facing them one and all,
Speak with the lips of the frozen, stare
with the eyes of the dead,
And tell them a story of Russia—Russia that runs with red.

Yes, tell them the tale of the handful, left to their fate alone—
Tell of the furious fighting, in cold that bit to the bone;
Fling in the startled faces that never had steel nor snow
Struck to their hearts like knowing

Say to them: "I am a message—one of the men you have lost!
"Haste, or the others will follow, bringing full count of the cost.
"Stamping with frozen footsteps into this House of the Law,
"To point with accusing fingers, to tell of the things they saw."

Strong with the will of the nation, dauntless the surging line
Battled from Château-Thierry, swept to the German Rhine.
Grant to our soldiers in Russia only the soldiers' due—
Back them or else withdraw them—drop it or see it through!

ALUMNI DAY CELEBRATED

Other Changes in Curriculum Explained at Exercises in Honor of Lincoln's Birthday.

Lincoln's Birthday was celebrated by many of the alumni of Columbia University by their return to the college to take part in the activities of Alumni Day. The speakers who addressed the former students at the exercises in the University Commons were Herbert E. Hawkes, Dean of the college; Adam Leroy Jones, Director of Admissions, and George B. Pegram, Dean of the Schools of Mines, Engineering, and Chemistry. Stephen G. Williams, Chairman of the Alumni Day activities, presided, and President Nicholas Murray Butler welcomed the former students to the Alma Mater.

Dr. Hawkes told of the work of the college during the past year, when it was in the hands of the military authorities, and of the future plans of the college in regard to its first-year students.

"Last Fall," he said, "when the Government took over the university, it was a very grave question whether we would be able to keep the form and administration of the various schools as in pre-war periods. I am glad to say that we were very successful. Our Students' Army Training Corps battalion was the largest one in the Northeastern and Eastern part of the country, and we came out of it with a great deal of experience and courage, but without a cent in money."

He said that the college was in an unexpectedly flourishing condition, and that it had the largest attendance of any year in its history. The students, he said, are from more widely distributed parts of the country than in any other college, and that after looking over the list of one-third of the admissions, he saw that twenty-three States were represented as well as very many foreign countries.

A change in the curriculum of the freshmen would be made, he asserted, in the history course. "Until now," Dr. Hawkes went on, "the first-year men started their history course with the period of primeval chaos and ended around the year 1815. It is our plan now to start with the present and gradually work backward. They will first learn the present situation in Europe and in America, and then will go back to the causes and the origin of the situation. The idea is quite new in American education, but we will take the risk of making a mistake."

The new plans in the admission of students to Columbia College were outlined by Dr. Jones, Director of Admissions. He said that the hardest task is not to attract students, but to select the best from those who desire to enter. He told of a subnormal young man who, with a great deal of coaching, finally graduated from college with an A. B. degree.

"This is something," he said, "which we cannot afford to do. It is useless to educate those who are not up to the average. It is the plan of the university to use entrance tests similar to character tests of the military authorities in connection with the S. A. T. C. These examinations will not be based upon preparatory high school work, but will consist of questions to test the common sense and special fitness of the incoming student. The student will have to show records of having completed enough work prerequisite to college entrance; he will have to pass a medical examination; by answering questions we will be able to size up his character, and then he will have the choice of the old-style entrance examinations and these new mental tests."

Dean Pegram of the School of Mines said that a three-year professional training course in engineering, with advanced preparatory requirements, will turn out better men and will relieve the school of a great burden of men who come in and who never graduate or who, after graduation, do not go into engineering.

Following the formal exercises in the Commons, the alumni adjourned to Earl Hall, where the Faculty had arranged a reception. A dinner and basket ball game concluded the Alumni Day celebration. The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Alumni Federation of Columbia University: President, Stephen G. Williams, '81; Vice Presidents, Thomas Ewing, '85; John V. Bouvier, Jr., '86; Robert Lewis, '85; Recording Secretary, Edgar J. Moeller, '95; Treasurer, Charles E. Haydock, '01.

E. S. Cochran Weds Mrs. Middaugh.

Eugene Stalton Cochran, proprietor of the New Cochran Hotel, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Harriett Middaugh, formerly of Washington, but who has lived for several years at 140 West Fifty-seventh Street, this city, were married yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William P. George of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Cochran left last night for Palm Beach and will later make their home in Washington.

Artists to Give Victory Dinner.

A victory dinner and dance will be held tomorrow night at the new Commodore Hotel by the artists who made war posters. Charles Dana Gibson, who was the head of the Division of Pictorial Publicity, suggested the dinner and dance, and the other artists have decided to make him the guest of honor. James Frazer is to present him with his life-size bust.

STATE INCOME TAX FAVORED BY MAYORS

Conference, However, Wants the Cities and Towns to Receive 80 Per Cent. of It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Controller Travis stands practically alone in his opposition to a personal income tax levy by the State this year. Representatives of the Mayor's conference and the State Tax Association who appeared today before the Legislative Committee on taxation and retrenchment, while at variance on many tax topics, agreed that there should be a State income tax.

Mayor William J. Wallin of Yonkers, spokesman for the Mayor's conference, urged that the proceeds from any income tax should be divided between the localities where it was collected and the State on the basis of 80 per cent. to the municipalities, and 20 per cent. to the State. Mayor Wallin said that the cities had lost heavily in excise revenues and could hardly expect any increase in the assessed valuation of real estate, owing to the fact that building operations were likely to remain at a standstill for some time.

"Local option," Mayor Wallin said, "has already deprived twenty cities in this State of over $300,000 in annual revenue from liquor tax. As a result of rebates on liquor tax certificates this year the cities not now dry will lose approximately $1,800,000, and in 1920 the cities now wet will lose all their revenue from this source, in the aggregate more than $7,000,000."

These recommendations were submitted on behalf of the Mayors' conference:

A small tax levied on the incomes of individuals, the revenues to be divided 20 per cent. to the State and 80 per cent. to the localities, distributed in accordance with the equalized value of the real estate.

Revision of the Emerson tax law so as to make it applicable to practically all corporations. A business tax imposed upon partnerships and individuals in business and measured by the net income arising from the business to be divided between the State and localities.

Repeal of the existing tax on personal property.

Doubling the tax on corporations, partnerships, and individuals in business as a combination tax.

The State Tax Association, which has been a strong advocate of the so-called "model" tax system, made these recommendations:

That every person having taxable ability should pay some sort of a direct personal tax to the Government under which he is domiciled, and from which he receives the personal benefits that Government confers.

That tangible property by whomsoever owned should be taxed by the jurisdiction in which it is located, because it there receives protection and other governmental benefits and services.

That business carried on for profit in any locality should be taxed for the benefits it receives.

Again protesting against the continued taking of testimony by the Congressional Committee investigating the National Security League, without notice to the league, Colonel Charles E. Lydecker, the league's President, filed a formal request today with Congressman Johnson of Kentucky, Chairman of the committee, for permission to be heard in rebuttal.

Colonel Lydecker's protest to Chairman Johnson, as made public last night at the league's headquarters in this city, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, was in the form of the following letter:

Feb. 12, 1919.

Hon. Ben Johnson, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir—Understanding that at hearings when, without notice, it was beyond the power of the National Security League to attend, testimony has been taken, as I am informed, of Messrs. McCulloch, Sherwood, Cooper, Frear, Mason, Briten, King, and Juul, the league again enters its protest against the fact that the committtee has prevented the presence of the league at such hearings, and now requests that the league have the opportunity to read the testimony given by these witnesses and, if any charge has been made of any participation by any person connected with the National Security League in any one of the sections represented by any of these gentlemen and the name of the field secretary has been brought in in connection therewith under any such charge, that the opportunity be given to give testimony in rebuttal thereof.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES E. LYDECKER,
President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Charles D. Lydecker, President of the National Security League, was subpoenaed today to appear Friday before the special House committee to explain a letter he wrote to Chairman Johnson complaining that the organization was being prevented from attending hearings of the committee and from offering rebuttal testimony. The letter was read by Representative Reavis of Nebraska, who said it was absolutely unjustified, as every hearing had been open.

Old Mt. Vernon Residents Marry.

Frederick S. Odell, who is nearly 70, and Miss Mary E. Lyman, of about the same age, were married yesterday afternoon at the bride's residence at Fairhill, Mount Vernon, N. Y. Fairhill is the old Sykes mansion. The Rev. Harry H. Beatties, pastor of St. John's Methodist Church, officiated. Only a few relatives were present. The honeymoon will be spent in Florida. Mr. Odell is the President of the Frederick S. Odell Corporation of Port Chester and was once Commissioner of Public Works of Mount Vernon. Mrs. Odell is a niece of the late Martin L. Sykes, a Mount Vernon pioneer and President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad at the time of his death.

TELL WHY THEY QUIT BROOKLYN GREETERS

Citizens Charge Riegelmann Withheld Their Letters.

BISHOP BURGESS'S PROTEST

Nathan S. Jonas Replies to New Chairman About Expenditures—Only $700 Paid for Salaries.

Eight citizens who resigned from the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee in protest against the efforts of sympathizers of William Randolph Hearst to dictate the action of the Executive Committee yesterday gave out their letters of resignation, charging that these letters and many others had been withheld from the public by Borough President Riegelmann and John J. Delaney, the new Chairman of the committee. Several other letters received by the committee yesterday demanded return of contributions sent in while Nathan S. Jonas was Chairman.

William C. Peckham, Assistant Adjutant and Assistant Quartermaster General of the New York Department of the G. A. R., was first yesterday to complain about his letter of resignation. He said he resigned as soon as Borough President Riegelmann accepted the resignation of Chairman Jonas, who quit the committee because the Hearst sympathizers had sought to compel him to withdraw James M. Beck as one of the speakers at a meeting held in the Academy of Music.

Another former member of the General Committee who complained that his letter of resignation had not been made public was Thomas H. Kelbey.

Bishop Burgess's Resignation.

The Right Rev. Dr. Frederick Burgess, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island, also resigned from the committee in protest. He wrote to Borough President Riegelmann:

"A month or so ago you kindly honored me by placing me on the Victory Celebration Committee. It was a pleasure to accept, as I was glad to do anything I could to honor the men returning from France. Inasmuch as the resignation of Mr. Jonas, who seemed to me to be performing the duties of Chairman with dignity and discretion, was accepted by you on political grounds, I beg to tender my resignation from the committee."

Another resignation made public yesterday was that of Mrs. Jessie H. B. Beecher, daughter-in-law of Henry Ward Beecher, whose advocacy of free speech was recalled by speakers at the meeting in the Academy of Music when the Hearst sympathizers tried to prevent James M. Beck from fulfilling his engagement there. The members of Local Exemption Board 23 also resigned in a body. Those who signed the letter were Henry S. Goodspeed, Percy S. Dudley, Dr. William P. Pool, and M. S. Allen.

In reply to the assertion of Chairman Delaney that $10,000 of the $40,000 fund sent in by contributors had been spent by the members of the Executive Committee, who resigned in protest against the "injection of politics," Mr. Jonas issued a statement yesterday upon the expenses of the organization while he was in charge. He said that only $700 had been spent in salaries.

Mr. Jonas pointed out that approximately $5,000 had been spent for postage, printing, and compiling a card index from the telephone directory so that Brooklyn citizens could be solicited by mail for contributions to the fund for the Permanent Memorial to the soldiers who died in the service. About $1,000 was spent for furniture and other office equipment, and the remainder was used in minor expenses. In denying the intimation that the greater part of the $10,000 had been expended in salaries, Mr. Jonas asserted that the actual amount spent for hired workers was $700.

Individuals Defrayed Expenses.

It was disclosed also that about $5,000 had been provided by individuals for special events held under the auspices of the Celebration Committee. The names of these citizens, who had furnished the money anonymously, also were given by Mr. Jonas. In answering the charge that funds contributed for a memorial had been used to defray the expenses of the Academy of Music meeting, Mr. Jonas pointed out that he had announced at the meeting, before the Hearst sympathizers started their disturbance, that an anonymous citizen had provided the money to cover all expenses.

Mr. Jonas said that this citizen was James H. Post, a member of the Executive Committee, who presided at the meeting. It was said also that Mr. Post paid for the "Welcome Home" electric signs on Borough Hall and for the illuminated Christmas tree that was erected in Borough Park.

A dinner held in the Hotel Bossert to further the plans of the Victory Committee, also under criticism, was no expense to the Victory Fund, Mr. Jonas said, but was provided by J. Adolph Mollenhauer, one of the Honorary Vice Presidents. Mr. Jonas said also that several thousand dollars had been expended personally by Arthur J. O'Keeffe and Frank J. Helme, members of the Executive Committee, to give the plans for the Permanent Memorial a start so that there would not be a heavy drain upon the smaller contributions of other citizens.

Mr. Jonas announced further that papers had been served upon him in a suit for $50,000 damages brought by Edmund O'Connor, Commissioner of Records in Kings County, who was ejected by the police from the Academy of Music when he sought to protest against the presence of James M. Beck as a speaker. James H. Post and Inspector Thomas F. Murphy, in command of the police at the meeting, also are named as defendants.

100,000 JEWS IN WAR.

Report on Activities in U. S. Read at Historical Society Session.

The work of the Jews of this country in the war was told at the session yesterday of the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the American Jewish Historical Society in the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark, N. J. A statement from John Leavitt, Director of the Office of the War Records, was read by Dr. Cyrus Adler, President of the society.

This showed that 100,000 Jews took part in the war, and of this number 40 per cent. were volunteers. Among those who read papers was Professor Richard J. H. Gottheil of this city. His paper was the result of an original research in early Spanish history dealing with the history of Jews in that country.

Samuel Oppenheim of New York read a paper at the opening session Tuesday night, dealing with the life of Michael Gratz, a real estate operator in New York City in 1794, and of the efforts of the Jews to finance a "New Theatre" in that city in the same year.

Harold Strother Walker.

Harold Strother Walker, one of the five sons of John Brisben Walker, founder of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, died yesterday at St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn, of influenza. He was born in Denver, Col., thirty-five years ago. After studying architecture at the Beaux Arts, Paris, he returned to America and assumed editorial duties on the Cosmopolitan Magazine. When the publication passed into the hands of W. R. Hearst young Mr. Walker returned to Colorado, where he entered the real estate business. Upon the death of his wife, in 1917, he again came East to live.

97 Candles on Her Birthday Cake.

There were ninety-seven candles on the birthday cake of Miss Eliza E. Babb, who celebrated her natal day yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Reinecke in West Orange, N. J. Miss Babb says she has always been happy in the thought that her birthday fell on the same date as that of Lincoln. Her mother, who was Mrs. George Babb of this city, was born near the site where old Trinity Church now stands. She has a brother living, the Rev. Thomas Babb of Holden, Mass.

BRYCE WANTS AMERICA TO GUIDE ARMENIANS

Says This Would Show Once More Her Devotion to Unselfish Aims.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Viscount Bryce, former British Ambassador to the United States, speaking today at the Lincoln's Birthday luncheon of the English Speaking Union and the Atlantic Union, Anglo-American societies which recently consolidated, expressed the hearty gratitude of Great Britain to America, both for aid in winning the war and for the moral support given to the cause of the Allies.

"There is one great service more which she may render freedom and humanity," he said, "in the reconstruction of a better world which is being attempted by the Paris Conference. Some of the liberated peoples are not yet able to stand alone, but need the help of a civilized power during a limited period to start them on the path of peace and progress. Such a case is that of Armenia."

The American people, Lord Bryce added, already had done much for the East, by the schools, colleges and hospitals they had founded. He continued:

"America is especially fitted for the task because she stands apart from the jealousies of the European powers and none could suspect her of seeking dominion for herself. If it were proposed to America and she would undertake this distinterested duty, which would confer inestimable benefits on an ancient, industrious and energetic people by giving them aid and guidance for the first years of restored national life, the British friends of America would rejoice and feel that she had once more shown her devotion to noble and unselfish aims.

"Be that as it may, I trust that the British and American policy will always be animated by the same high ideals as those they have fought for in the war."

TENTH OF POPULATION STILL UNNATURALIZED

Deputy Commissioner Crist Urges Greater Efforts for Americanization.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Approximately one-tenth of the population of the United States is composed of unnaturalized aliens, according to Raymond F. Crist, Deputy Commissioner of Naturalization, who asserted today that such a condition would not be permitted by any other country. He appealed to American citizens to help in making citizens of alien residents.

"There are now 17,500,000 aliens in this country, yet barely 6,000,000 have become citizens," Mr. Crist said. "Such a tremendous unassimilated mass means danger, for among these millions comparatively few have any knowledge of or interest in American institutions.

"It is our duty and our necessity to convert this multitude into loyal American citizens. By gathering in their own quarters in large industrial centres they furnish a fertile ground for all sorts of propaganda opposed to American institutions.

"The war revealed that while the great majority of Germans in this country were loyal, there were nevertheless far too many German aliens who felt only hatred for the country that had so generously received them. It is time now to act to prevent any recurrence of this experience.

"It is the duty of every American citizen who loves America to seek out his friends and acquaintances of foreign birth and prevail upon them, if they wish to remain here, to become citizens."

TO ACT THIS YEAR ON RICHMOND TUBE

Route Approved in 1912 Still Alive—May Soon Be Adopted Anew or Amended.

SUBWAY ENGINEER FAVORS IT

Cost Now Likely to be Greater Than When Planned—Would Take Four Years, Says Ridgway.

Inquiry by many Staten Island residents as to the chances of having Richmond Borough connected with Manhattan or Brooklyn by tunnel have resulted in replies indicating that a route planned in 1912 and approved by the Board of Estimate on July 11 of that year is still alive and that perhaps before this year is ended steps will be taken to adopt it anew or to substitute for it a plan better fitted for the service demanded.

Robert Ridgway, Chief Engineer of Subway Construction of the Public Service Commission, said yesterday that the estimated cost of the route planned in 1912 was from $11,000,000 to $12,000,000. This comprised the boring of the tunnel and its completion at both ends so that direct connection could be made with existing rapid transit lines. He thought the cost would be much greater now, but that interest on something like 10 per cent. of the cost could be saved by substituting the new service for the present unprosperous municipal ferry service.

The plan was to build a tunnel from Sixty-sixth Street, Bay Ridge, so that connection could be had with the Fourth Avenue subway of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, to Arrietta Street, Tompkinsville, thence to extend north and south to connections with the Staten Island rapid transit system.

The crossing of the Narrows at the points indicated would require a longer stretch of tunnel and tracks than if the crossing were made directly across from Fort Hamilton, but the latter route would compel driving the tunnel much deeper because of the depth of water.

The proposed plan was mentioned in the dual rapid transit system as Route 51, although it was never projected as a city and company owned road, as it was well understood that none of the rapid transit companies would go into such a venture until there was some assurance that it would pay dividends. That assurance will not be forthcoming, it was said, until some years after the road has succeeded in building up a much greater population in Richmond. So the city would have to venture alone.

Mr. Ridgway said it would take about four years to build the road, and he referred to it as a very likely thing in the near future. The present dual system will be entirely out of the way in about two years, and before that time new plans will be laid for increasing the city's rapid transit system. A road connecting Richmond with the rest of the city, it was pointed out, would be of much service to the people in case of ferry strikes, heavy fogs, and the freezing up of the harbor in severe Winters.

One of the suggestions made to the Public Service Commission in connection with the project is to extend the line to the New Jersey shore and into Manhattan via the Hudson & Manhattan tubes. Residents of Staten Island would then have direct connection with the principal railroad systems, and the borough would be brought out of the wilderness into the very centre of civilization. To accomplish this a crossing of the Kill van Kull would have to be made and connections with other railroad lines would have to be made, which engineers have reported would be only small jobs.

New Orleans Railway and Light Company

One Year 7% Gold Notes

To the Holders of New Orleans Railway and Light Company One Year Seven Per cent. Gold Notes, dated June 1, 1918, and maturing June 1, 1919:

The holders of large amounts of the securities above mentioned, being of the opinion that immediate steps should be taken to protect their interests therein, have requested the undersigned to act as a Committee for that purpose.

A receiver of the property of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company was appointed by the United States District Court on the ninth day of January, 1919, and the default of the Company in the payment of interest upon its General Mortgage Four and One-half Per Cent. Gold Bonds which occurred on January 1, 1919, still continues. The period of grace provided in the mortgage securing said bonds within which such default may be cured will expire in ninety (90) days from the first day of January, 1919. Should the default continue thereafter, the holders of said bonds would have the right to compel the foreclosure of said mortgage. In order that the holders of the notes may have a general knowledge of the affairs of the Railway we enclose summary of a statement made by Mr. Francis T. Homer, the president of the American Cities Company, which Company owns the greater part of the capital stock of the Railway, and also a tabulated comparison of valuations placed on the properties of the Railway, and which appeared in the issue of the "New Orleans States" of January 4th, 1919.

In view of these conditions, it is most urgent that the holders of the above-mentioned One Year Seven Per Cent. Gold Notes of the New Orleans Railway and Light Company, for their own protection, should organize at once for united action under a Committee having adequate power and authority.

Holders of New Orleans Railway and Light Company One Year Seven Per Cent. Gold Notes are therefore requested to deposit their notes with the Depositary or the Sub-Depositary named above on the terms and conditions set forth in a noteholders' agreement dated January 30, 1919. All notes so deposited must be in negotiable form and must bear the June 1, 1919, coupon. All depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names in negotiable form.

The Noteholders' Agreement contains a provision to the effect that before any depositor shall become bound by the terms of any plan or agreement of reorganization or readjustment made or approved by this Committee, he shall have an opportunity to withdraw upon the terms and conditions set forth in said agreement, in which event, as therein stated, withdrawing depositors shall not be required to pay, on account of the compensation and expenses of the Committee, any sums in excess of two per cent (2%) of the principal amount of their deposited notes.

Copies of the Noteholders' Agreement may be obtained by application either through the Depositary or the Sub-Depositary.

AUSTRIAN EMPIRE IN FINANCIAL CHAOS

Republics Seek to Discard the Paper Money of Old Regime by Stamping It.

VIENNA BANKERS ALARMED

Say New States Are Pursuing a Policy of Ruin—Tariff Walls Also Cause Uneasiness.

VIENNA, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—Bankers here fear a financial panic throughout the former empire because of the recent efforts of the new republics to discard the old paper kronen of the empire by stamping them so that in effect they become new money. At the present time there are about 36,000,000,000 kronen of this old paper money in circulation, while the new Austrian State has only about 10,000,000,000 kronen in circulation.

The question has an international phase, since much of the old money is held in the Ukraine, the Russian provinces, Galicia, Poland, and in French, English, and Swiss banks. If the money held abroad is not stamped it has no circulating value in any of the new republics.

The bankers say that the situation is bound to have great influence on the commercial future of the several republics, who, they say, are pursuing a policy of self-destruction in changing the value of the money now in circulation.

The fashion of stamping the old Austro-Hungarian kronen began in Jugoslavia. A rubber stamp was used, and each city used a different form of stamp. A law was passed that no paper kronen would have a circulating value unless stamped.

The Czechoslovak Government then declared that no more kronen should be imported into its territory, and also prohibited outside banks from transferring into Czechoslovakia the Austro-Hungarian banknotes, which correspond here to the Bank of England notes in England. The Czechs also began to stamp the notes under the same system as the Jugoslavs.

Presumably the Austrian Republic will also begin to stamp the notes, so as to protect herself against an influx of unstamped notes. Dr. Alfred Treicht, Director of the Anglo-Austrian Bank, declared today that, if the Allies did not want Austria to be driven financially to join Germany, some solution of the situation must be found, as the kronen is depreciating rapidly in value in foreign countries.

The Czechoslovak Government is also reported to be preparing to issue new money in the form of the French franc. Up to this time the Hungarian Government has taken no action in the matter.

The newspapers are printing long articles concerning the financial situation, in which they contend that the only way to solve the present depreciation in currency is to open industry and put the people to work through the importation of raw material.

There is much uneasiness over the raising of tariff walls within the former empire. The Czechs are unwilling to sell goods and accept payment in the old Austrian money.

Walther Federn, editor of a labor journal, told the correspondent that the question of credits in the new republics was most important. "As for the debts of the former empire, amounting to 120,000,000,000 crowns," said Federn, "we Austrians must take our share, and if the Poles, Czechs, and others try to disown the debts, so much worse for them and their citizens, who are large holders of the war loans.

"It seems to me in the currency questions, with the Czechs and Jugoslavs stamping money and refusing our crowns, it is a case for all of us to sink or swim together. If all adopt new moneys and refuse to accept the money of other republics it will result in a mercantile balance. If bankruptcy strikes one country it will strike all of them, because all will have the same class of currency."

Professor Coolidge, the head of the American Economic Mission to the former Austro-Hungarian Empire, is preparing a report to the American delegation to the Peace Conference on all aspects of the financial situation. Local bankers and business men have been in consultation with him on the subject.

There is great speculation in foreign bonds, while the sale of Polish passports is finding a large market, due to the desire of people to travel abroad. Richard Strauss, the German composer, recently asked the correspondent if he thought he (the composer) would be able to travel shortly and produce his music. Members of the court of the former empire also have asked if it were feasible to travel. For them false passports are out of the question, since they are so well known.

Labor is scarce, though idleness abounds. Recently an advertisement for 5,000 men to clean the streets resulted in only 800 men applying for jobs. The governments of the small republics lately have adopted the policy of granting indemnities to the idle.

DEALERS VISIT TRUCK SHOW

Exhibitors Emphasize Need for Uniform Vehicle Law.

A large number of merchants and dealers took advantage of the facilities especially prepared for them yesterday at the motor truck show in Madison Square Garden and the 69th Regiment Armory to visit the exhibits in both buildings, and the exhibitors were kept busy explaining the various advantages of the different models.

One of the features of the exhibit is the tendency on the part of an increasing number of manufacturers to make larger trucks, and the six-ton truck is not at all uncommon. The demand for these larger sizes is growing constantly, said the representative of one factory. There is a growing sentiment on the part of many motor organizations that certain definite standards should be fixed regulating the maximum sizes and weights of trucks for highway use. At the conference this week of representatives from nearly one hundred motor truck makers, at the rooms of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in this city, George M. Graham told of the plan now under way to prepare a uniform vehicle law for introduction into the State Legislatures, providing definite limitations for truck weights, sizes, and speeds. The makers recognize the necessity of establishing some limitations on trucks to conserve the present roads until time permits their reconstruction to meet the growing needs of economical transportation. The New York State law, it was pointed out, limits the individual truck load of 22,500 pounds, including the weight of the vehicle. That means, they added, that legally a five-and-one-half-ton truck is the maximum size which can travel on the New York highways, as when fully loaded the truck will carry five and one-half tons, making the total weight 22,000 pounds. A six-ton truck would mean a total load on the highway of 24,000 pounds. New Jersey allows a weight of 25,000 pounds. The law has not been strictly enforced, but some form of uniform law establishing maximum limits is urgently needed, it was contended, as a benefit both to the roads and to proper highway transportation.

Today at the show will be Motor Truck Club and Association Day, and a large delegation will be present from the Motor Truck Club of New Jersey and the Motor Truck Association of America. The latter body will hold a dinner in the evening in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America.

OPPOSE AID TO GOLD OUTPUT

Treasury Committee Finds Our Credit is on Sound Basis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Secretary Glass today made public a report from the special committee which has been investigating the gold situation, and in which the committee advises the Government against taking steps to stimulate or promote the production of gold.

The statement is made by the committee that the British Treasury Committee has arrived at the same conclusion as the American committee, which was appointed on Nov. 2, 1918, to investigate present conditions in the gold mining industry, and to study the problem carefully and thoroughly with a view to definitely ascertaining all the difficulties confronting gold production.

The committee was asked by Mr. McAdoo to submit suggestions of sane and sound methods of relief. The members of the committee are Albert Strauss, Edwin F. Gay, Raymond T. Baker, Emmett D. Boyle, and Pope Yeatman, and all have attached their signatures to the letter to Mr. Glass.

"Contrary to the belief apparently entertained in many quarters," says the report to Mr. Glass, "the structure of banking credit in any country during wartime does not depend very much, if at all, on the amount of gold that can be made available as a reserve for that structure. Undoubtedly the rise in prices in this country since 1914 is to a great extent due to the heavy importations of gold during 1915 and 1916.

"The cessation of hostilities has radically changed the situation, and, with the change in the situation, any need of particular effort to promote or stimulate our gold production, which may have existed, has ceased. There is now no danger of an impairment of confidence. The dimensions of our financial problems are becoming clear, and we know that we can without permanent strain meet any financial requirement the Government will be willing to assume.

"Some further expansion of credit may result from our expenditures for demobilization and readjustment, but we can look forward to a comparatively early contraction of our credit structure with the attending circumstances of a free gold market and a gold reserve that shall once more perform its normal function of regulating credit conditions. That movement will, we believe, be both preceded and accompanied by lower commodity prices.

"Under these circumstances, there is in our opinion no need for artificial stimulation of gold production. Not only has any need therefor passed, but there have come into operation causes that will, in due time restore all industry, including the mining of gold, to a normal basis. Gold mining will then become again normally profitable and respond automatically to normal stimuli.

"It is therefore the judgment of this committee that no steps should be taken by the Government to stimulate or promote the production of gold."

PROPOSALS.

STATE OF NEW YORK, OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, ALBANY, JANUARY 15, 1919.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS—Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned, at his office in the Capitol at Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, February 18, 1919, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for the improvement of the state canals as authorized by Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903 and amendatory laws, and chapter 391 of the Laws of 1909; and for the construction of barge canal terminals pursuant to the provisions of chapter 746 of the Laws of 1911, as follows:

Terminal Contract No. 57.

For constructing certain parts of an approach from Court Street and South Avenue to the Barge canal terminal at Rochester.

Contract plans, sheets 1 to 10 inclusive.

Terminal Contract No. 69.

For protecting the shore of Erie Basin between Lake Street and Slip No. 1, at Buffalo.

Contract plans, sheets 1 and 2.

Terminal Contract No. 107.

For installing electric wiring, lighting, power and battery charging equipment for the canal terminal at Erie Basin, Buffalo.

Contract plans, sheets 1 to 10 inclusive.

Terminal Contract No. 223.

For constructing a barge canal terminal freight shed at Greenpoint, Brooklyn, New York City.

Contract plans, sheets 1 to 11 inclusive.

And until 12 o'clock noon of Wednesday, February 19, 1919, for the following pieces of work:

Erie Canal—Sections 9 and 10.

For driving steel sheet piling, placing concrete lining and incidental work between Rochester and Lockport.

Sheets 1 to 5 inclusive.

Erie Canal—Section 9.

For completing the concrete prism lining at Cartersville and constructing a stream entrance near Knapp's bridge.

Sheets 1 to 3 inclusive.

Contract Q.
Cayuga and Seneca Canal—Section 1.

For constructing pile dolphins for aids to navigation on Cayuga and Seneca lakes.

Sheets 1 to 5 inclusive.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y., and at the office of the State Engineer and Surveyor.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the city of Albany or New York, issued by a national or state bank (or trust company in the case of terminal contract) in good credit within the state and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The bond required for the faithful performance of each contract shall be in such sum as shall be fixed by the Superintendent of Public Works, which sum shall not be less than twenty per centum (20 per cent.) of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

W. W. WOTHERSPOON,
Superintendent of Public Works.

OFFICE OF COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC FINANCES OF THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

CITY HALL.
New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 8626, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of the bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $600,000.00 in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. The bonds shall be paid for in cash as fast as said bonds can be signed and delivered. All bonds will be delivered within thirty days from the opening of said bids. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Further particulars and information will be furnished on application to the Public Belt Railroad Commission or the undersigned. The final opinion of Wood & Oakley, lawyers, Chicago, Ill., as to the legality of this issue will be furnished to the successful bidder if so desired.

A. G. RICKS,
Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS, District of Columbia, February 7, 1919.—Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Secretary of the Board of Commissioners, Room 511, District Building, Washington, D. C., until 2 o'clock P. M., February 21, 9119, for constructing a Head House and Sheds for the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company, located on Water Street, at the foot of Seventh Street, southwest. Blank forms of proposal, plans, specifications and all necessary information may be obtained from the Chief Clerk, Engineer Department, Room 427, District Building, Washington, D. C. A deposit of five dollars will be required from bidders to insure the return of the plans and specifications.

AMERICAN EXPORTS NEEDED IN EUROPE

George A. Gaston Sees France and England Ready for Peace Trade.

FINDS OPTIMISM GENERAL

Forecasts Opportunities in the Balkans, South Russia, and Czechoslovakia.

The principal fact influencing the future of world trade is the enormous factory expansion in England, France, and Italy, called into existence by the necessity for munitions production during the war, according to a statement yesterday by George A. Gaston, President of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore of 39 Broadway, who returned a few days ago after a three months' study of business conditions throughout Europe.

While the effect of the industrial transformation of Europe will be to deprive particular American manufacturers of a part of their market, Mr. Gaston said that the big increase of European manufactures would mean in the long run an increase in production everywhere, better business here and abroad, and generally increased prosperity.

The change in the industrial character of France is more marked, Mr. Gaston said, than in any of the other nations. He said that there was a considerable agitation in France to lay an absolute embargo on automobiles and some other products in order to encourage French manufacture of them. France, he said, was compelled to find new sources of national wealth to offset the diminished value of her vineyards, due largely to the approach of prohibition in this country.

Mr. Gaston said that there was no hope of rivaling England in shipping or of building up a merchant marine of the first rank unless the Government controlled both railroads and ships and made through rates for shipments from any part of the United States to any European port. This would be ideal for the American export business, he said, but would be costly to the Government and would result in losses so that the taxpayer would be out of pocket for the benefit of the producer and exporter.

"The worst stumbling block in the way of re-establishing business conditions in France," Mr. Gaston said, "was the condition of the railroads. The equipment is in a very bad shape, and that which is being delivered by Germany is in a poor condition, though better than the French. The great problem of the merchants is that of getting goods from the ports. The French cars were scattered in confusion all over the country through lack of a car-recording system, and between this fault and the physical condition of the roads and cars the French can take care of military traffic only. Mr. Thornton, formerly of the Long Island Railroad and now the Inspector General of the British Government, and some of the American railroad men, are trying to get the French to adopt a car-recording system, but this had not been done when I left.

Factions in French Business.

"There seem to be two factions of French business interests. One wants to use the French war factories to make the machinery necessary to re-establish and expand the French industries, while the other is willing to see the manufacturing machinery brought from England and America. But both factions feel that, with prohibition in America, with the increase in French factories, and the recovery of the iron mines from Germany, the future of France is in manufacturing. I have been told by experts that the manufacturing capacity of France has been increased tenfold. I believe this is somewhat exaggerated, but her manufacturing power has been increased many times over.

"The Renaults, and several other factories, have gone in for the manufacture of cheap automobiles. Others are planning to get American designs for the manufacture of sewing machines and typewriters, and similar products. There has been a great development in the use of automatic machinery in France, and a great advance in large scale production.

"The French are eager to have American capital, and they are eager to get American experts, who can teach the use of fast machinery and methods which have not been adopted in France. Men capable of superintending big building operations, like the construction of cantonments in this country, are wanted but the French are going to have the factories and the contracts for themselves. All contracts for reconstruction work will be let to French firms, although outside capital will to some extent be used.

"While outside capital is welcomed, it should be understood that there is lots of money in France. Notwithstanding the heavy burdens of the Government, there is a great deal of capital in private hands. The expenditures in France of the American and British Governments and of the American and British soldiers have contributed greatly to this. The banks are ready to aid French manufacturers to extend their plants. The great hardship which the country faces is in repairing the devastation, especially of agriculture, a work which will require ten years.

"The automobile manufacturers in France are trying to get the Government to agree to an embargo on automobiles for five years. France is building motor trucks in quantities and needs them badly because of the condition of the railroads. American tractors are being used in France on a large scale, and they are planning to manufacture them in France.

"England is able to take care of herself, and is doing so. She is not going to surrender banking control or shipping control. I found English shipping men quite indifferent to American proposals that there should be an equalization of wages or that they should forego any advantages in shipping. I think that the League of Nations will be England's as far as shipping is concerned. The cost of running a ship under the American flag, ton for ton, is about twice the cost of running one under the British flag. If we are to have a large merchant marine it must be under Government ownership in co-operation with railroads under Government ownership. A combination of Government-owned ships and railroads would make the merchant marine possible, but I do not recommend this.

Vienna Losing Prestige.

"I sent a man with President Masaryk into Bohemia, and I received a report from him that Vienna is losing its prestige, and that its inhabitants are flocking by tens of thousands to Prague. The population of Prague has been increased by 200,000 since the end of the war, and the people are glad to get any kind of accommodations. These are people who believe in the future of the Czechoslovak State, and others are leaving Vienna to escape taxation and indemnities.

The agent reports that the people in Prague are in need of many things, and we got a surprising number of inquiries for printing machinery of all kinds, especially book and newspaper presses, indicating the state of the atmosphere there. They need every sort of manufactured article. Everything there, as elsewhere in old Austria and Germany, is worn out.

"In France I received a report from a man in Rumania that the oil wells there had not been destroyed, as is commonly supposed. The damage done to them is small. The Rumanian Government is seeking to place orders for $100,000,000 worth of agricultural equipment.

"One of the best opportunities for American business now is the Balkan States and Prague, and its surrounding territory. There are opportunities in Serbia, as well as in Greece and Rumania, and Asia Minor is recovering at a remarkable rate.

"This country, as far as ability to manufacture and deliver goes, is three years or so ahead of other countries, but the shipping problem, the lack of knowledge on the part of American business men, and the prospect of protective tariffs abroad, prevent us from using our physical advantage to the full extent.

"Such measures as the British embargo on certain articles represent a particular condition, and will not have an important effect. It is not a political matter, and the least said about it, in the way of making political capital of it, the better.
it, the better."

SYNDICATE BUYS 137 SHIPS.

American Builder Reports $100,000,000 Paid for English Vessels.

Among the passengers who arrived on Tuesday from Liverpool on the Cunarder Carmania was G. M. Standifer, President of the Standifer Construction Company of Portland, Ore., which has three shipyards on the Pacific Coast and employs from 7,000 to 8,000 men.

He said that it was impossible to get builders to quote a flat price for ships in France or England or to give a date for delivery beyond an approximate one for the laying of the keel. All yards were taking contracts at cost plus 10 per cent.

"The syndicate composed of Lord Inchcape, Sir Owen Phillips, and Bruce Ismay," he said, "have bought the 137 standard ships of from 4,000 to 8,000 tons being built in England at a price approximating $100,000,000. Owing to the loss of tonnage by submarines and mines during the war, the British Government authorized the building of these standard steamships at the various shipyards in Great Britain, which were to be completed and ready coaled for sea in 100 days. The first one of the vessels was finished, loaded, and two days out at sea before the time expired. Only 25 per cent. of the steamships have been delivered and it may cost more in wages and materials to complete the order.

"I left Paris at the end of January. There was a good deal of confusion and delay over the Peace Conference. You cannot write a few articles, deliver a certain number of fine speeches, and expect Utopia to come out of it at once. Prices are high there. I paid $2.50 for a pear, 75 cents for a miserable orange, and 65 cents for a small cup of chocolate.

"If the conference would agree to some tangible shipping agreement we could go ahead at once."

Orders for Fancy Scarfs.

There has been a decided increase in the sale of tapestry table cloths during the past week. Out-of-town buyers who have been in the market for these goods have placed some very substantial orders for the higher-priced lines. Scarfs that are selling for $42 a dozen are meeting with more favor than those selling around $26 a dozen. Although the local trade is buying more conservatively, the out-of-town buyers are taking considerably more than they did at the opening of the season.

Cautious Buying of Negligees.

Manufacturers of negligees have noticed that during the week there has been many new buyers in town who are interested in their lines. Most of the orders that are now being placed for these goods are very conservative, as many of the retailers expect the prices to be lower. Some of the out-of-town buyers have even been recalled on account of these conditions. Others are buying from hand to mouth, and state their intention of visiting the market again in the near future.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Corset Manufacturers' Association of the United States will be held at the Hotel Astor on Feb. 18, at 2 P. M. A victory dinner will be given in the evening, the speakers being ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, and Charles D. Hurrey. The latter's theme will be "The Greatness of Modern Italy."

Cohen, Gumpel & Wronker, selling agents for the Wico Mills, have taken quarters at 279 Fourth Avenue.

H. B. Hull, formerly New York representative for the M. E. Smith Company, and the Burgess-Nash Company of Omaha, who resigned last June to enter the Government service, has returned from active duty and has become connected in an executive capacity with the Associated Merchandising Corporation, 225 Fifth Avenue.

Before the Salesmanship Club of New York, at a meeting held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Bush Sales Building, 130 West Forty-second Street, W. H. Farley will speak on "The Troubles of a Merchant and How to Stop Them."

A committee has been appointed to consider possible plans for the formation of a club consisting of the export managers in the New York district of members of the Tanners' Council.

PREDICTS FOOD MONOPOLY.

Heney Says Packers Soon Will Control the Nation's Supply.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Francis J. Heney, former counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, testifying today before the House Interstate Commerce Committee, said that within ten years, and probably within five, the five leading meat packers would control the entire food supply of the country and would be able to charge any price they desired. Mr. Heney said the packers had extended their activities into so many fields that they had become a menace to the country. They now control the cheese, oleomargarine, and butter markets, he said, and are obtaining a monopoly in many other lines. Through their large capital and their special privileges, the witness declared, they are able to "smother competition."

Mr. Heney said the packers received their first start toward domination of the food markets through rebates granted by the railroads. This gave them such an advantage over their competitors, he stated, that they soon obtained control of meats and meat products. The second step by the packers, he asserted, was to obtain special privileges from the railroads for their refrigerator cars, intended originally for perishable meat products alone.

The packers, Mr. Heney said, now use refrigerator cars for perishable and imperishable goods alike, and at such a great saving in money and in time of deliveries as to destroy competition. As a result, he said, wholesale grocers are being driven out of business.

Government ownership of refrigerator cars and stockyards was advocated by Mr. Heney as the only means of placing the packers on an even footing with possible competitors. He advocated Government owned cold storage plants in all large cities so that small packers would have a means of disposing of their products.

Government regulation of the industry he characterized as inadvisable because "the regulated have a habit of soon appointing the regulators themselves." He also said Government ownership of the packing plants or extensive licensing probably would be unsuccessful.

WILL QUESTION GLASS.

House Committee Wants More Light on Terms of Bond Issue.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Members of the House Ways and Means Committee, after a brief discussion of the request of Secretary Glass that Congress increase the amount of Liberty bonds authorized but unissued from $5,000,000,000 to approximately $10,000,000,000, decided to call the Secretary before the committee for a hearing tomorrow.

Although the discussion was informal, it was apparent that there would be strong opposition to the Secretary's request that broad powers be given to him to determine the interest rate and other terms of the next loan.

Raw Silk Market Summary.

Since last week the raw silk market at Yokohama has shown more activity, and prices have gone up, Sinshiu No. 1 regaining the level of 1,400 yen, according to cables received by H. L. Gwalter & Co. Americans are the principal buyers. Yellow silks are very scarce and are in active demand. The visible supply of all sorts of silks is estimated at 25,000 bales. Canton and Shanghai markets are dull, with holders in the former anxious to attract buyers by somewhat lower prices. In Europe the market at Lyons is improving while, in the Italian, conditions at present do not allow export business of any account. Locally there is an improved tone, with Japanese silks showing an advance of from 30 to 40 cents a pound. The turnover during the last week is said to be from 8,000 to 10,000 bales.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 12.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed today against the Safety Signal Corporation of Galesburg, Ill., by Vernelle F. Brown of Peoria, the Johnson Fuel Company of Galesburg, John Hudec of Galesburg, and the Lindstrum Arnold Company of Galesburg. The liabilities of the firm are thought to be about $20,000.

NOT AMERICAN SILK.

Princess Patricia's Trousseau to be of British Fabric.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Sir Malcolm Murray, Controller and Equerry to the Duke of Connaught, has informed a Chronicle representative that there is no truth in the report that Princess Patricia is getting silk, specially from America, for her trousseau.

"It is all humbug," he said, "and I cannot think how such statements are made. The Princess would not dream of getting silk for her trousseau from America when British silk is available."

The report stated that a dressmaker sailed on the Adriatic Saturday, bringing with him silks which he had bought in the States for the Princess's a trousseau.

Drug Prices Tending Downward.

The tendency of prices of drugs is still downward, drug and chemical markets will say today. Thymol, caffeine alkaloid, coumarin, glycerin, acetanilid, quicksilver, oil of lemon, denatured alcohol, and belladonna leaves are lower. Sellers are gradually losing their grip on the situation, and competition increases as holders make concessions in the effort to unload. Dealers in heavy chemicals are turning to export trade owing to the continued dullness in domestic lines. The reduction in ocean rates will probably bring some business, but foreign buyers seem to think there should be further reductions in prices and are slow in placing orders.

DRY GOODS DEALERS ASSAIL LUXURY TAX

REDFIELD TELLS PROBLEMS

Upholds British Embargo and Says the Profiteer of Today Promotes Bolshevism.

By resolution the retail dry goods dealers of the country, through the National Retail Dry Goods Association, made unanimous protest yesterday against the luxury tax, branding it as unwise, discriminatory, and conducive to economic disturbance. This action was taken yesterday afternoon just before the close of the second day of the convention of the national organization in the Hotel Pennsylvania. The resolution calls upon the Senate and the House of Representatives to remove from the War Tax bill Section 904, which imposes the tax on all luxuries, contending that the amount of revenue to accrue would be out of proportion to the cost of administrating the tax.

The need of better relations between employer and employe was emphasized by V. Everitt Macy, President of the National Civic Federation. He said that business cannot properly develop when there is suspicion and hostility. "Cash Capital" and "Business Capital" must co-operate, he said, for the good of any business. There is, he added, too much talk of our rights and too little talk of our obligations.

William Mather Lewis of the Treasury Department, Washington, spoke on thrift as a stabilizer of business.

In an address on advertising, W. R. Hotchkin, for ten years advertising manager for John Wanamaker, said that this year was not a time to let up on advertising, or a year to be careless about the kind of goods advertised, or the statements made in advertising. Other speakers were Wheeler Sammons of System Magazine, and M. D. C. Crawford, design editor of Women's Wear.

World Is America's Debtor.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield was the principal speaker at a dinner held by the association in the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. After paying a tribute to the life and work of Lincoln, Secretary Redfield in part said:

"When the war ended there were certain among us who seemed to think all that America had to do was to go forth into the world 'conquering and to conquer,' to take up again the thread of our business life separate from other nations, free from external problems, our purpose concentrated again upon profit, seeking our own gain, forgetting alike the lessons of the war and the past and regarding only the chances of the present and future. It did not take long, however, to find that this could not be.

"The world owes us largely, very largely. We who were always debtors until the war have now become creditors on a colossal scale, so that the nations owe us in one or another form about $10,000,000,000. This very wealth due us creates a problem. The nations of the world are not able to pay us cash. The opportunity for services is only open to part of them, not in sufficient part to those. They must pay us partly at least in goods. Furthermore, in order to pay what they owe they must be careful not to acquire further great debts, but rather to conserve their buying power in our own interest as well as theirs. Here lies the solution of the so-called embargo that Great Britain has recently established, concerning which some complaint here and there appears. It would not, perhaps, be unfair to remind ourselves, ere we complain of this embargo, that we have ourselves recently established not a temporary, but a permanent embargo against certain lines of manufactures in which Great Britain and France have both done business with us. I imagine that English and Scotch whisky and ale manufacturers and the wine producers of France have their own thoughts respecting the permanent embargo we have placed against them.

Awaits Approval by Wilson.

"Our own economic structure has not been shaken as severely as that of the nations associated with us in the war, but there is quite sufficient for us to do to set our own house in order. We are in a period of business hesitation. Two ways of dealing with the situation are proposed, one from the top down, the other from the bottom up. The suggestion has gone forth that, while we must save for taxes, for war loans, and because we must not lose the habit of thrift the war has taught us, still there are necessities that every one must from time to time have. "Buy only what you need but buy it now," seems good patriotism. On the other hand, large general business transactions await confidence in a substantial, stable market. It has been proposed by business men and employers of large experience that the Government should make an effort, through a volunteer committee, to call together the representatives of capital and labor in our industries and discuss frankly with them what can be done in the way of bringing about promptly the reduced prices which all alike expect will before long prevail. This is purely a matter of consent, not one of authority. It is not in discord with economic law. It merely seeks that men shall agree to do that thing soon which economic law requires sooner or later. It is not price fixing. It is voluntary without any element of compulsion. The proposal has the approval of the Treasury Department, the War Trade Board, representatives of the Federal Reserve Board, and the War Finance Corporation and thus far has been approved by every man of affairs and of finance to whom it has been presented. Many of those whose affairs would be concerned have approved it. When this is written it awaits the approval of the President.

Profiteer Promotes Bolshevism.

"The man who promotes Bolshevism by profiteering is a promoter of Bolshevism, that is what he is. He helps along the I. W. W. The profiteer now is a producer of Bolshevism and that without much regard as to whether he profiteers on a large or a little scale. He is laying the foundation for that kind of wicked structure in America.

"We must get rid of the hesitation as soon as we can. And I know of but two ways to get rid of it. Frankly, it isn't wise, with this condition about us, to talk about maintaining prices. The maintenance of the present or the recent prices in America produces Bolshevism. You have got to face that fact, it is true. We cannot maintain with safety to the country the prices of the last year or anything very closely approximating them.

"There is a desire to become a Bolshevik in too many people now. The strain has been greater than we ought to continue to bear, and no matter whether you and I lose by it or not, we cannot maintain a price level such as we have had with safety to the United States—it is not a personal problem, it is a national one.

"We have got to cut off something of the cost of living by our own sacrifices in factory and in store. It has got to be done. Men have been under stress and strain of living almost to the point where they can hardly bear it longer. Too, suggestions have recently been made for dealing with the problem, one is avowedly a makeshift, because the next ten weeks are the critical weeks; there will be difficult times after that, but with the coming of the Spring in all the Northern States the farmers call back their labor, work begins upon the roads, the railroads commence their work, outdoor engineering work goes on, men flock to labor which waits for them and the crisis, so far as it has danger in it, would be passed almost automatically, but for the next eight or ten weeks we owe it to ourselves and to our fellowmen to give the enemies of society as little opportunity as possible.

"It cannot be expected that prices will fall soon to their pre-war level. Too much has been destroyed both of merchandise and of productive equipment to make that possible. There is a great vacuum to be filled. The buying world in many countries has been economizing sternly for some years past and when once they get confidence that a reasonable price basis has been reached they will come into the market in such a way as to sustain prices and possibly, in some measure, even for a time to raise them. Every one agrees that this great, latent business demand is here, ready and waiting. The greater the need, therefore, for using every effort to bring it into active effect as soon as possible.

"The condition of the country is sound. The number of failures is small. The bank resources were never larger or more liquid. America stands firmly on her feet without fear of the future. We have a great loan to face and heavy taxes to pay, but we shall meet them fearlessly and successfully and in a few months shall find that our faces are turned toward a bright and prosperous future."

NEED FOR TRADE EXPANSION.

Farrell Says Country Must Rely on Foreign Business.

James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation and Chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, issued a formal call yesterday for the sixth National Foreign Trade convention to be held in the Congress Hotel, Chicago, April 24 to 26, inclusive. The theme of the convention will be "Foreign Trade Essential to American Industry."

The program of the convention as tentatively prepared is as follows:

FIRST DAY, THURSDAY, APRIL 24.

Convention called to order at 10 A. M. by James A. Farrell, Chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council.

Election of presiding officers, Secretaries, &c.; address of President of convention; appointment of General Convention Committee. Session topic: "America's Need of Foreign Trade," from the viewpoint of production, finance, labor, and imports.

Afternoon Session, 2:30 P. M.—Session topic: "Post-War Foreign Trade Problems," a series of addresses dealing with general foreign trade matters.

Evening Session, 8 P. M.—Group sessions.

Group I. Commercial Education for Foreign Trade.

Group II. Foreign Trade Merchandising, in co-operation with the American Exporters and Importers Association.

Group III. Financing Foreign Trade, in co-operation with the American Bankers Association.

Group IV. Advertising for Foreign Trade.

SECOND DAY, FRIDAY, APRIL 25.

Morning session, 10 A. M.—Session topic: "The American Merchant Marine," in which will be considered American shipbuilding, provision of cargoes, establishment of trade routes and return cargoes, inland waterways, American and foreign navigation systems, and the formation of an American maritime policy.

Afternoon session, 2:30 P. M.—Group sessions.

Group V.—"Foreign Credits," in co-operation with the National Association of Credit Men.

Group VI.—"Direct Selling," in co-operation with the American Manufacturers Export Association.

Group VII.—"Export Combinations," describing the Webb law in actual operation.

Group VIII.—"Ocean Service," in co-operation with the American Steamship Association.

Friday evening, 7 P. M.—Banquet, Congress Hotel.

A number of speakers of national prominence will present several highly important foreign trade subjects.

THIRD DAY, SATURDAY, APRIL 26.

Morning session, 10 A. M.—Reports of group sessions, report of General Convention Committee, miscellaneous business, adjournment.

In issuing his call Mr. Farrell said in part:

"The abrupt termination of the war in Europe has brought the United States suddenly face to face with certain questions of grave concern to American foreign and domestic industry. Now, as never before, the United States must rely upon foreign trade to make certain the full employment of labor and to provide investment for capital; to stabilize industry and prevent disturbance of domestic conditions; to insure the permanent retention and operation of our new merchant vessels under the American flag; to maintain prosperity among American producers and to forestall any retrogression from the high standards that have been achieved.

"All Americans engaged in or desirous of entering overseas commerce, and especially all Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, trade associations, and other commercial and industrial organizations, as well as firms and individuals, are hereby cordially invited to take part in the serious consideration of the most pressing and far-reaching problems which have yet been presented.

"This is a call to action. The opportunity is at hand. A great foreign trade is ours, if only we proceed with energy upon lines of sound policy. A great carrying trade under our own flag is ours, if only we make it possible to operate our new ships in competition with those of other nations."

PERMITS REVISED RETURNS.

Decision by Commissioner Roper on First Income Tax Payment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Although no general extension of time for filing income tax returns will be authorized, Commissioner Roper announced tonight that corporations which cannot complete returns by March 15 will be permitted to return the estimated tax and make a revised return within forty-five days. It was explained that by this plan the Government would be able to collect the approximate installment due next month to meet its urgent needs and corporations actually needing an extension of time would in effect receive it.

Taxpayers will not be relieved of interest on such amount, as a payment may fall short of the tax found later to be due. If the installment due March 15 is greater than shown by the completed return, the excess will be credited to the next payment.

"One of the advantages to the taxpayer," said Commissioner Roper, "is that it relieves him of one-half of 1 per cent. interest per month that would attach to the payment of the taxes under an extension granted at his request."

Provision for systematically handling this new feature will be made in the construction of the new return blanks for corporations, and a statement in writing of the reasons why it is impossible for the corporation to complete the return by the specified date must accompany every such remittance.

Individual taxpayers will have similar privileges, but no reason exists, according to the internal revenue officials, for delaying the filing of the returns of individual incomes, except in unusually difficult cases.

Forms for returns of individual incomes up to $5,000 will be distributed by collectors within a few days. Forms for larger incomes will be available about Feb. 24. Corporation blanks will be distributed by March 1. Regulations governing the administration of the new income tax will also be available before March 1.

Laces Seem to be in Favor.

A number of out-of-town stores appear to be still doubtful as to whether or not laces are selling well. They are, therefore, rather reluctant about placing large orders. In the city and surrounding territory the sale of these goods has been exceptionally good. At one of the local department stores yesterday it was almost impossible to attend to all the customers in the lace department.

Customers are now using laces to a great extent even on the plain dresses. Margot embroidery nets in all the new shades, including orchid, blue and Havana brown, are very popular for evening wear.

Men's Apparel Club to Meet.

With a view of forming a permanent organization, the Men's Apparel Club of New York State will hold its charter luncheon in the green room of the Hotel McAlpin on Saturday at 12:30. The object of the association is to promote close relationship between the retail clothiers of New York State and city and the representatives calling on them. This movement is a general one through the whole country and has received the indorsement of the New York Retail Clothiers Association. All traveling men and city salesmen, as well as sales-managers interested in selling merchandise in this State, are cordially invited to attend and take part in the formation of the organization.

Sale of Boys' Blouses.

Despite the fact that a number of the manufacturers of boys' blouses have received numerous cancellations and are having much difficulty in selling their merchandise, others are doing a good business. One firm's business has increased at least 34 per cent. over that of the previous year, and it is now having trouble in making deliveries, due to the number of orders on hand. During the last few days a large number of calls have been received for blouses that retail from $1.25 to $2.

Handkerchiefs in Demand.

The local handkerchief trade is beginning to show many signs of activity, and in some quarters the buying is quite heavy. Even though yesterday was a holiday, in some of the showrooms a number of buyers were looking over the lines and placing orders for Fall delivery. In view of the shortage of linen goods buyers are showing more interest in these lines and are placing some good-sized orders. Owing to the low stock of cotton goods on hand, it is said that it would be advisable for retailers to place their orders early in order to assure prompt shipments.

New Lines of Bathing Suits.

Manufacturers of wool bathing suits say that the difficulties in the wool market have kept down their general run of orders which should be strong the first of the year. They have a couple of lines of goods that come in attractive colors for women. These are the slips made with a contrasting band at the neck and armhole. These are worn with the all-over Annette Kellerman suits. The other is the California suit, which is in constant use on the Western coast but which is less liked on the Atlantic. This is like the slip but with open-legged knickerbockers, all made in one piece.

New Millinery Effects.

Among the models shown by manufacturing millinery houses is a bandeau hat in rough straw, the crown made of interlacing of the straw and one-quarter inch bands of black cire ribbon. Four henna fan-shaped wings are arranged at the back, one shooting out from the little bandeau of the ribbon. Another model is a little cushion brim "tam" with bias bands of cire ribbon and rough straw forming the brim. The crown is of rough straw put on in the conventional way. A black cut ostrich pom pom is perched at the side back. A little mushroom turban shaped like a cone is trimmed with tiny red and blue roses at the top of the crown. Loops of blue and rose ribbon form a wreath around the flowers, and a black figured veil covering the face and draped up the back is bound in the ribbon.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Trinity Church Corporation has disposed of another row of tenements on the lower west side which it has held for years. This sale is in line with its policy of liquidation adopted a couple of years ago in lieu of its old custom of long term leases.

The deal involved the six old buildings at 539 to 549 Broome Street, occupying a plot 146 by 86 feet, located opposite Public School 38 at the corner of Broome and Clark Streets. A syndicate of buyers organized primarily to purchase land and erect commercial garages in Manhattan is the buyer of the property. Plans for the improvement of the site with a two-story garage to cost about $190,000 are being prepared by N. A. Cantor, architect. Ames & Co., negotiated the sale.

Another Carnegie Hill Purchase.

Another residence in the Carnegie Hill section changed hands yesterday, when John C. Breckenbridge sold the five-story dwelling on lot 19 by 100.8 feet at 24 East Ninety-fourth Street, adjoining the Fairfax apartments at the southwest corner of Madison Avenue, to a purchaser reported to be an operator. The property was assessed at $60,000.

The sale was the third to be closed recently in this block. Senator Herbert C. Pell, Jr., bought the dwelling at 20 East Ninety-fourth Street last week, and Joseph H. Choate acquired the old houses at 10 and 12 a few weeks ago.

Orphanage Buys East Side Property.

The Israel Orphan Asylum, 274 to 280 Second Street, bought from Samuel Weil and others the three-story dwelling abutting at 292 East Third Street on lot 22.3 by 105.9. The property, which is between Avenues C and D, sold for $19,000.

Club Buys House.

The Ukrainian National Alliance, Inc., purchased from F. S. Phraner the three-story and basement private house at 30 East Seventh Street, and after extensive alterations will occupy the building for club purposes. Folsom Brothers, Inc., negotiated the sale.

Buyer for West Side Dwelling.

The Ararat Realty Corporation bought the five-story dwelling 42 West Ninety-sixth Street, between Central Park West and Columbus Avenue, from the 58 and 60 Manhattan Avenue Company. The building, which was recently altered into small suites by Emil W. Oppenheim, was sold by O. G. Manss.

Bronx Apartment Resold.

The Nason Realty Company, Max N. Natanson, President, sold to S. Rosenberg the five-story new-law apartment house, on plot 82 by 100, at 1,070 Faile Street, corner of 165th Street, one of two houses recently acquired from the Sirius Realty Company. The building, which contains seven stores and twenty-seven apartments, was held at $130,000, and was sold for cash. Alexander Selkin and David Mintz were the brokers.

Taxpayer Sold to Investor.

The 197th Street and Webster Avenue Corporation, Hyman Berman, President, sold to an investor the one-story taxpayer with eight stores at the southwest corner of Webster Avenue and 197th Street, 100 by 50, finished six months ago and fully rented. The buyer gave cash and improved Brooklyn property. Morris M. Sinske was the broker.

Activity in Queens Borough.

William F. Rodgers sold his dwelling at 9,301 Herald Avenue, Richmond Hills, to William A. Van Inwegen, for occupancy. H. R. Williams & Son made the sale.

Elizabeth J. Brush sold her residence, on plot 60 by 100, at 50 North Nineteenth Street, Flushing, to George F. Sisbower of Bayside, who will occupy the property. J. Albert Johntra made the sale.

E. Kelley sold to the Jamaica Savings Bank a plot 98 by 102, on the east side of Woodhaven Avenue, south of Brandon Avenue, Richmond Hill.

J. Zeisler has sold to A. Bentz a plot 47 by 100, on the south side of Putnam Avenue, west of Myrtle Avenue, Ridgewood.

Staten Island.

William J. McDonald purchased from the Scott Estates, Inc., a plot of land on Simonson Avenue, Clifton, having a frontage of 330 feet and running back to the right of way of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company, on which it has a frontage of 347 feet. Mr. McDonald will use the property, on which there are two dwellings, for business purposes. Moffatt & Schwab of Tompkinsville made the sale.

Westchester.

Griffen, Prince & Ripley sold the property located on Prospect Street, White Plains, N. Y., belonging to Dr. Samuel B. Lyon, to Frank N. Goble. The property was held at $20,000.

Recent Buyers.

The Plymouth Realty Company, John H. Leith President, is the buyer of the buildings 329 and 331 West Thirty-ninth Street.

The Manboro Realty Corporation is the buyer of Elberon Hall, 385 to 389 Central Park West.

Machine Shop For Sale

The property of the undersigned, who has been engaged in the manufacture of 155 Millimeter Common Steel Shell. Offers will be received for the entire property on which there is no mortgage or encumbrance.

This consists of a machine shop and about seven and one-half acres of land located on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, on Clyde Avenue, Buffalo, having a spur track on each side of the building. The land is fenced. The main building is single story, well lighted and in good condition, of stone construction, 80 feet x 300 feet, a stone addition thereto, 30 feet x 200 feet and a frame addition, 88 feet x 304 feet, together with other outbuildings, among which are a restaurant and time and employment office.

This is a modern plant with a low tax rate and cheap electric power. The equipment consists of electric motors and transformers, air compressors, boilers and heating system, high class tool room equipment, office fixtures and furnishings, belting, shafting and hangers, furnaces, lathes, boring mills, drill presses, grinders, pumping and conveyor systems, benches, special machinery, etc., all being in good operating condition.

The property is open to inspection and may be seen by applying at the premises. Any offer made must have the approval of the Ordnance Department before acceptance.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. [illegible]—Low pressure is general tonight, except over the central and southern districts west of the Rocky Mountains, with a severe disturbance central over Southern Kansas.

Rains or snows continued west of the Rockies and extended eastward into Kansas, Missouri, and the West Gulf States.

Snows also fell in the extreme Northwest, the lower lake region, southeastern Lower Michigan, and the Middle Atlantic States.

It is much warmer from the Ohio Valley southward, and temperatures are now generally above the seasonal average east of the Rockies, although considerably lower than on Tuesday through and along both slopes of the mountains.

The western disturbance will move east-northeastward, attended by general rains Thursday in the Ohio Valley, the East Gulf, and South Atlantic States, and by rains and snows in the lake region, followed by colder and generally fair weather Friday, except in the lake region and the upper Ohio Valley, where there will be scattered snows.

A marked disturbance over Southern Kansas is moving east-northeast, causing southeast storm warnings at 10 P. M. from Bay St. Louis to Cedar Keys.

During Thursday night and Friday the rains will extend into the Middle Atlantic States and New England. It will be warmer in New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York and New Jersey—Partly cloudy Thursday; rain at night or Friday; warmer Friday.

Southern New England—Fair and warmer Thursday. Friday, rain and warmer.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1918.	1919.		1918.	1919.

SERVICE ON B. R. T. REPORTED IMPROVED

Receiver Garrison's Figures Show More Cars, More Trips Made, and More Employes.

TELLS OF HIGHER MORALE

Applicants Said to be of Better Calibre—Men Who Have Been in Service Get Preference.

Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the rapid transit lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, issued a statement yesterday showing what improvement had been made in the service on the lines in receivership since they were turned over to him on Jan. 1. Service in the months of November, 1918, and January, 1919, were used for the purposes of comparison.

On Jan. 30 the receiver had increased the number of employes by 1,109; the number of cars by 197; the number of trips on the subway and elevated lines by 48,769, and the mileage on these lines by 394,255. On the surface lines the number of round trips made in January showed an increase over the November record by more than 30,000. As to other improvements, the statement says:

"In the mechanical department since Nov. 30 a total of 505 employes has been added to the shop force. In this department about 80 per cent. of damaged cars have been returned to the service, and it is estimated that, by the end of February, the department, with respect to the damaged cars, both on the surface and rapid transit lines, will be in a normal condition. The number of cars withheld from service has decreased as follows: Nov. 11, 1918, surface, 174; elevated and subway, 209. Feb. 4, 1919, surface, 174; elevated and subway, 95. The figures 209 under elevated and subway include 16 new subway cars operated since equipped and placed in operation.

"The calibre of the men applying for employment in the mechanical department has greatly improved, and a noticeable difference in the morale of the organization has been observed. The number of women shop employes has been reduced, chiefly through resignations, from 157 to 127, those women leaving the service being replaced by men.

"A report from the Employment Bureau shows that the total gain for the operating departments during the month of January was 571 men. In spite of the fact that, in the surface transportation department, 825 men left the service, either by resignation or discharge, there was a net gain for the month of 457 men. In the elevated and subway department, although 425 men left the service, there was a net gain of 114 men.

"The class of men now being employed is excellent, and ultimately should be of great value to the system. As far as practicable, men who have seen service in the army, navy, or Marine Corps will be given preference. There are approximately 1,200 men still in the service who will be entitled to re-employment with the company on their return to civil life. These men are coming in gradually, and will be placed as soon as possible after their applications have been received."

LOWELL CENTENARY PLANS.

Galsworthy to Speak at Dinner at Which Root Will Preside.

It was announced yesterday by the committee in charge of the James Russell Lowell centenary celebration next week that more than five thousand invitations had been issued for the various exercises. The celebration will begin on Wednesday night with a reception to the visiting English and Canadian men of letters and the members of the American Academy of Arts and Letters and the National Institute of Arts and Letters at the home of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University. The celebration is being given under the auspices of the American Academy of Arts and Letters and the committee in charge of the arrangements consists of President Butler, Augustus Thomas, Hamlin Garland, Prof. William M. Sloan, and Robert Underwood Johnson.

John Galsworthy, who arrived here this week for the celebration will be one of the speakers at the dinner at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on next Thursday night. Elihu Root will preside. There will be another meeting on Saturday morning at the Ritz-Carlton which will be followed by a luncheon under the auspices of the National Institute of Arts and Letters of which Cass Gilbert is president and Prof. Ashley H. Thorndike of Columbia University is secretary.

Y. W. C. A. GETS $45,039 HERE

Nine Hundred Workers in Drive for New York Branch.

The total of contributions for the first three days of the annual appeal of the Young Women's Christian Association for its regular work amounted last night to $45,039. This includes an anonymous gift of $25,000 and $1,000 from William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. Morgan, President of the Y. W. C. A. Most of the other contributions were obtained by the personal solicitation of the 900 workers of the thirty Y. W. C. A. teams, who began a campaign on Monday to raise $600,000 in ten days. The daily average of receipts thus far does not exceed 25 per cent. of the daily amount required to reach the desired quota.

The headquarters of the campaign is at 680 Fifth Avenue.

REVENUE BILL NOW READY FOR WILSON'S ACTION

Passes Senate by Viva Voce Vote with Little Expressed Opposition.

APPROVAL IS EXPECTED

Treasury Department Puts Into Operation Machinery to Collect Taxes.

SMOOT TAKES GLOOMY VIEW

Sees Many Industries Doomed—Has Plan to Convert Our Loans to the Allies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—With scarcely more than the necessary quorum of its membership present, the Senate late this afternoon adopted the new War Revenue law, calculated to raise $6,000,000,000 or more during the present fiscal year, by a viva voce vote. No roll call was demanded, and the only Senator who announced definitely in advance that he would oppose the measure was Mr. Townsend of Michigan. Senator Moses of New Hampshire registered a "nay" as a protest against the fact that the zone system for second-class postal matter had not been eliminated.

The measure will not become a law until President Wilson attaches his signature, and there is now no chance of getting it before Mr. Wilson prior to his return from France. That he will sign it, however, seems assured, and with the action by the Senate today the Treasury Department set its full machinery in motion to prepare for the collection of the taxes imposed.

Senator Smoot Attacks the Bill.

Final action came after a vigorous speech by Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, who exclaimed that $5,300,000,000 was a conservative estimate of the largest sum which would be raised under the provisions of the bill for the fiscal year 1918, and that the legislators might congratulate themselves if $3,000,000,000 was raised in the fiscal year 1919 instead of the estimate of slightly more than $4,000,000,000.

And despite this fact, Senator Smoot said, "the American people will be compelled by this act to submit to the heaviest burden of taxation and at higher rates than ever was imposed on our people or upon the people of any other land in all the history of the world." And this came, he added, at a time when the people were loaded up with bonds which they had bought to help the Government win the war.

Mr. Smoot said further that industries of the nation were being crippled and many of them threatened with bankruptcy partly because of the taxes imposed, but more particularly as a result of the huge increase in freight transportation rates which had been made necessary by the mismanagement of railroads under Government control and the high wage scales established.

He announced also that expenditures were piling up with such alarming rapidity that the situation might get out of hand and the Government find itself faced by a situation where there would not be sufficient money to pay its obligations without the issuance of many billions of dollars more in Liberty or Victory loans, unless retrenchment was accomplished and some method adopted to convert the $8,300,000,000 outstanding in foreign loans into liquid assets without unnecessary delay. He read parts of a bill related to that subject, which he had prepared and intends to submit to the Senate, he said.

Sees Doom of Many Industries.

In discussing what he considered the demoralizing conditions incident to Government operation of the railroads, Senator Smoot said that in his own State of Utah, he had been informed, the rates for the transportation of low grade ore from mine to smelter had in one instance at least jumped from $1.75 a ton to $4 a ton.

At the same time, he said, copper prices had dropped in value from the Government fixed war scale of 26 cents a pound to 18 cents a pound and lead which not long ago was quoted at 11 cents a pound, was now held at 5½ cents a pound and there was no heavy demand for it at that figure.

"Some of these industries with which I am familiar," he said, "will be forced to shut down if there is not a decrease in freight rates. In some cases the selling price is not sufficient to pay the freight rates alone. There will have to be a rearrangement on rates now or an untold number of businesses will be closed. Undoubtedly the same condition exists with many other industries as it does with the copper industry.

"American industries cannot pay the prevailing freight rates and the high salaries of today and compete with the other markets of the world. There must be reconstruction. Capital and labor must come closer together and figure out what can be done to get business on a more normal basis."

Tilt Over the Zone System.

Another warm tilt concerning the action of the conferees in abandoning the fight to abolish the zone system of second-class postal rates, without a return to the floor of the Senate for instructions featured today's debate.

Senator Smoot opened up the question by stating that when he saw the amend-

Britain Asks Full War Cost and Damages as Her Indemnity

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The British delegates at the Peace Conference have been definitely instructed to claim an indemnity that will include the cost of the war as well as the damage actually caused, it was announced in the House of Commons today by Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the Commons, in reply to a question.

A commission is now considering the amount to be claimed, the method by which payment should be made, and the means of enforcing the payment, Mr. Bonar Law added.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The Peace Conference Commission on Reparations today heard the American and English points of view on the question of reparations. Lord Summer spoke for Great Britain.

COURTS-MARTIAL CALLED ATROCIOUS

Gen. Ansell Protests Against System, Which, He Says, Works Many Injustices.

ASSUMED POWER OF REVIEW

Acting Judge Advocate General Corrected Some Heavy Sentences, Despite Baker.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Before the Senate Military Committee today Brigadier General Samuel T. Ansell, acting Judge Advocate General, strongly condemned the existing system of courts-martial in vogue in the army, saying that the death penalty and heavy terms in prison, running up to forty years, had been inflicted for what he characterized as comparatively trivial offenses.

General Ansell urged the passage of a bill drawn by Senator Chamberlain to give the Judge Advocate General power of review of courts-martial. His evidence embraced a scathing criticism of what he called an "atrociously bad system." The Secretary of War, he said, backed up Judge Advocate General Crowder in the latter's support of the prevailing system under which, General Ansell said, the War Department maintains there is no authority for review beyond that of a commanding officer.

"The sentences imposed for slight offences by the courts-martial have shocked every sense of justice," said General Ansell. "They have reached the heights of injustice. The sentences in many instances bore no reasonable relationship to the offenses committed."

Cursed with Red Tape.

"For forty years the army has been cursed with red tape in its court-martial proceedings," said General Ansell. "Terrible injustices have been inflicted upon small offenders. The whole system is wrong.

"I realize that I am arraigning an institution to which I belong. But I am doing it so that ample justice may be done the men in the ranks. We need more humanity in our judgment of their offenses. We have not shown it. For the sake of our men and their families we must put an end to this cruel system, and we must do it at once."

As a result of General Ansell's evidence, Secretary Baker will be called before the committee within the next few days. He will be asked, for one thing, as to his attitude regarding conscientious objectors, who, it was intimated at the hearing, had been treated with extreme leniency by the Secretary, while men in the army were being heavily punished for offenses such as declining to drill when tired out.

Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey brought up the Secretary's attitude toward conscientious objectors when he asked General Ansell why the Secretary of War had "agreed to their being honorably discharged from the army at the same time that men on the firing line were being committed to long terms in jail for trivial lapses."

"May I be excused from answering?" asked General Ansell. "It might embarrass me."

"We will have the Secretary here," said Senator Chamberlain. "He can tell us about it."

General Ansell undertook the power of review over courts-martial, he said, after the case had come before him of twelve non-commissioned officers who had been dishonorably discharged from service and had been sentenced to from three to seven years for a "minor disagreement" in one of the army camps with some West Point soldiers. He found authority, he said, under the law of 1862, to review the court-martial verdict and, after going into the evidence, set the sentences aside and restored the men to duty.

Protested to Secretary Baker.

"I wrote the Secretary of War about it," said General Ansell. "I wrote: 'You cannot approve the iniquity of such a system.'"

The Secretary, he said, did not encourage General Ansell's attitude, but the Acting Judge Advocate General insisted on his privilege of review and had kept on exercising it ever since.

General Ansell related as evidence of what he called the "perniciousness of the court-martial system," the case of a boy who had been in the army but a few days and was assigned to kitchen duty in an army camp. The Sergeant found him smoking a cigarette and reprimanded him.

"Give me that pack of cigarettes," ordered the Sergeant, according to General Ansell.

"Go to ——," snapped the soldier. The

STATE WILL GREET SOLDIERS, TO MEET THE HEARST ISSUE

Gov. Smith to Head Commission Made Up of Officials and Legislature Members.

TELLS OF HEARST THREAT

Assemblyman Steinberg Says Editor's Agent Tried to Intimidate Him.

CLUB TO MEET WESTERNERS

Montana Turns Its Welcome Over to Rocky Mountain Club—More Quit Brooklyn Greeters.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 13.—After thinking it over, the legislative leaders have concluded that an official welcome, other than that to be bestowed through the Hearst-Hylan committee, which has aroused such a storm of protest in New York, is due to the State troops returning from abroad. Speaker Thaddus C. Sweet of the Assembly announced tonight that the Ways and Means Committee would report to the Assembly next week a measure providing for a State Welcoming Commission, to be headed by the Governor and composed of all the elective State officials and members of the Legislature. The bill will carry an appropriation the amount of which has not as yet been definitely determined.

A concurrent resolution was introduced two weeks ago by Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg of New York. Mr. Steinberg is a member of the Republican majority, and for that reason it caused some surprise when his resolution, providing for a welcoming committee to supercede the Hearst-Hylan committee, was bottled up in the Ways and Means Committee, largely as a result of representations made by members of the Democratic minority. It was thought then that the project to give an official State welcome to returning fighters had been abandoned. Assemblyman Steinberg said today that the revival of the plan was due to a flood of letters urging the adoption of his resolution which have reached Speaker Sweet and other members of the Assembly in the last few days. He added that agents of Mr. Hearst at the capitol had threatened him in the event that he should press his resolution to adoption.

"One of Hearst's men came to me shortly after I had introduced the resolution and said: 'If you don't let up on this resolution Hearst will get you.' I told him I wasn't afraid of Hearst or any of his tribe."

HURD APPROVES IDEA OF A STATE WELCOME

Montana Appropriates $25,000 for Rocky Mountain Club Greeting to Its Soldiers.

"A credit to the good name of the State of New York," was the way Richard M. Hurd of the Executive Committee of the Independent Citizens' Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops, last night characterized the plan to have the State officially greet returning troops.

"It seems to me that the great majority of citizens," he said, "will be very much pleased by such action by the State officials. We are all agreed that it is impossible to do too much to honor our heroes returning from France. The fact that troops arriving in New York City are not merely New York City troops, but troops from all parts of New York State, and from the Western and Southern States, makes it highly appropriate that the matter of a suitable welcome should be undertaken by the Governor and by the Legislature.

"An additional reason in support of such action is the fact that Mayor Hylan's appointment of William Randolph Hearst to the Mayor's Committee to Welcome Homecoming Troops has estranged large numbers of the best citizens, both from the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee and the Manhattan Committee.

"The appointment of a State Committee to Welcome Homecoming Troops will place the reception of returning soldiers, sailors, and marines beyond the reach of party politics and personal bickerings, and will be a credit to the great State of New York and a much deserved tribute to the men coming home from France."

Rodman Wanamaker is Chairman of the City Committee, apparently destined to be replaced by the State organization. He could not be reached last night at his home at 37 West Fifty-sixth Street.

Herbert Wall, Secretary of the Rocky Mountain Club, 65 West Forty-fourth Street, announced last night that strong sentiment was developing throughout the Western States to have the Legislatures designate the club to welcome homecoming Western soldiers at this port. Mr. Wall also said that Montana yesterday appropriated $25,000 to be expended by the organization in entertaining Montana service men in this city.

He said that many members of the 41st Sunset Division had arrived here during the last few days and that the club had put into effect its program for welcoming the men. This consisted, he said, of meeting the men at the docks with all mail or packages which had been sent to this city for them.

Ebert Announces Plans to Disarm and Demobilize

WEIMAR, Friday, Feb. 14.—Friedrich Ebert, the President of Germany, has announced to newspapermen here that the Government is arranging the details for complete disarmament and demobilization.

20,000 ON STRIKE AT BERLIN STORES

Troops Occupy the Street Where Some Big Establishments Are Closed.

SPARTACIDES AGAIN FIRING

Radek, Russian Agent, Is Arrested—State of Siege Declared at Hamburg.

BERLIN, Feb. 12, (via Copenhagen.)—Twenty thousand store employes in Berlin have gone on strike for higher wages. Leipzigerstrasse, where some of the big stores are closed, is occupied by troops, which are maintaining order.

Spartacides are indulging in promiscuous firing in the newspaper quarter.

Everywhere throughout the empire workers' strikes are met by counter-strikes by doctors and other professional classes.

BASLE, Feb. 13.—Karl Radek, the Russian Bolshevist emissary who has been accused by the German authorities of being an instigator of numerous radical outbreaks in German territory, has been discovered and arrested by the Berlin police, according to a Berlin dispatch today. His whereabouts had been a mystery for some time.

A state of siege has been declared at Hamburg until the people of that city have surrendered all the arms in their possession. Patrols, demanding these arms, are taking action against those who resist.

Gustav Noske, Minister in Charge of Military Affairs in the Cabinet, has telegraphed to the President of the Soldiers' Council at Hamburg that he will not take military measures against that city, as the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council is restoring order.

BERLIN PRESS CORDIAL TO PRESIDENT EBERT

Vorwaerts Hails Saddler Chief—Wolff Calls Him Embodiment of Good Sense.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

BERLIN, Feb. 12, (via Copenhagen.)—With three exceptions, the Berlin press hails Ebert's election as President with satisfaction, or at least with confidence in his willingness and ability to administer his high office to the best possible advantage of Germany in the tragic circumstances.

The exceptions are the Rote Fahne, the Freiheit, and the Lokal-Anzeiger, the first two organs of the Radical Left, the last noted principally for its adulation of Kaiserism. Curiously enough, all three alike announce the historical event with the Vatican phrase, "Nos habemus Papam."

The Rote Fahne devotes just four lines to stating the result of the election, adding: "It occurred in true Vatican style."

The Freiheit devotes more space to derisive criticism of an attempt by an enthusiastic friend of Ebert to create a "spontaneous ovation" by Weimar's population to the first President of the German Republic than it does to the fact of the election.

The Lokal-Anzeiger gives up nearly its whole first page to an attempt to make the historical proceedings at Weimar appear contemptible as compared with the splendor of Kaiserism. But in another column the paper admits:

"We, whose conception of the highest representative of the German people has been quite different, will not deny, however, that the Socialists were hardly in a position to offer a better candidate. We also believe that Ebert will fill the place to his best ability, because he lacks neither conscientiousness, diligence, nor that average efficiency which, alas, suffices nowadays to gain a leading position in public life. But it seems out of the question that after his performances in the last three months the German people may expect important results from his administration."

In this tone the Lokal-Anzeiger continues in eight columns to discourage the people over their new venture. Vorwärts says:

"Saddler Fritz Ebert is the natural President. This means victory for himself, victory for the proletariat, victory for Socialism. The bourgeois parties which during the election campaign proclaimed loudly that the Social Democracy had proved its inability to govern, have elected a Socialist President. They know in their hearts that only the Social Democracy can govern Germany now." Theodor Wolff writes in the Tageblatt from Weimar:

"Ebert is no shining light, nor has he studied as much as some others, but he is the incorporation of good common sense. When after a day's work he sits behind a good bottle of wine, his hands folded over the table, this natural wisdom shows to the best advantage.

"There is nothing stiff and dry about him, but everything is cordial and round, like his person. He possesses that in-

Wilson Said to Have Spoken Strongly, Backing Clemenceau on Guarantees.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The terms for the renewal of the armistice, which will be presented to Germany on Monday for acceptance, imposes two new conditions. One is that Germany shall suspend all military activity in Posen against the Poles. The other is that Germany shall demobilize her military forces under arms down to twenty or twenty-five divisions.

Another important decision which indicates that American ideas have once more prevailed over the extreme French desire to crush Germany, that the blockade power is cited as a potential reward to Germany for doing her share rather than as a menace of further cutting off of her supplies of food and raw materials.

When the discussion on the next renewal of the armistice on Feb. 17 began, it was stated that if Germany did not do thus and so, the blockade would be stiffened beyond the rigorous terms now imposed. But that proposition has been dropped.

Now Germany is to be told that if she conforms to all the old and the new armistice conditions the blockade will be slackened and she will be helped to that extent in getting the materials needed for the resumption of normal industrial life. If she continues to evade the terms, the present blockade conditions will continue.

Apparently there is nothing determined upon as to making the blockade more rigorous than at present.

It is taken for granted that the German Armistice Commission will ask for time to submit the terms to the Ebert Government at Weimar. So this will be the first transaction of the new German republic with outside powers. No doubt is felt in Paris but what all the conditions will be accepted, for no other course is open to the German Government and people.

The new clauses relative to the withdrawal of the German troops from Posen are based on the assumption that the Peace Conference will restore that territory to the new Polish nation in accordance with Wilson's thirteenth point, which reads:

> An independent Polish State should be erected which should include the territories inhabited by undisputably Polish populations, which should be assured a free and secure access to the sea.

Germany is also to be told peremptorily that she must cease evading the terms of the original armistice relative to the delivery to the Allies of submarines, railroad equipment, airplanes, and shipping.

Probably she will also be ordered to assemble all her gold reserve at Frankfort. When this gold was removed from Berlin it was scattered in the various cities throughout the country.

Upon reaching a conclusion on the armistice, as outlined, the Supreme War Council today took up the matter of determining the final assignment of American and allied troops to the occupied European territory and Turkey in Asia. Such determination is now vitally necessary as a preliminary to the continuation of the demobilization of all the allied troops without risk of dismissing too many of them from the service before the actual needs are definitely known.

The total force, tentatively fixed by Marshal Foch as required from all the powers concerned for the necessary occupation work, was 1,800,000 men. Demobilization is now progressing on that basis and no radical change, one way or the other, is expected. But the actual checking up of the Foch estimate is deemed advisable at this time as a precaution against letting too many troops go.

On the other hand, it is within the Wilson Says He Will Return to France in Hope of Celebrating a Great Principle Put in Practice.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—In reply to a delegation of the French Association of the Society of Nations, which called upon him today, President Wilson made known formally for the first time his intention to return to France after going to Washington for the closing session of Congress. He said:

"I appreciate very deeply what has been said, and I take it that the kind suggestion is that some time after my return we should arrange a public meeting, at which, I am quite confident we may celebrate the completion of the work, at any rate up to a certain very far advanced stage, the consummation of which we have been working and hoping for for a long time.

"It would be a very happy thing if that could be arranged. I can only say for myself that I sincerely hope it can be. I should wish to lend any assistance possible to so happy a consummation.

"I cannot help thinking of how many miracles this war has already wrought—miracles of comprehension as to our interdependence as nations and as human beings, miracles as to the removal of obstacles which seemed big, and now have grown small, in the way of active and organized co-operation of nations in regard to the establishment and maintenance of justice.

"And the thoughts of the people having been drawn together, there has already been created a force which is not only very great but very formidable—a force which can be rapidly mobilized, a force which is very effective when mobilized, namely, the moral force of the world.

"One advantage in seeing one another and talking with one another is to find that, after all, we all think the same way. We may try to put the result of the thing into different forms, but we start with the same principles.

"I have often been thought of as a man more interested in principles than in practice, whereas, as a matter of fact, I can say that, in one sense, principles have never interested me, because principles prove themselves when stated. They do not need any debate. The thing that is difficult and interesting is how to put them into practice. Large discourse is not possible on the principles, but large discourse is necessary on the matter of realizing them.

"So that, after all, principles, until translated into practice, are very thin and abstract and, I may add, uninteresting things. It is not interesting to have far-away vision, but it is interesting to have near-by visions of what it is possible to accomplish. And in a meeting such as you are projecting perhaps we can record the success that we shall have then achieved of putting a great principle into practice, and demonstrated that it can be put into practice, though only, let us say, five years ago it was considered an impractical dream.

"I will co-operate with great happiness in the plan that you may form after my return, and I thank you very warmly for the compliment of this personal visit."

JAPAN BALKS AT MANDATORY PLAN

Wants Further Light on Measure of League Supervision Before Accepting.

HAS PROJECT FOR ISLANDS

Would Give Them Distinct Japanese Character—Otherwise National Pride Is Hurt.

PARIS, Feb. 13, (Associated Press.)—Japan has not yet agreed to the plan to make her a mandatory for the Caroline and Marshall Islands.

While the other powers have practically agreed to the mandatory principle and are willing to accept direction of the German colonies, Japan desires a more complete definition of the plan under which the two groups of Pacific islands will be entrusted to her, and a fuller statement of the kind of international control and supervision which will be reserved by the League of Nations.

In discussing this question today with the correspondent a member of the Japanese delegation said that the Japanese had a great pride in their achievements in the Pacific, and felt that as a reward for their military and naval activity they should be permitted to extend their culture and civilization to the two groups of islands, which were inhabited by undeveloped peoples.

If the Society of Nations desired standardization and unification of development of the captured German colonies, which would prevent Japan from giving a distinctly Japanese character to the Marshall and Caroline Islands, the plan would not be acceptable to Japan, as it would hurt the national pride of her people, the delegate said.

The Havas Agency says it has been informed by the Japanese delegation to the Peace Conference that the announcement that Baron Makino, senior Japanese delegate, had received an order to publish certain agreements concluded between China and Japan is premature.

Conformable to diplomatic usages, says the delegation, Japan has asked China's consent to the publication of these agreements, but the Peking Government has not yet forwarded its reply.

The Japanese delegation insists that it is not a question of secret treaties, of which none has ever been concluded between the two countries, but simply of "accords."

The proposed arbitration of the Italian-Jugoslav frontier question is for the moment in abeyance. Premier Orlando has seen President Wilson and informed him that, after consulting with his colleagues of the Italian delegation, they had agreed that it would be impossible to take a decision on the arbitration proposal, which the Jugoslavs presented to the Peace Conference, asking President Wilson to be arbiter, without consulting the King and the Cabinet, and, if necessary, the Parliament.

President Wilson took the opportunity to explain that he was not the originator of the proposal, which was presented

RUMANIA REVOLTS, KING IS WOUNDED

Workingmen Prevent the Royal Family's Flight and Fire on Bucharest Palace.

MOBS SHOUT FOR REPUBLIC

Bolsheviki Said to Have Inspired Rising—60 Are Killed, 150 Wounded in Clash.

BERLIN, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—A general insurrection is in progress throughout Rumania, according to a special dispatch from Vienna.

King Ferdinand has been wounded slightly and has attempted to flee from Bucharest with the royal family.

Workingmen blocked the roadway from the palace when the royal family attempted to flee to Jassy, and the King and his family were forced to return. The King was wounded when the workers, according to the report, fired upon the palace.

Demand Fall of Dynasty.

Rioters in the streets of Bucharest are openly demanding the overthrow of the dynasty, crying:

"Down with the puppets! Long live the republic!"

The Vilag of Budapest learns that the revolt is part of Bolshevist propaganda. In a clash between the military and demonstrators at [illegible] sixty persons were killed and 150 wounded.

The discipline of the Rumanian Army, the newspaper adds, is collapsing. The food and economic situation is rapidly growing worse and the country's finances are completely demoralized. The position of the Bratiano Cabinet is declared to be untenable.

Recent Reports of Disorders.

Ever since the French troops under General Berthelot passed through Bucharest in the middle of November there have been a series of stories of revolt in Rumania printed in the Berlin and Vienna press, some of which have been cabled to this country. Official general denials of these reports have been sent from time to time via Saloniki.

There were stories of the peasants rising early in January, of the spread of Bolshevist propaganda, with demonstrations before the palace, and finally of pogroms against the Jews, who were said to have declared Premier Bratiano's decree of emancipation unacceptable and impracticable. All but the last have been denied via Saloniki by French officials.

La Romanie, the organ of National Rumanian Unity, had nothing to say about these reports up to Jan. 16. The number of that date gave a most favorable view of the work of reconstruction.

The Rumanian Government has had to deal both with Socialist agitators at home and Bolshevist propagandists from Russia. The reconstruction task of the Government has been hard because of the manner in which the Germans pillaged the country during the occupation. Rumanian money, printed and floated by the Germans, has been causing financial difficulties.

Premier Bratiano is a Liberal in politics and anti-German. On Feb. 2 he appeared before the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference in Paris. There has been no rport concerning his whereabouts since.

DRAFT TO CONFERENCE TODAY

President Will Read in Plenary Session the 26 Articles.

LEAGUE MEMBERS LIMITED

Neutral and Enemy Powers Must Be Admitted One by One, as They Are Declared Fit.

FRENCH HAD SMALL SUPPORT

Czechs Alone Back World Police—Paris Story That We Must Keep 500,000 in Army.

PARIS, Feb. 13, (Associated Press.)—The draft of the Society of Nations plan was unanimously adopted as a whole by the Peace Conference Commission this afternoon. The final draft consists of twenty-six articles.

President Wilson will personally read the draft to a plenary meeting of the Peace Conference tomorrow. The conference will not be asked to finally adopt it at this time.

The Bourgeois proposition for an interallied military force to enforce peace was defeated by an overwhelming vote at the meeting of the commission. The French and Czechoslovaks were the only representatives voting in the affirmative.

The Japanese delegation presented an amendment providing that racial discrimination should not be tolerated in immigration laws.

Several delegates urged that this would open such a large question that great delay might ensue, and the matter was dropped without a vote.

The League Commission resumed its sessions at 10:30 o'clock this morning with a full attendance of the members to receive the report of the Drafting Committee.

The commission took a recess at 1 o'clock until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, having then gone over seven articles of the draft.

The first subject considered on the resumption of the sitting concerned an international military force. President Wilson was not present at this session, having to attend the Supreme War Council. Lord Robert Cecil acted as Chairman during his absence.

According to a Havas Agency statement, the text of the plan for the Society of Nations, as first drawn up by the Peace Conference Commission for the organization of the society, and altered in some cases at the instance of President Wilson, was afterward amended, upon representations by Léon Bourgeois, whose ideas are stated to have been well received by the Allies.

In one case the plan was amended, the statement adds, so as to provide that the nations having membership in the League should pledge themselves to take up arms if necessary for the maintenance of the integrity of their respective territories. In addition to this, the commission discarded the idea of virtually making the Society of Nations a super-State.

Another Havas Agency announcement regarding the plan says that the United States, under the project as it has been amended, will maintain an army of not less than 500,000 men, which, after authorization of such action by the United States Senate, could be used wherever necessary.

This provision was agreed upon by the Society of Nations Commission, the agency says, as a solution of the difficulties in the way of the plan arising from the American Constitution.

Captain André Tardieu of the French peace delegation in an interview with American newspaper correspondents today said that the Society of Nations would be formed to protect only the powers represented at the Paris conference now.

Neutral and enemy powers would be admitted one by one, he added, as they conformed to the rules of the society and could be trusted.

Arrangements have been completed for President Wilson's departure from Paris tomorrow night and his embarkation at Brest on Saturday. He is planning to return to France on March 15.

The steamship George Washington arrived at Brest today to take the President back to the United States.

It is now believed in official circles that the Peace Conference will be able to complete its work by June 1.

If the reported action regarding the use of the American Army in connection with the Society of Nations, as outlined in the Havas statement, was taken by the league commission, it would seem that the action was not final.

At what hour the Havas statement was issued does not appear, but the indications are that it was put out during the morning, while an Associated Press dispatch filed in Paris at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon stated that up to the time the Society of Nations' commission took a recess, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the paragraph in the commission's plan [illegible] an international military force had not been reached.

GERMAN ARMY FALLS TO 5[illegible],000 THIS WEEK

British Do Not Consider Possibility of New Military Effort Dangerous.

[illegible], Feb. 13.—The demobilization of Germany's old army is almost completed, according to authoritative information here. After Saturday, when [illegible] 1917 classes will be dis[illegible] the army will consist of about 100,000 men on the eastern front, and the 1918 and 1919 classes, numbering about 450,000 men, which will be kept as a standing army.

Effo[illegible] the German authorities to recruit volunteers for the army have been unproductive, but the official view here [illegible] they may be more successful later. Men who have been in the army for four years do not have a great desire to continue in the fighting force, but it is expected that they will find civil life in Germany less attractive than the army, and, therefore, probably will [illegible] to enlist later.

Recruiting is also hindered by the fact that nearly every hamlet is trying to raise its own defense force. Many former soldiers are joining the local forces and are staying at home to protect their communities rather than join the national forces.

The German force on the eastern frontier is divided into two armies. The northern headquarters is at Bromberg and is commanded by General von Quast. The southern force, under Field-Marshal von Woyrsch, is at Sagan.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg has not yet arrived at Kolberg, the Germain main headquarters in the east, although preparations have been made to receive him there.

The British General Staff does not view as dangerous the possibility of Germany making a military effort, but is taking full cognizance of the situation which the staff believes exists. It is pointed out that the German General Staff is still in existence, and that doubtless much artillery is still in hand. The Germans, it is believed, could get plenty of men quickly if necessary, but the problem of stores would forestall any quick ambitious attempt to renew the fighting.

LETTS STATE TERMS FOR CONFERENCE

Reds Must Withdraw Their Forces and Stop All Offensive Military Measures.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The Lettish Republic, in accepting the invitation of the Peace Conference to attend a conference at Princes' Islands, states that as a proviso to its acceptance the Russian Soviet Government must withdraw its forces from Letvia and cease all offensive military measures.

The Esthonian Government, in its acceptance, states that it does not feel that it is a part of the Russian Soviet Republic, but will participate because it feels that the conference will be of importance to the future of Esthonia and its relations with Russia.

The text of the Lettish reply reads:

"On Jan. 22 the great Allied Powers assembled at the Peace Conference invited representatives of every organized group that is now exercising or attempting to exercise political authority or military control anywhere in Siberia, or within the boundaries of European Russia as they stood before the war just concluded, except in Finland,' to go to Princes' Islands, Feb. 15, 1919, to confer with the representatives of the great Allied Powers.

"Although, from a political point of view, the Provisional Government of Letvia is in a situation exactly similar to that of Poland and Finland, it finds itself, nevertheless, invited, according to an official declaration made by the Secretary General of the Peace Conference on Feb. 10, 1919. In the name of the Provisional Lettish Government, the Lettish delegation has the honor to bring to the attention of the Peace Conference of Paris the following declaration:

"'The Provisional Lettish Government will send three delegates to Princes' Islands, provided that all armed forces sent or directed by Russia against the Lettish State be withdrawn from Letvia and that all offensive military action cease.

"'Letvia announces its separation from Russia and announced, in January, 1919, at the Constituent Assembly of Russia the constitution of an independent and sovereign Lettish State.

"'The Lettish delegation sent to the Peace Conference will participate in the conference at Prinkipo in order to:

"'I.—Make peace with Russia, this peace to be recognized by the great Allied Powers.

"'II.—Regulate, under the auspices of the great Allied Powers, the political and economic affairs as they result from the separation of Letvia and Russia.

"'III.—Make treaties in and take the necessary steps toward the establishment of States.

(Signed) "'J. TSCHISTE.'"

The Esthonian reply was as follows:

"On Jan. 22 the Peace Conference adopted a resolution by which the Governments established within the bounds of what was Russia before the war were asked to meet the representatives of the Allied Powers at Princes' Islands Feb. 15. The resolution closed with a request for a reply to this invitation from the interested parties.

"Therefore, the Esthonian delegation considers it a duty to bring to the attention of the Peace Conference, in the name of the Esthonian Government, the following:

"'The Esthonian people, by the intermediary of its National Council, which springs from universal suffrage, determined to separate from Russia, and thereupon proclaimed Esthonia an independent republic. The Government has been provisionally recognized by the English, French, and Italian Governments. Not only does the Esthonian Government exert its authority independent of any Russian Government, but for three months, after having organized a regular army, it has been at war with the Russian Soviet Communist Republic.

"'Therefore, we in nowise consider ourselves a part of Russia, although we accept the invitation of the Allied Powers and of the United States to go to Princes' Islands. We believe that the participation of the representatives of Esthonia and of the Communist Republic of Russian Soviets of importance to the future relations between Russia and the Esthonian Republic.'"

IRISH DELEGATE ARRIVES IN PARIS

Sean O'Kelly Inquires About Recognition of the "Provisional Government."

SENDS LETTER TO WILSON

Fails to Give His Own Address to Which a Reply Might Be Forwarded.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Professor Edward de Valera, the escaped Sinn Fein leader, has not yet arrived in Paris, but the so-called Irish Republic has succeeded in sending one of its emissaries here. His name is Sean O'Kelly, and to his name he adds the letters M. P.

O'Kelly yesterday addressed to President Wilson at the Villa Murat a letter in which he states:

"I have been appointed by the provisional Government of the Irish Republic to be their representative in Paris, and I am directed to request what recognition is to be granted by the Peace Conference and the League of Nations to the Government of the Irish Republic, now established.

O'Kelly at the same time states that he has been nominated by the Lord Mayor and Municipal Council of the City of Dublin "to wait on your Excellency [meaning President Wilson] if your Excellency so pleases, and to inquire if a certain correspondence addressed to you by the Town Clerk of Dublin in January last has reached your Excellency."

The correspondence to which O'Kelly refers is the proposal that the freedom of the City of Dublin should be conferred on the President.

O'Kelly goes on to ask for a personal interview "in which I can inform your Excellency officially of the claims of my Goverament to have the case of Ireland stated before the Peace Conference and the League of Nations."

The "delegate" is stopping "with friends in Paris," and he gives no address in his letter to the President, so that it is a question how President Wilson could reach him if he decided to reply at once. The question is asked whether, under the circumstances, O'Kelly counted on receiving a reply. It is also pointed out that, by signing himself Sean O'Kelly, M. P., he has not followed the precedent established by the majority of the Sinn Feiners returned at the recent general elections, who described themselves as M. P. I. R., i. e., Member of Parliament of the Irish Republic.

Inquiries in American quarters indicated that O'Kelly's letter had so far not created the sensation which the delegate of the Irish Republic may have considered appropriate to his advent in Paris. President Wilson's correspondence is necessarily very extensive, and O'Kelly's letter up to this afternoon does not appear to have come up for consideration. Possibly it may be carried on board President Wilson's ship amid great bundles of other letters when he sails for the United States, and in that case before the President's answer can reach O'Kelly at the unnamed address the said O'Kelly may be cooling his heels for a long time.

SOCIALISTS SENDING ENVOYS.

Henderson, Branting, and Others Going to Paris Conference.

It is announced that a second Socialist conference will probably be held in Berne early in the Summer.

Hjalmar Branting is the Swedish Socialost leader, Arthur Henderson is a British labor leader, and Camille Huysmans is a Belgian Socialist. MM. Renaudel and Longuet are French Socialists.

bounds of possibility that the occupation figures, as determined upon in the next few days, may reveal the possibility of demobilization at an even faster rate than now prevails.

Berlin Reports Allies' Demand.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A German wireless communication, received tonight, says:

"The Superior Council of the Allies demanded from the German armistice administration at Spa on Feb. 10 a declaration of all stocks of war materials available in Germany, under construction, including guns, airplanes and motors.

"The demand was based on the attitude of the German Army administration in connection with the Polish question and the necessity of settling conditions for an extension of the armistice."

WILSON BACKED CLEMENCEAU.

Urged All Precautions—Ready to Use Army Again Against Germany.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—It is reported that M. Clemenceau made an impressive speech at yesterday's sitting of the Supreme War Council, showing the necessity of taking all desirable precautions against Germany. At the afternoon sitting President Wilson is declared to have adopted the same viewpoint, affirming that all the Allies were agreed on that point and that divergencies which cropped up during previous discussions bore solely on the most suitable methods of obtaining the necessary guarantees.

President Wilson, according to the report, is understood to have declared in conversation that a resumption of hostilities was a grave eventuality to which he would agree only on the most absolutely essential considerations, and not for any secondary motive.

The report states that, in Mr. Wilson's opinion, the non-execution of terms of the armistice by Germany would be an incident of such a nature as to justify the resumption of war, and it is stated that he would not hesitate in that case to order the American Army to take up arms again.

A Havas report says that the Supreme War Council has decided that the armistice with Germany will be renewed on Feb. 17 for a very brief period, with the Allies reserving the right to suspend it at any time in the event of Germany's failure to carry out new clauses or those which have hitherto not been executed.

During the brief period of the renewed armistice, a special commission will definitely draft the conditions of an armistice which will last till the signature of the peace preliminaries. These conditions, which the Supreme War Council is reported to have approved in a rough form yesterday afternoon, have in view, it is said, the demobilization of the German Army and the disarmament of the enemy under the supervision of the Allies. These terms, it is understood, will be communicated to Germany so that the National Assembly at Weimar will have time to deliberate upon them until the provisional armistice expires.

Marshal Foch, who leaves for Treves today, was to interview Premier Clemenceau at 8 o'clock this morning and begin drafting the armistice provisions which the Supreme War Council was to examine this afternoon.

During the session this afternoon the Supreme Council heard the Rev. Howard S. Bliss, President of the American College at Beirut, and Chekri Gahem, President of the Syrian National Committee.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Marshals Foch and Haig, General Pershing, General Diaz, General Sackville West, and Admiral Hope gave their views before the Supreme War Council today when the discussion of the question of the prolongation of the armistice was continued.

A request for specific information has been addressed to the German Government, in which the allied and associated Governments say in effect:

"You profess good faith but your practice does not agree with your professions. Show us that you are disarming by fully complying with the terms already imposed upon you and we are ready to give you benefit of the doubt. Up to the present, however, you appear to have tried to deceive us in the matter of submarines, transport, and merchant ships. Convince us of your good faith by your acts and then we will consider whether we cannot come to terms with you on the general ground of the abolition of conscription and the limitation of armaments.'"

ROME, Feb. 12.—At last the Capitoline Hill is freed from German "domination." The Italian tricolor waves above the Palazzo Caffarelli, the former German embassy to the Quirinal, which now belongs to the Italian Government.

It was a coincidence that both the Central Empires succeeded in establishing their embassies on two historic spots on the Capitoline Hill, the centre of Latin civilization and greatness. The Austrian embassy was in the Palazzo Venezia, the property of the Venetian Republic in the Middle Ages.

Ever since the beginning of the war, the Italian people had claimed the right to annex these two monuments, it being deemed a profanation that they should belong to the enemy. At last this wish has been satisfied, the Government giving the Swiss Embassy, which is looking after German interests in Italy time to transport all the furniture and art objects.

More than 2,000 years ago, in the identical spot where now the Palazzo Caffarelli stands, stood the Temple of Jupiter, on the Capitoline Hill, in the centre of Rome. Senator Rodolfo Lanciani, the renowned archaeologist and the greatest authority on the topography of Rome, is going to initiate wonderful excavations for the treasures buried under the palace. He has already visited the palace to plan the work.

The temple stood on a tremendous cliff 110 feet above the underlying road. The building was originally erected 500 years before Christ, and was reconstructed five times, the last time in Pentelican marble, which was covered with inscriptions from all countries of the world expressing gratitude to the Romans for their help.

The pillars of part of the temple, with their priceless treasures, must have rolled down the cliff and been buried there. The best part of its marble ornaments were used for buildings, churches, and palaces in Rome.

Germany bought the Palazzo Caffarelli, built on this site, and also by slow degrees all nearby land and houses on the Capitoline Hill. All this, however, has been taken over by the Italian Government, which has given the order for the demolition of the palace to enable workmen to start immediately on the excavations.

GERMAN SHIPS READY TO HELP CARRY TROOPS

About 750,000 Tons of Vessels to be Turned Over to Allied Transport Council.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—About 750,000 tons, deadweight, of German shipping have been named for the use of the allied maritime and transport council in repatriating troops and carrying food, according to official announcement tonight. The statement reads:

"The Maritime Transport Council met Feb. 1, Feb. 4, and Feb. 11. Those present were MM. Clementel and Boisson for France, Signor Crespi for Italy, George Rublee for the United States, and J. A. Salter for Great Britain.

"Important decisions were made as to the allocation for management and use of Austrian and German tonnage. Passenger vessels will be mainly employed in the repatriation of troops and cargo vessels for the carriage of food to different ports in Europe, including liberated areas and enemy countries. The vessels are to be divided for the purposes of management among the associated Governments.

"These arrangements were made on the understanding that the ultimate disposition of the vessels by the terms of peace would in no way be prejudiced, and in order to make this a fact they are being administered in the meantime in trust for the associated Governments as a whole. They will fly the flag of the Allied Maritime Transport Service as well as the national flag of the country undertaking their management.

"The council appointed delegates to proceed to Spa, together with representatives of the food departments and the naval authorities of the several Governments, to meet the representatives of the German Government Feb. 16 and arrange with regard to the delivery of vessels which the German Government was bound to hand over under the armistice of Jan. 16 and the Treves agreement of Jan. 17.

"The preparation of a considerable number of vessels has been proceeding, and about 750,000 tons, deadweight tonnage, has been named by the German Government and are now ready to sail. Meantime the associated Governments are making an examination on the spot of other German vessels in German ports."

RAPID PROGRESS ON LABOR PROGRAM

Peace Conference Commission Reaches Article XVII. of Draft Presented by British.

BIG OBSTACLE IS PASSED

Proposals to be Presented to Full Conference Cover a Very Wide Range.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The Peace Conference Commission on International Labor Legislation examined today the articles dealing with the procedure of the proposed international conference body. In this process it reached Article XVII. of the draft.

The commission has decided to issue a journal dealing with the problems of international industry and employment. It was agreed also to appoint an international staff, the duties of which would include distribution of information on all subjects relating to international conditions of industrial life and employment.

The agreement yesterday by the commission to accept Article IV. of the British draft of labor measures marked the passing over safely of an obstacle which labor leaders expected would provoke a sharp contest, because it was the most radical of the projects that organized labor has been seeking to graft on the constitution of the Society of Nations. This article provides that at the proposed International Labor Conference representatives of the Governments, the employers, and working people shall be entitled to speak and vote independently without regard to the views, expressed by the other representatives of their nation, and to have power to draw up conventions, binding on the nations represented.

The rapid progress made upon the rest of the British draft, into which will be incorporated some features of the French labor plan, appears to warrant the belief that the essential aims of the delegates of both nations will be accepted in their entirety by the commission.

The British draft covers a wide field, including these provisions:

Uniformity of the rights of workmen employed abroad, their protection against loss when in a foreign country through the lapse of State insurance against sickness, old age, accidents, unemployment, and similar causes.

Prevention of unemployment through the adoption by the different Governments of a policy of distribution of orders for public works so as to keep the demand for labor at an approximately uniform level.

Relief of the unemployed through a system of registration and co-operation between employers in different lines of industry to meet fluctuating labor demands.

Opportunities to unemployed young workers for continuance of their education at established centres.

A system of inspection of factories and workshops to insure the execution of labor laws.

Protection of children, youths, and women, with educational opportunities for the children and regulation of night work for youths.

Limitation of the working shift for young persons to half that of adults, with no overtime or night work.

Recognition of the rights of workingmen to combine and maintain peaceful picketing.

Recognition of the right of workingmen to combine politically, and of trades unions to participate in politics.

Fixing of working hours by laws in each State, with an international standard as the minimum.

Regulation of home work in small workshops, or sweatshops, to be attended to by each State, in view of the difficulty of settling this problem by international legislation.

Drafting of an international code regulating labor conditions in the mercantile marine under every flag; this to be worked out by a special maritime commission of the League of Nations, which shall be in continuous session to take up new points.

It seems to be agreed that the diverse wage and money standards of the East and the West would make the definite fixing of conditions as to these matters impossible.

As to the right of workingmen to combine, the British view is that this should be insisted upon by the working classes, although it is now denied by Japan.

The measures of hygiene, insurance, and the regulation of the work of children, it is also contended, ought to apply to native Asiatic labor.

The British plan also contemplates the creation of a permanent international commission to fix minimum wages, according to conditions in various regions, and to make a special study of native labor problems.

It is proposed to include in the League of Nations plan the constitution of an international parliament, composed of delegates from the existing national parliaments, to suggest labor legislation to the Society of Nations.

Abolition of military training in schools and international exchange of university students is also proposed.

The French proposals include the recruiting of labor through national employment bureaus, prohibition of work by children under 14 years of age, prohibition of night work by women, and enforcement of a maximum eight-hour working day in factories where furnaces are always lighted, together with laws regulating hygiene and the safety of the workers.

BERLIN PRESS CORDIAL TO EBERT

definable astuteness and tenacious perseverance without which even in revolutionary times no harnessmaker can become President.

"The German labor movement has created no powerful individualities, but a vigorous, bright, critical spirit. On such ground as Ebert's they have a ground that lies midway between the overheated and the arctic regions.

"Ebert will now need a chef de cuisine, a master of ceremonies and a retinue, and will live at the Bellevue or some other Berlin palace, because we cannot afford that the German Republic in a plebeian manner shall discard all conventional practices. But even in these absolutely necessary new surroundings he will remain a son of the people.

"Least of all have the Monarchists cause to say that Ebert's personality is anything but royal, because they were always ready and their principles commanded them to pay homage to the most insignificant, incompetent, foolish personage, only because by a mere stupid accident of birth he grew up in a princely palace."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung treats Ebert comparatively fairly in an article headed "The End of the Revolution." The Junker organ emphasises the view point that with Ebert's election as President, revolutionists have ceased to exist and the law now only knows common criminals.

"The great events of the last two days," it says, "have brought up nearer the restoration of law and order and we expect of Ebert's Government that it will show itself strong enough to draw the consequences from the new situation. Surely Ebert's was not a light task during the revolution nor have the revolutionaries made it easy for him and we suspect that his remembrance of Nov. 9 is not the most pleasant. With the exception of a few who made lucre out of the revolution the whole German people will greet with satisfaction the end of a period which tested all our patience to an intolerable degree.

"The new Government has the authorization and moral backing of the whole German people. Everything now depends on the use it makes of these.

"The Centrist organs also welcome Ebert with cordiality."

Toward midnight last night Spartacides again appeared in the newspaper district and attacked the guards in the Vorwärts, Tageblatt, Tägliche, Rundschau, and Ullstein buildings, shooting and throwing hand grenades. Government troops drove them from the housetops, employing searchlights.

GERMANS SUSPEND ATTACKS ON POLES

Attempts by Bolsheviki to Pass Through Lines Disguised as Polish Officers Fail.

ZURICH, Feb. 13, (Havas.)—The German offensive against the Poles has been suspended, according to Berlin newspapers.

[Early this week it was reported from Paris that Marshal Foch had ordered the Poles and Germans to cease hostilities.]

WARSAW, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—Ignace Jan Paderewski is alarmed over the German situation in Posen. He said to The Associated Press today: "The Germans are counting upon the United States and foreign press to spread the impression that the Poles are incapable of self-government."

Refugees bringing in Russian rubles find that the value of their money is very low, the exchange rate having dropped 20 per cent.

Bolshevist forces have occupied Zeliva, between Bialystok and Brest-Litovsk. They have attempted to advance through the Polish lines, using uniforms of Polish officers, but those who tried this ruse failed, and 100 have been brought to Warsaw in motor trucks. The Bolshevist forces are estimated to number between two and twenty divisions, but it is believed that the actual figures will show that the latter estimate is the more correct.

General Bartelmy is attempting to arrange an armistice between the Ukraninians and Poles, which the former are willing to negotiate, provided the Drohobycz oil fields are given to them, pending decision by the Peace Conference. The American Red Cross has sent a carload of condensed milk to Lemburg.

ASK TROOPS TO GUARD FOOD.

Germans Held Responsible for Safety of Shipments Through Danzig.

BERLIN, Feb. 11, (Associated Press.)—The railroad administration at Danzig has notified the Government that the military authorities there are not in a position to furnish the necessary number of troops to protect the first three Polish relief ships which are due at Danzig early next week, according to the Kruez Zeitung.

The commander is said to have requested that American troops be sent there, but this has been refused, because the American Commission insists that the German Government be responsible for the protection of food shipments and that Germany be obligated to make good any losses.

The situation is complicated by the failure of French or American troops to arrive, which will make necessary the policing of the entire railway line from Danzig to the Polish frontier. The Danzig railway administration, therefore, has sent an urgent call to Berlin for the prompt dispatch of an adequate number of troops.

CANNOT ALTER PEACE TREATY.

Must Be Accepted or Rejected, Bonar Law Indicates.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—George Lambert asked in the House of Commons whether Parliament would have the power to alter the provisions of the peace treaty.

Andrew Bonar Law, the Government spokesman, replied that it was quite impossible that about twenty Parliaments should discuss the details of the treaty. He added that as far as Great Britain was concerned the treaty would not be satisfactory until Parliament had expressed an opinion on it.

Mr. Bonar Law's reply indicated that the treaty would have to be ratified or rejected en bloc.

by M. Trumbitch during a conversation which he had with him last week, and he had simply mentioned it to Premier Orlando in a conversation that followed. The President added that he would prefer not to be loaded with the responsibility to arbitrate, but was willing to act as a friendly intermediary in an effort to reach a settlement satisfactory to both sides.

A deputation has arrived in Paris from Fiume to present to the Peace Conference documents in behalf of the claim of Fiume to be united with Italy.

The deputation, composed of Dr. Grossich, President of the National Council; M. Ossoinach, Deputy for Fiume, and Dr. Vio, Mayor of Fiume, called on President Wilson today and outlined the reasons for which, it is claimed, Fiume should be united to Italy. In their arguments they said that the turning over of Fiume to Italy would be in accord with the principle of self-determination proclaimed by President Wilson.

SAY JAPAN STANDS FIRM.

Not Likely to Allow Delegates to Discuss Arrangements with China.

Special t The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—It was asserted here today that Japan would not allow its delegates at Paris to discuss at the Peace Conference the treaties signed at Peking on May 25, 1915, with representatives of the Chinese Government relative to the settlement of the Shantung question and defining Japan's position in South Manc. ria and Mongolia.

The statement was made in an authoritative quarter that the Japanese Government regarded those agreements as essential and attached great importance to the 1915 agreements, all of which have been made public, it is said.

The Japanese view of the importance of these agreements was set forth in a note of instructions given by Baron Kato, then Foreign Minister, to the Japanese Minister to China, Mr. Hioki, on Dec. 3, 1914, which was made public here today. These instructions, after stating the purpose of the proposals, say:

"Believing it absolutely essential, for strengthening Japan's position in Eastern Asia as well as for preservation of the general interests of that region, to secure China's adherence [illegible] going proposals, the Imperial Govern[illegible] by all means within their power. You are, therefore, requested to use your best endeavor in the conduct of the negotiations which are hereby placed in your hands."

SAYS WILSON BARRED TOUR OF WAR RUINS

London Paper Prints a Report That He Feared Hating Foe Too Much.

ASSERTS DANGER TO FRENCH

Germans Are Declared to be Still Undefeated, Though Willing to Pretend.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Morning Post, which all along has been a severe critic of the Wilsonian peace formula and of the attitude which the President has taken at the Peace Conference, publishes today an editorial in which it says:

"President Wilson is leaving France without seeing either the devastated or occupied areas—all except Rheims, which he probably visited because the American troops had been at that end of the line. It is said that when he was invited to examine what the Germans had really done to France, he declined on the ground that it might tempt him to hate the enemy too much.

"He is therefore returning to America with his spiritual calm unruffled, neither too much hating his enemies nor too much loving his friends. It is no doubt an admirable frame of mind for the President of a country which is remote from the German danger and for the leader of a party which includes a very large German vote, but it is perhaps a little inconvenient to his associates—we dare not say Allies—who have to face the future in close proximity to an enemy still strong, still undefeated, and still German.

"In particular, it is embarrassing for France, which has only a land frontier between herself and a nation of twice her population and enormously her superior in the material foundations of power.

"If we speak of victory and defeat in terms of reality and not in terms of rhetoric, can we honestly say that the Allies are as yet victorious and the Germans as yet vanquished? The Germans, of course, are willing to say they are beaten—and it suits them very well for the Allies to believe they are victorious; but unless you are as safe as the President of the United States, it is wise to deal not in rhetoric but in reality. And the reality of the situation is evidently disturbing our good friends the French."

After referring to the destruction wrought in France, as revealed by Finance Minister, Klotz, The Morning Post says:

"If this had been done to the United States instead of only to a friend of America, we believe that even President Wilson might have been induced, if not to hate, at least to take adequate measures that it should not happen again. We are willing to recognize that to love your enemies is a Christian precept, but it becomes less admirable when acted upon at the expense of your friends."

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 12.—A Stockholm dispatch reports that General Mannerheim, head of the Finnish State, arrived there on Wednesday and was received with all the honods belonging to a foreign regent.

Princes William, Charles, and Eugene were present at his landing and conducted the General to a room where the King was waiting for the Finnish guests.

Soon afterward General Mannerheim, in a carriage with the King, drove to the palace, where a luncheon was given. On the way he was heartily welcomed by the population. The Socialists had prepared a demonstration, but it did not succeed.

NEW YORKERS GET HONORS.

In the List of Winners of the Distinguished Service Cross.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The list of officers and men to whom the Distinguished Service Cross is awarded for heroism in France, made public today, contained the names of thirty-eight soldiers, eight of them New York and New Jersey men. The latter and the acts that won the citations, are:

First Lieut. THEODORE S. KENYON, 306th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action in the forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 27, 1918. Lieutenant Kenyon displayed exceptional qualities of leadership and gallantry in action while leading his company against a counterattack of the enemy in superior numbers. Later, although three times wounded, he remained with his command. Home address, William H. Kenyon, 321 West Thirty-second Street, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. LEE C. FLETCHER, (deceased,) 111th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Fismette, France, Aug. 10-13, 1918. When his battalion was attacked by a greatly superior force, Lieutenant Fletcher, intelligence officer, organized a detachment and successfully defended an important position. Later, when our barrage was falling short, he voluntarily carried a message to the artillery for the purpose of correcting the fire. Home address, George Fletcher, father, Wellsboro, N. Y.

Sergeant HOWARD C. LEHY, (deceased,) Company B, 311th Infantry, A. S. No. 1746071. For extraordinary heroism in action near Bois de Grand Fontaine, France, Sept. 26, 1918. After his patrol had disposed of two sniper posts with rifle grenades, Sergeant Lehy held his group in position and covered the withdrawal of his platoon from heavy enfilading machine-gun fire of the enemy. Home address, Mrs. John Lehy, mother, Brown Place, Oakhurst, N. J.

Corporal AARON YAMIN, (deceased,) Company B, 306th Infantry, A. S. No. 1701168. For extraordinary heroism in action in the forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 27, 1918. Corporal Yamin displayed exceptional bravery by volunteering to cut a strip of enemy barbed wire to make an opening for his company, which was, at that time, under heavy fire from artillery and machine guns. In performing this mission this soldier received wounds from which he afterward died. Next of kin, Mrs. Hilda Yamin, mother, 322 East 101st Street, New York, N. Y.

Private (first class) CARL I. JOHNSON, Company B, 306th Infantry, A. S. No. 1721217. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 27, 1918. Private Johnson displayed exceptional bravery in volunteering to cut the enemy's wire and thereby make it possible for his company to advance upon the enemy. In performing this invaluable service he repeatedly exposed himself to heavy fire from enemy machine guns and was severely wounded. Home address, Miss Emily Corcoran, friend, 306 West Seventy-second Street, New York, N. Y.

Private JOHN E. GARTRIGHT, deceased, Company M, 307th Infantry, A. S. No. 1707274. For extraordinary heroism in the Forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 28-29, 1918. Private Gartright distinguished himself time after time carrying in wounded under heavy shell fire until he was finally killed while engaged in this self-sacrificing work. Next of kin, Mrs. Laura Gartright, wife, 31 Sullivan Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Private (first class) IRVING SIROTTA, Medical Detachment, 308th Infantry, A. S. No. 1711214. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville, France, Oct. 2-7, 1918. Private Sirotta was on duty with a detachment of his regiment which was cut off and surrounded by the enemy in the Forest of Argonne. During this period he was without food, but he continued to assist and give first aid to the wounded, exposing himself to heavy shell and machine-gun fire at the risk of his life, until he was completely exhausted. Home address, M. Ginsburg, uncle, 1,227 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Private IRVING L. LINER, Company D, 308th Infantry, A. S. No. [illegible]. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville, France, Oct. 2-7, 1918. Private Liner was a battalion runner, when his battalion was surrounded by the enemy in the Forest of Argonne and cut off from communication with friendly troops. He carried messages with great cheerfulness under conditions of stress and under heavy machine gun and shell fire, at a time when he was exhausted by exposure and hunger, being without food for five days. Home address, Max Liner, father, 573 Schenck Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The other cross winners are:

William L. Gillespie, deceased, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Lieutenant Walter V. Dial, deceased, Huntington, W. Va.; Captain Robert S. Cain, Pittsburgh; Captain Edmond W. Lynch, deceased, Sharon Hill, Penn.; Sergeant Charles A. Robbins, South Manchester, Conn.; Lieutenant George Richard Thompson, Washington; Sergeant Grover C. Hilliard, Dover, Tenn.; Corporal Merl Doty, Rockwell, Iowa; Paul L. Hartley, Brownsville, S. C.; Harvey H. Shively, Spray, N. C.; Lieutenant Arthur E. Birch, deceased, Lawrence, Kan.; Lieutenant Arthur H. Champeny, Oxford, Kan.; Major George W. Blackinton, Flint, Mich.; James T. O'Neil, Alden, Penn.; Alfred Stevenson, deceased, Linwood, Penn.; Sergeant Edwin Macbeth, Pittsburgh; Lieutenant Rowland S. Dodge, deceased, Pawtucket; Lieutenant Hugh D. Bloomfield, deceased, Portland, Ore.; Lieutenant Clinton Jones, San Francisco; Sergeant Samuel A. Lloyd, Lynchburg, Va.; Forrest J. Hulett, Fountain, Mich.; Sergeant Joseph F. Mannion, Baltimore; Sergeant John E. Godfrey, Hampton, Va.; Charles A. Ritzert, deceased, Chicora, Penn.; John Heikinen, Atlantic Mine, Mich.; Frederick W. McClemmens, Crafton, Penn.; Lieutenant Michael J. Hayes, Cleveland; Lieutenant Charles S. Dennison, Denver; Sergeant George W. Beatty, Denver, and Corporal Henry McPherson, Abington, Mass.

Gratification was expressed yesterday at the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, 137th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, over the announcement that Sergeant Benjamin S. Weber of Company [illegible], 307th Infantry, had won the distinguished service cross. Sergeant Weber was brought up in the institution where he spent seven years, during which he received [illegible] military training and was Captain of a company in the institution's cadet corps. Over 300 boys of the institution are in the service.

GERMANS ANGERED OVER FOOD TERMS

Call Allies' Attitude "Inhuman" in Demanding Ships in Return for Supplies.

HOLD ERZBERGER TO BLAME

Frankfort Paper Says Rantzau Flatly Refused French Financial Demands.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 12.—After the sinking of millions of tons of shipping and foodstuffs during the war, thus contributing to the present world shortage, the fact that Germany is to be provided with $30,000,000 worth of foodstuffs in exchange for tonnage has only brought forth expressions of ingratitude and outbursts of stormy indignation at the Allies' "inhuman attitude."

For months the world at large has been informed that only a supply of food could save Germany from Bolshevism and internal collapse, thus hoping to evoke sympathy, but obviously expecting that no quid pro quo would be demanded. Erzberger, who accepted the terms with the explanation that they might have been much worse, has come in for a hot fire of abuse from the Right and Left press.

Even the Moderate Democratic Frankfurter Zeitung demands to know by what right he disposed of the German mercantile fleet, who authorized him to do so, who is responsible, and from whom he received his instructions. This the German people must know, says the paper, and it can no longer be tolerated that these "inefficient" persons remain in office to lead Germany to still further ruin. The question must be brought up, it declares, at the National Assembly.

"Germany needs foodstuffs," the Zeitung proceeds, "and not less raw material for industries in order to start the motor of economic life and prevent idleness and Bolshevism. * * * Negotiations for the latter have only begun. * * * We foresee much worse stress for the future which the Entente military conditions will impose on us."

The article asserts, like many previous ones, that Germany laid down her arms only on the basis of President Wilson's principles, and can demand that they be carried out even if the German people fatalistically contemplate Erzberger in Foch's salon dining car.

"It was hoped," the Zeitung says, "that a new tone would be adopted in the January armistice negotiations, when von Brockdorff-Rantzau angrily threw the unheard-of demands of the French financial commission on the table, refusing to accept them. We breathed freely, because finally, after three months of humiliation, our foreign policy again showed the strength of a nation of 70,000,000 of people. But this is changed."

The Zeitung, like other papers, discusses the food question in detail. It remarks that the fats to be provided amount to just one kilo per head for the whole population, and says that about 270,000 tons of wheat, oatmeal, and rice are also to be given. All this must be paid for in gold or exported goods, as the granting of credits or the acceptance of German money was refused, although Austrian kroner notes were accepted.

This paper says that for exorbitant prices impossible conditions have been exacted for the delivery of mixed foodstuffs only suitable for extras for sick children and mothers, but in no way relieving the situation generally.

"And to attain this," it goes on, "we deliver up our whole merchant fleet. The German ships will sail under the American and allied flags and the Allies can dispose of the crews."

In short, says the Zeitung, the Entente disposes of 2,500,000 tons of shipping for 270,000 tons of foodstuffs. It asks what will be demanded Feb. 17, when the armistice period ends.

The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette learns that the food ships are finally about to leave Hamburg, including nine of the Hamburg-American Line and two of the German Levant Line. This is the beginning of the end of German overseas independence, it asserts, and "even the blind must have their eyes open now."

MORE GREEKS FOR THRACE.

Conference's Authorization for Sending of Troops Significant.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Greece has been authorized by the Peace Conference to send additional troops into Thrace, the Smyrna district, and adjacent territory along the coast. It is understood that these troops and those which Italy is about to send to the Asia Minor districts of Adalia and Konieh, will be considered allied troops, subject to withdrawal by the conference.

This move is construed by observers here as the first step toward making Italy and Greece the mandatory powers for the territory thus occupied.

the league commission, it would seem that the action was not final.

At what hour the Havas statement was issued does not appear, but the indications are that it was put out during the morning, while an Associated Press dispatch filed in Paris at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon stated that up to the time the Society of Nations' commission took a recess, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the paragraph in the commission's plan relating to an international military force had not been reached.

GERMAN ARMY FALLS TO 550,000 THIS WEEK

British Do Not Consider Possibility of New Military Effort Dangerous.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The demobilization of Germany's old army is almost completed, according to authoritative information here. After Saturday, when the 1916 and 1917 classes will be disbanded, the army will consist of about 100,000 men on the eastern front, and the 1918 and 1919 classes, numbering about 450,000 men, which will be kept as a standing army.

Efforts by the German authorities to recruit volunteers for the army have been unproductive, but the official view here is that they may be more successful later. Men who have been in the army for four years do not have a great desire to continue in the fighting force, but it is expected that they will find civil life in Germany less attractive than the army, and, therefore, probably will be willing to enlist later.

Recruiting is also hindered by the fact that nearly every hamlet is trying to raise its own defense force. Many former soldiers are joining the local forces and are staying at home to protect their communities rather than join the national forces.

The German force on the eastern frontier is divided into two armies. The northern headquarters is at Bromberg and is commanded by General von Quast. The southern force, under Field Marshal von Woyrsch, is at Sagan.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg has not yet arrived at Kolberg, the Germain main headquarters in the east, although preparations have been made to receive him there.

The British General Staff does not view as dangerous the possibility of Germany making a military effort, but is taking full cognizance of the situation which the staff believes exists. It is pointed out that the German General Staff is still in existence, and that doubtless much artillery is still in hand. The Germans, it is believed, could get plenty of men quickly if necessary, but the problem of stores would forestall any quick ambitious attempt to renew the fighting.

Reds Must Withdraw Their Forces and Stop All Offensive Military Measures.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The Lettish Republic, in accepting the invitation of the Peace Conference to attend a conference at Princes' Islands, states that as a proviso to its acceptance the Russian Soviet Government must withdraw its forces from Letvia and cease all offensive military measures.

The Esthonian Government, in its acceptance, states that it does not feel that it is a part of the Russian Soviet Republic, but will participate because it feels that the conference will be of importance to the future of Esthonia and its relations with Russia.

The text of the Lettish reply reads:

"On Jan. 22 the great Allied Powers assembled at the Peace Conference invited representatives of 'every organized group that is now exercising or attempting to exercise political authority or military control anywhere in Siberia, or within the boundaries of European Russia as they stood before the war just concluded, except in Finland,' to go to Princes' Islands, Feb. 15, 1919, to confer with the representatives of the great Allied Powers.

"Although, from a political point of view, the Provisional Government of Letvia is in a situation exactly similar to that of Poland and Finland, it finds itself, nevertheless, invited, according to an official declaration made by the Secretary General of the Peace Conference on Feb. 10, 1919. In the name of the Provisional Lettish Government, the Lettish delegation has the honor to bring to the attention of the Peace Conference of Paris the following declaration:

"'The Provisional Lettish Government will send three delegates to Princes' Islands, provided that all armed forces sent or directed by Russia against the Lettish State be withdrawn from Letvia and that all offensive military action cease.

"'Letvia announces its separation from Russia and announced, in January, 1919, at the Constituent Assembly of Russia the constitution of an independent and sovereign Lettish State.

"'The Lettish delegation sent to the Peace Conference will participate in the conference at Prinkipo in order to:

"'I—Make peace with Russia, this peace to be recognized by the great Allied Powers.

"'II—Regulate, under the auspices of the great Allied Powers, the political and economic affairs as they result from the separation of Letvia and Russia.

"'III—Make treaties in and take the necessary steps toward the establishment of States.

"'(Signed) J. TSCHISTE.'"

The Esthonian reply was as follows:

"On Jan. 22 the Peace Conference adopted a resolution by which the Governments established within the bounds of what was Russia before the war were asked to meet the representatives of the Allied Powers at Princes' Islands Feb. 15. The resolution closed with a request for a reply to this invitation from the interested parties.

"Therefore, the Esthonian delegation considers it a duty to bring to the attention of the Peace Conference, in the name of the Esthonian Government, the following:

"The Esthonian people, by the intermediary of its National Council, which springs from universal suffrage, determined to separate from Russia, and thereupon proclaimed Esthonia an independent republic. The Government has been provisionally recognized by the English, French, and Italian Governments. Not only does the Esthonian Government exert its authority independent of any Russian Government, but for three months after having organized a regular army, it has been at war with the Russian Soviet Communist Republic.

"Therefore, we in nowise consider ourselves a part of Russia, although we accept the invitation of the Allied Powers and of the United States to go to Princes' Islands. We believe that the participation of the representatives of Esthonia and of the Communist Republic of Russian Soviets of importance to the future relations between Russia and the Esthonian Republic.'"

RED CROSS MAY BAR FOE.

International Body Discusses Excluding Germany.

GENEVA, Wednesday, Feb. 12.—The movement to exclude the Central Powers from the International Red Cross was debated at a meeting of that organization held here today. President Ador of Switzerland was Chairman of the meeting, which was attended by delegations from allied countries which preferred charges of violations of Red Cross privileges by Germany.

IRISH DELEGATE ARRIVES IN PARIS

SENDS LETTER TO WILSON

Fails to Give His Own Address to Which a Reply Might Be Forwarded.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Professor Edward de Valera, the escaped Sinn Fein leader, has not yet arrived in Paris, but the so-called Irish Republic has succeeded in sending one of its emissaries here. His name is Sean O'Kelly, and to his name he adds the letters M. P.

O'Kelly yesterday addressed to President Wilson at the Villa Murat a letter in which he states:

"I have been appointed by the provisional Government of the Irish Republic to be their representative in Paris, and I am directed to request what recognition is to be granted by the Peace Conference and the League of Nations to the Government of the Irish Republic, now established.

O'Kelly at the same time states that he has been nominated by the Lord Mayor and Municipal Council of the City of Dublin "to wait on your Excellency [meaning President Wilson] if your Excellency so pleases, and to inquire if a certain correspondence addressed to you by the Town Clerk of Dublin in January last has reached your Excellency."

The correspondence to which O'Kelly refers is the proposal that the freedom of the City of Dublin should be conferred on the President.

O'Kelly goes on to ask for a personal interview "in which I can inform your Excellency officially of the claims of my Government to have the case of Ireland stated before the Peace Conference and the League of Nations."

The "delegate" is stopping "with friends in Paris," and he gives no address in his letter to the President, so that it is a question how President Wilson could reach him if he decided to reply at once. The question is asked whether, under the circumstances, O'Kelly counted on receiving a reply. It is also pointed out that, by signing himself Sean O'Kelly, M. P., he has not followed the precedent established by the majority of the Sinn Feiners returned at the recent general elections, who described themselves as M. P. I. R., i. e., Member of Parliament of the Irish Republic.

Inquiries in American quarters indicated that O'Kelly's letter had so far not created the sensation which the delegate of the Irish Republic may have considered appropriate to his advent in Paris. President Wilson's correspondence is necessarily very extensive, and O'Kelly's letter up to this afternoon does not appear to have come up for consideration. Possibly it may be carried on board President Wilson's ship amid great bundles of other letters when he sails for the United States, and in that case before the President's answer can reach O'Kelly at the unnamed address the said O'Kelly may be cooling his heels for a long time.

SOCIALISTS SENDING ENVOYS.

Henderson, Branting, and Others Going to Paris Conference.

BERNE, Feb. 13.—The peace delegation of the International Socialist Conference, consisting of Hjalmar Branting, Arthur Henderson, Camille Huysmans, Pierre Renaudel, and M. Longuet, will leave for Paris shortly to get in contact with the leading statesmen at the Peace Coonference.

It is announced that a second Socialist conference will probably be held in Berne early in the Summer.

Hjalmar Branting is the Swedish Socialost leader, Arthur Henderson is a British labor leader, and Camille Huysmans is a Belgian Socialist. MM. Renaudel and Longuet are French Socialists.

bounds of possibility that the occupation figures, as determined upon in the next few days, may reveal the possibility of demobilization at an even faster rate than now prevails.

Berlin Reports Allies' Demand.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A German wireless communication, received tonight, says:

"The Superior Council of the Allies demanded from the German armistice administration at Spa on Feb. 10 a declaration of all stocks of war materials available in Germany, under construction, including guns, airplanes and motors.

"The demand was based on the attitude of the German Army administration in connection with the Polish question and the necessity of settling conditions for an extension of the armistice."

WILSON BACKED CLEMENCEAU.

Urged All Precautions—Ready to Use Army Again Against Germany.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—It is reported that M. Clemenceau made an impressive speech at yesterday's sitting of the Supreme War Council, showing the necessity of taking all desirable precautions against Germany. At the afternoon sitting President Wilson is declared to have adopted the same viewpoint, affirming that all the Allies were agreed on that point and that divergencies which cropped up during previous discussions bore solely on the most suitable methods of obtaining the necessary guarantees.

President Wilson, according to the report, is understood to have declared in conversation that a resumption of hostilities was a grave eventuality to which he would agree only on the most absolutely essential considerations, and not for any secondary motive.

The report states that, in Mr. Wilson's opinion, the non-execution of terms of the armistice by Germany would be an incident of such a nature as to justify the resumption of war, and it is stated that he would not hesitate in that case to order the American Army to take up arms again.

A Havas report says that the Supreme War Council has decided that the armistice with Germany will be renewed on Feb. 17 for a very brief period, with the Allies reserving the right to suspend it at any time in the event of Germany's failure to carry out new clauses or those which have hitherto not been executed.

During the brief period of the renewed armistice, a special commission will definitely draft the conditions of an armistice which will last till the signature of the peace preliminaries. These conditions, which the Supreme War Council is reported to have approved in a rough form yesterday afternoon, have in view, it is said, the demobilization of the German Army and the disarmament of the enemy under the supervision of the Allies. These terms, it is understood, will be communicated to Germany so that the National Assembly at Weimar will have time to deliberate upon them until the provisional armistice expires.

Marshal Foch, who leaves for Treves today, was to interview Premier Clemenceau at 8 o'clock this morning and begin drafting the armistice provisions which the Supreme War Council was to examine this afternoon.

BLUNT REQUEST TO GERMANY.

Show Good Faith by Practice, It Said, if You Want Terms.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Marshals Foch and Haig, General Pershing, General Diaz, General Sackville West, and Admiral Hope gave their views before the Supreme War Council today when the discussion of the question of the prolongation of the armistice was continued.

A request for specific information has been addressed to the German Government, in which the allied and associated Governments say in effect:

"You profess good faith but your practice does not agree with your professions. Show us that you are disarming by fully complying with the terms already imposed upon you and we are ready to give you benefit of the doubt. Up to the present, however, you appear to have tried to deceive us in the matter of submarines, transport, and merchant ships. Convince us of your good faith by your acts and then we will consider whether we cannot come to terms with you on the general ground of the abolition of conscription and the limitation of armaments."

ITALY TO DEMOLISH EX-KAISER'S EMBASSY

Palazzo Caffarelli to be Torn Down for Excavation of Antiquities on the Site.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 12.—At last the Capitoline Hill is freed from German "domination." The Italian tricolor waves above the Palazzo Caffarelli, the former German embassy to the Quirinal, which now belongs to the Italian Government.

It was a coincidence that both the Central Empires succeeded in establishing their embassies on two historic spots on the Capitoline Hill, the centre of Latin civilization and greatness. The Austrian embassy was in the Palazzo Venezia, the property of the Venetian Republic in the Middle Ages.

Ever since the beginning of the war, the Italian people had claimed the right to annex these two monuments, it being deemed a profanation that they should belong to the enemy. At last this wish has been satisfied, the Government giving the Swiss Embassy, which is looking after German interests in Italy time to transport all the furniture and art objects.

More than 2,000 years ago, in the identical spot where now the Palazzo Caffarelli stands, stood the Temple of Jupiter, on the Capitoline Hill, in the centre of Rome. Senator Rodolfo Lanciani, the renowned archaeologist and the greatest authority on the topography of Rome, is going to initiate wonderful excavations for the treasures buried under the palace. He has already visited the palace to plan the work.

The temple stood on a tremendous cliff 110 feet above the underlying road. The building was originally erected 500 years before Christ, and was reconstructed five times, the last time in Pentelican marble, which was covered with inscriptions from all countries of the world expressing gratitude to the Romans for their help.

The pillars of part of the temple, with their priceless treasures, must have rolled down the cliff and been buried there. The best part of its marble ornaments were used for buildings, churches, and palaces in Rome.

Germany bought the Palazzo Caffarelli, built on this site, and also by slow degrees all nearby land and houses on the Capitoline Hill. All this, however, has been taken over by the Italian Government, which has given the order for the demolition of the palace to enable workmen to start immediately on the excavations.

GERMAN SHIPS READY TO HELP CARRY TROOPS

About 750,000 Tons of Vessels to be Turned Over to Allied Transport Council.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—About 750,000 tons, deadweight, of German shipping have been named for the use of the allied maritime and transport council in repatriating troops and carrying food, according to official announcement tonight. The statement reads:

"The Maritime Transport Council met Feb. 1, Feb. 4, and Feb. 11. Those present were MM. Clementel and Boisson for France, Signor Crespi for Italy, George Rublee for the United States, and J. A. Salter for Great Britain.

"Important decisions were made as to the allocation for management and use of Austrian and German tonnage. Passenger vessels will be mainly employed in the repatriation of troops and cargo vessels for the carriage of food to different ports in Europe, including liberated areas and enemy countries. The vessels are to be divided for the purposes of management among the associated Governments.

"These arrangements were made on the understanding that the ultimate disposition of the vessels by the terms of peace would in no way be prejudiced, and in order to make this a fact they are being administered in the meantime in trust for the associated Governments as a whole. They will fly the flag of the Allied Maritime Transport Service as well as the national flag of the country undertaking their management.

"The council appointed delegates to proceed to Spa, together with representatives of the food departments and the naval authorities of the several Governments, to meet the representatives of the German Government Feb. 16 and arrange with regard to the delivery of vessels which the German Government was bound to hand over under the armistice of Jan. 16 and the Treves agreement of Jan. 17.

"The preparation of a considerable number of vessels has been proceeding, and about 750,000 tons, deadweight tonnage, has been named by the German Government and are now ready to sail. Meantime the associated Governments are making an examination on the spot of other German vessels in German ports."

RAPID PROGRESS ON LABOR PROGRAM

Peace Conference Commission Reaches Article XVII. of Draft Presented by British.

BIG OBSTACLE IS PASSED

Proposals to be Presented to Full Conference Cover a Very Wide Range.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The Peace Conference Commission on International Labor Legislation examined today the articles dealing with the procedure of the proposed international conference body. In this process it reached Article XVII. of the draft.

The commission has decided to issue a journal dealing with the problems of international industry and employment. It was agreed also to appoint an international staff, the duties of which would include distribution of information on all subjects relating to international conditions of industrial life and employment.

The agreement yesterday by the commission to accept Article IV. of the British draft of labor measures marked the passing over safely of an obstacle which labor leaders expected would provoke a sharp contest, because it was the most radical of the projects that organised labor has been seeking to graft on the constitution of the Society of Nations. This article provides that at the proposed International Labor Conference representatives of the Governments, the employers, and working people shall be entitled to speak and vote independently without regard to the views, expressed by the other representatives of their nation, and to have power to draw up conventions, binding on the nations represented.

The rapid progress made upon the rest of the British draft, into which will be incorporated some features of the French labor plan, appears to warrant the belief that the essential aims of the delegates of both nations will be accepted in their entirety by the commission.

The British draft covers a wide field, including these provisions:

Uniformity of the rights of workmen employed abroad, their protection against loss when in a foreign country through the lapse of State insurance against sickness, old age, accidents, unemployment, and similar causes.

Prevention of unemployment through the adoption by the different Governments of a policy of distribution of orders for public works so as to keep the demand for labor at an approximately uniform level.

Relief of the unemployed through a system of registration and co-operation between employers in different lines of industry to meet fluctuating labor demands.

Opportunities to unemployed young workers for continuance of their education at established centres.

A system of inspection of factories and workshops to insure the execution of labor laws.

Protection of children, youths, and women, with educational opportunities for the children and regulation of night work for youths.

Limitation of the working shift for young persons to half that of adults, with no overtime or night work.

Recognition of the rights of workingmen to combine and maintain peaceful picketing.

Recognition of the right of workingmen to combine politically, and of trades unions to participate in politics.

Fixing of working hours by laws in each State, with an international standard as the minimum.

Regulation of home work in small workshops, or sweatshops, to be attended to by each State, in view of the difficulty of settling this problem by international legislation.

Drafting of an international code regulating labor conditions in the mercantile marine under every flag; this to be worked out by a special maritime commission of the League of Nations, which shall be in continuous session to take up new points.

It seems to be agreed that the diverse wage and money standards of the East and the West would make the definite fixing of conditions as to these matters impossible.

As to the right of workingmen to combine, the British view is that this should be insisted upon by the working classes, although it is now denied by Japan.

The measures of hygiene, insurance, and the regulation of the work of children, it is also contended, ought to apply to native Asiatic labor.

The British plan also contemplates the creation of a permanent international commission to fix minimum wages, according to conditions in various regions, and to make a special study of native labor problems.

It is proposed to include in the League of Nations plan the constitution of an international parliament, composed of delegates from the existing national parliaments, to suggest labor legislation to the Society of Nations.

Abolition of military training in schools and international exchange of university students is also proposed.

The French proposals include the recruiting of labor through national employment bureaus, prohibition of work by children under 14 years of age, prohibition of night work by women, and enforcement of a maximum eight-hour working day in factories where furnaces are always lighted, together with laws regulating hygiene and the safety of the workers.

definable astuteness and tenacious perseverance without which even in revolutionary times no harnessmaker can become President.

"The German labor movement has created no powerful individualities, but a vigorous, bright, critical spirit. On such ground as Ebert's they have a ground that lies midway between the overheated and the arctic regions.

"Ebert will now need a chef de cuisine, a master of ceremonies and a retinue, and will live at the Bellevue or some other Berlin palace, because we cannot afford that the German Republic in a plebeian manner shall discard all conventional practices. But even in these absolutely necessary new surroundings he will remain a son of the people.

"Least of all have the Monarchists cause to say that Ebert's personality is anything but royal, because they were always ready and their principles commanded them to pay homage to the most insignificant, incompetent, foolish personage, only because by a mere stupid accident of birth he grew up in a princely palace."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung treats Ebert comparatively fairly in an article headed "The End of the Revolution." The Junker organ emphasizes the view point that with Ebert's election as President, revolutionists have ceased to exist and the law now only knows common criminals.

"The great events of the last two days," it says, "have brought up nearer the restoration of law and order and we expect of Ebert's Government that it will show itself strong enough to draw the consequences from the new situation. Surely Ebert's was not a light task during the revolution nor have the revolutionaries made it easy for him and we suspect that his remembrance of Nov. 9 is not the most pleasant. With the exception of a few who made lucre out of the revolution the whole German people will greet with satisfaction the end of a period which tested all our patience to an intolerable degree.

"The new Government has the authorization and moral backing of the whole German people. Everything now depends on the use it makes of these."

"The Centrist organs also welcome Ebert with cordiality."

Toward midnight last night Spartacides again appeared in the newspaper district and attacked the guards in the Vorwärts, Tageblatt, Tägliche, Rundschau, and Ullstein buildings, shooting and throwing hand grenades. Government troops drove them from the housetops, employing searchlights.

GERMANS SUSPEND ATTACKS ON POLES

Attempts by Bolsheviki to Pass Through Lines Disguised as Polish Officers Fail.

ZURICH, Feb. 13, (Havas.)—The German offensive against the Poles has been suspended, according to Berlin newspapers.

[Early this week it was reported from Paris that Marshal Foch had ordered the Poles and Germans to cease hostilities.]

WARSAW, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—Ignace Jan Paderewski is alarmed over the German situation in Posen. He said to The Associated Press today: "The Germans are counting upon the United States and foreign press to spread the impression that the Poles are incapable of self-government."

Refugees bringing in Russian rubles find that the value of their money is very low, the exchange rate having dropped 30 per cent.

Bolshevist forces have occupied Zelva, between Bialystok and Brest-Litovsk. They have attempted to advance through the Polish lines, using uniforms of Polish officers, but those who tried this ruse failed, and 100 have been brought to Warsaw in motor trucks. The Bolshevist forces are estimated to number between two and twenty divisions, but it is believed that the actual figures will show that the latter estimate is the more correct.

General Bartelmy is attempting to arrange an armistice between the Ukranians and Poles, which the former are willing to negotiate, provided the Drohobycz oil fields are given to them, pending decision by the Peace Conference. The American Red Cross has sent a carload of condensed milk to Lemburg.

ASK TROOPS TO GUARD FOOD.

Germans Held Responsible for Safety of Shipments Through Danzig.

BERLIN, Feb. 11, (Associated Press.)—The railroad administration at Danzig has notified the Government that the military authorities there are not in a position to furnish the necessary number of troops to protect the first three Polish relief ships which are due at Danzig early next week, according to the Kreuz Zeitung.

The commander is said to have requested that American troops be sent there, but this has been refused, because the American Commission insists that the German Government be responsible for the protection of food shipments and that Germany be obligated to make good any losses.

The situation is complicated by the failure of French or American troops to arrive, which will make necessary the policing of the entire railway line from Danzig to the Polish frontier. The Danzig railway administration, therefore, has sent an urgent call to Berlin for the prompt dispatch of an adequate number of troops.

CANNOT ALTER PEACE TREATY.

Must Be Accepted or Rejected, Bonar Law Indicates.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—George Lambert asked in the House of Commons whether Parliament would have the power to alter the provisions of the peace treaty.

Andrew Bonar Law, the Government spokesman, replied that it was quite impossible that about twenty Parliaments should discuss the details of the treaty. He added that as far as Great Britain was concerned the treaty would not be satisfactory until Parliament had expressed an opinion on it.

Mr. Bonar Law's reply indicated that the treaty would have to be ratified or rejected en bloc.

by M. Trumbitch during a conversation which he had with him last week, and he had simply mentioned it to Premier Orlando in a conversation that followed. The President added that he would prefer not to be loaded with the responsibility to arbitrate, but was willing to act as a friendly intermediary in an effort to reach a settlement satisfactory to both sides.

A deputation has arrived in Paris from Fiume to present to the Peace Conference documents in behalf of the claim of Fiume to be united with Italy. The deputation, composed of Dr. Grossich, President of the National Council; M. Ossoinach, Deputy for Fiume, and Dr. Vio, Mayor of Fiume, called on President Wilson today and outlined the reasons for which, it is claimed, Fiume should be united to Italy. In their arguments they said that the turning over of Fiume to Italy would be in accord with the principle of self-determination proclaimed by President Wilson.

SAY JAPAN STANDS FIRM.

Not Likely to Allow Delegates to Discuss Arrangements with China.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—It was asserted here today that Japan would not allow its delegates at Paris to discuss at the Peace Conference the treaties signed at Peking on May 25, 1915, with representatives of the Chinese Government relative to the settlement of the Shantung question and defining Japan's position in South Manchuria and Mongolia.

The statement was made in an authoritative quarter that the Japanese Government regarded those agreements as essential and attached great importance to the 1915 agreements, all of which have been made public, it is said.

The Japanese view of the importance of these agreements was set forth in a note of instructions given by Baron Kato, then Foreign Minister, to the Japanese Minister to China, Mr. Hioki, on Dec. 3, 1914, which was made public here today. These instructions, after stating the purpose of the proposals, say:

"Believing it absolutely essential, for strengthening Japan's position in Eastern Asia as well as for preservation of the general interests of that region, to secure [illegible] going proposals, the Imperial Government [illegible] by all means within their power. You are, therefore, requested to use your best endeavor in the conduct of the negotiations which are hereby placed in your hands."

SAYS WILSON BARRED TOUR OF WAR RUINS

London Paper Prints a Report That He Feared Hating Foe Too Much.

ASSERTS DANGER TO FRENCH

Germans Are Declared to be Still Undefeated, Though Willing to Pretend.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Morning Post, which all along has been a severe critic of the Wilsonian peace formula and of the attitude which the President has taken at the Peace Conference, publishes today an editorial in which it says:

"President Wilson is leaving France without seeing either the devastated or occupied areas—all except Rheims, which he probably visited because the American troops had been at that end of the line. It is said that when he was invited to examine what the Germans had really done to France, he declined on the ground that it might tempt him to hate the enemy too much.

"He is therefore returning to America with his spiritual calm unruffled, neither too much hating his enemies nor too much loving his friends. It is no doubt an admirable frame of mind for the President of a country which is remote from the German danger and for the leader of a party which includes a very large German vote, but it is perhaps a little inconvenient to his associates—we dare not say Allies—who have to face the future in close proximity to an enemy still strong, still undefeated, and still German.

"In particular, it is embarrassing for France, which has only a land frontier between herself and a nation of twice her population and enormously her superior in the material foundations of power.

"If we speak of victory and defeat in terms of reality and not in terms of rhetoric, can we honestly say that the Allies are as yet victorious and the Germans as yet vanquished? The Germans, of course, are willing to say they are beaten—and it suits them very well for the Allies to believe they are victorious, but unless you are as safe as the President of the United States, it is wise to deal not in rhetoric but in reality. And the reality of the situation is evidently disturbing our good friends the French."

After referring to the destruction wrought in France, as revealed by Finance Minister Klotz, The Morning Post says:

"If this had been done to the United States instead of only to a friend of America, we believe that even President Wilson might have been induced, if not to hate, at least to take adequate measures that it should not happen again. We are willing to recognize that to love your enemies is a Christian precept, but it becomes less admirable when acted upon at the expense of your friends."

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 12.—A Stockholm dispatch reports that General Mannerheim, head of the Finnish State, arrived there on Wednesday and was received with all the honors belonging to a foreign regent.

Princes William, Charles, and Eugene were present at his landing and conducted the General to a room where the King was waiting for the Finnish guests.

Soon afterward General Mannerheim, in a carriage with the King, drove to the palace, where a luncheon was given. On the way he was heartily welcomed by the population. The Socialists had prepared a demonstration, but it did not succeed.

NEW YORKERS GET HONORS.

In the List of Winners of the Distinguished Service Cross.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The list of officers and men to whom the Distinguished Service Cross is awarded for heroism in France, made public today, contained the names of thirty-eight soldiers, eight of them New York and New Jersey men. The latter, and the acts that won the citations, are:

First Lieut. THEODORE S. KENYON, 308th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action in the forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 27, 1918. Lieutenant Kenyon displayed exceptional qualities of leadership and gallantry in action while leading his company against a counterattack of the enemy in superior numbers. Later, although three times wounded, he remained with his command. Home address, William H. Kenyon, 321 West Thirty-second Street, New York, N. Y.

First Lieut. LEE C. FLETCHER (deceased), 111th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Fismette, France, Aug. 10-13, 1918. When his battalion was attacked by a greatly superior force, Lieutenant Fletcher, intelligence officer, organized a detachment and successfully defended an important position. Later, when our barrage was falling short, he voluntarily carried a message to the artillery for the purpose of correcting the fire. Home address, George Fletcher, father, Wellsboro, N. Y.

Sergeant HOWARD C. LAHY, (deceased,) Company B, 311th Infantry, A. S. No. 1,[illegible]. For extraordinary heroism in action near Bois de Grand Fontaine, France, Sept. 26, 1918. After his patrol had disposed of two sniper posts with rifle grenades, Sergeant Lahy held his group in position and covered the withdrawal of his platoon from heavy enfilading machine-gun fire of the enemy. Home address, Mrs. John Lahy, mother, Brown Place, [illegible], N. J.

Corporal AARON YAMIN, (deceased,) Company B, 306th Infantry, A. S. No. [illegible]. For extraordinary heroism in action in the forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 27, 1918. Corporal Yamin displayed exceptional bravery by volunteering to cut a strip of enemy barbed wire to make an opening for his company, which was, at that time, under heavy fire from artillery and machine guns. In performing this mission this soldier received wounds from which he afterward died. Next of kin, Mrs. Hilda Yamin, mother, 222 East [illegible] Street, New York, N. Y.

Private (first class) CARL I. JOHNSON, Company B, 306th Infantry, A. S. No. 1,21217. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 27, 1918. Private Johnson displayed exceptional bravery in volunteering to cut the enemy's wire and thereby making it possible for his company to advance upon the enemy. In performing this invaluable service he repeatedly exposed himself to heavy fire from enemy machine guns and was severely wounded. Home address, Miss Emily Corcoran, friend, 306 West Seventy-second Street, New York, N. Y.

Private JOHN E. GARTRIGHT, deceased, Company M, 307th Infantry, A. S. No. 1,07274. For extraordinary heroism in the Forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 28-29, 1918. Private Gartright distinguished himself time after time carrying messages under heavy shell fire until he was finally killed while engaged in this self-sacrificing work. Next of kin, Mrs. [illegible] Gartright, wife, 31 Sullivan Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Private (first class) IRVING SIROTTA, Medical Detachment, 308th Infantry, A. S. No. 1,711,214. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville, France, Oct. 2-7, 1918. Private Sirotta was on duty with a detachment of his regiment which was cut off and surrounded by the enemy in the Forest of Argonne. During this period he was without food, but he continued to assist and give first aid to the wounded, exposing himself to heavy shell and machine-gun fire at the risk of his life, until he was completely exhausted. Home address, M. Ginsburg, uncle, [illegible] Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Private IRVING LINER, Company D, 308th Infantry, A. S. No. 1,708,384. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville, France, Oct. 2-7, 1918. Private Liner was a battalion runner when his battalion was surrounded by the enemy in the forest of Argonne and cut off from communication with friendly troops. He carried messages with great cheerfulness under conditions of stress and under heavy machine-gun and shell fire, at a time when he was exhausted by exposure and hunger, being without food for five days. Home address, Max Liner, father, 873 Schenck Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The other cross winners are:

William L. Gillespie, deceased, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Lieutenant Walter V. Dial, deceased, Huntington, [illegible]; Captain Robert S. Cain, Pittsburgh; Captain Leland W. Lynch, deceased, Sharon Hill, Penn.; Sergeant Charles A. Edmund, South Manchester, Conn.; Lieutenant George Richard Thompson, Washington; Sergeant Grover C. Hilliard, Dover, Tenn.; Corporal Meri Doty, Rockwell, Iowa; [illegible], Brownsville, S. C.; Harvey H. Shively, Spray, N. C.; Lieutenant Arthur H. Birch, deceased, Lawrence, Kan.; Lieutenant Arthur H. Champeny, Oxford, Kan.; Major George W. Blackinton, Flint, Mich.; James T. O'Neill, Aiden, Penn.; Alfred Stevenson, deceased, Linwood, Penn.; Sergeant Edwin Macbeth, Pittsburgh; Lieutenant Rowland S. Dodge, deceased, Pawtucket; Lieutenant Hugh D. Bloomfield, deceased, Portland, Ore.; Lieutenant Clinton Jones, San Francisco; Sergeant Samuel A. Boyd, Lynchburg, Va.; Forrest J. Hulett, Fountain, Mich.; Sergeant Joseph F. Mannion, Baltimore; Sergeant John E. Godfrey, Hampton, Va.; Charles A. [illegible], deceased, [illegible], Penn.; [illegible] Heikinen, Atlantic, Mich.; Frederick W. McClemmens, [illegible], Penn.; Lieutenant Michael J. Hayes, Cleveland; Lieutenant Charles S. Pennison, Denver; Sergeant George W. Beatty, Denver, and Corporal Henry McPherson, Abington, Mass.

Gratification was expressed yesterday at the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, 137th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, over the announcement that Sergeant Benjamin S. Weber of Company D, 307th Infantry, had won the distinguished service cross. Sergeant Weber was brought up in the institution where he spent seven years, during which he received a military training and was Captain of a company in the institution's cadet corps. Over 300 boys of the institution are in the service.

Call Allies' Attitude "Inhuman" in Demanding Ships in Return for Supplies.

HOLD ERZBERGER TO BLAME

Frankfort Paper Says Rantzau Flatly Refused French Financial Demands.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 12.—After the sinking of millions of tons of shipping and foodstuffs during the war, thus contributing to the present world shortage, the fact that Germany is to be provided with $30,000,000 worth of foodstuffs in exchange for tonnage has only brought forth expressions of ingratitude and outbursts of stormy indignation at the Allies' "inhuman attitude."

For months the world at large has been informed that only a supply of food could save Germany from Bolshevism and internal collapse, thus hoping to evoke sympathy, but obviously expecting that no quid pro quo would be demanded. Erzberger, who accepted the terms with the explanation that they might have been much worse, has come in for a hot fire of abuse from the Right and Left press.

Even the Moderate Democratic Frankfurter Zeitung demands to know by what right he disposed of the German mercantile fleet, who authorized him to do so, who is responsible, and from whom he received his instructions. This the German people must know, says the paper, and it can no longer be tolerated that these "inefficient" persons remain in office to lead Germany to still further ruin. The question must be brought up, it declares, at the National Assembly.

"Germany needs foodstuffs," the Zeitung proceeds, "and not less raw material for industries in order to start the motor of economic life and prevent idleness and Bolshevism. * * * Negotiations for the latter have only begun. * * * We foresee much worse stress for the future which the Entente military conditions will impose on us."

The article asserts, like many previous ones, that Germany laid down her arms only on the basis of President Wilson's principles, and can demand that they be carried out even if the German people fatalistically contemplate Erzberger in Foch's salon dining car.

"It was hoped," the Zeitung says, "that a new tone would be adopted in the January armistice negotiations, when von Brockdorff-Rantzau angrily threw the unheard-of demands of the French financial commission on the table, refusing to accept them. We breathed freely, because finally, after three months of humiliation, our foreign policy again showed the strength of a nation of 70,000,000 of people. But this is changed."

The Zeitung, like other papers, discusses the food question in detail. It remarks that the fats to be provided amount to just one kilo per head for the whole population, and says that about 270,000 tons of wheat, oatmeal and rice are also to be given. All this must be paid for in gold or exported goods, as the granting of credits or the acceptance of German money was refused, although Austrian kroner notes were accepted.

This paper says that for exorbitant prices impossible conditions have been exacted for the delivery of mixed foodstuffs only suitable for extras for sick children and mothers, but in no way relieving the situation generally.

"And to attain this," it goes on, "we deliver up our whole merchant fleet. The German ships will sail under the American and allied flags and the Allies can dispose of the crews."

In short, says the Zeitung, the Entente disposes of 2,500,000 tons of shipping for 270,000 tons of foodstuffs. It asks what will be demanded Feb. 17, when the armistice period ends.

The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette learns that the food ships are finally about to leave Hamburg, including nine of the Hamburg-American Line and two of the German Levant Line. This is the beginning of the end of German overseas independence, it asserts, and "even the blind must have their eyes open now."

MORE GREEKS FOR THRACE.

Conference's Authorization for Sending of Troops Significant.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Greece has been authorized by the Peace Conference to send additional troops into Thrace, the Smyrna district, and adjacent territory along the coast. It is understood that these troops and those which Italy is about to send to the Asia Minor districts of Adalia and Konieh, will be considered allied troops, subject to withdrawal by the conference.

This move is construed by observers here as the first step toward making Italy and Greece the mandatory powers for the territory thus occupied.

PRE-WAR SECRETS BARED BY BRITISH

Accepted Accounts of Momentous Happenings Shattered in Book by Prof. C. W. Oman.

SERAJEVO PLOT NOT STAGED

But Plans for War Had Been Made Before Archduke Francis Was Murdered.

LICHNOWSKY WAS DUPED

And Germany Had Prepared Demands on France That Would Have Forced Her to Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Some of the accepted stories of the happenings of the momentous days just prior to the war, it is understood, are shattered in a book by Professor Charles W. Oman, based on official documents and personal notes of diplomats and officials, to be issued tomorrow. Professor Oman is President of the Royal Historical Society and a Professor of History at Oxford University. A. J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, and Earl Curzon, Government leader in the House of Lords, are understood to have taken an active interest in the work of compilation.

The book characterizes as a fallacy the belief that the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Serajevo was a "stage managed affair," but it is asserted from knowledge gained from official documents that if the assassination had not occurred the war certainly would have been started very soon.

The famous Potsdam conference of July 5, 1914, according to the book, was not what has been generally accepted. The meeting took place, but it was not a formal conference, as has been declared repeatedly. It is asserted that many persons who were supposed to have been there were not present. Emperor William and members of the German Imperial Staff were present, however, and at this conference Germany definitely decided for war.

Timed to Embarrass Allies.

One of the "damning revelations," as Professor Oman calls them, is his statement that from a close study of Munich newspapers he has established that the ultimatum from the Vienna Government to the Serbian Government was deliberately timed when President Poincaré and Premier Viviani of France were at sea after their departure from Petrograd in order to make it difficult for the Entente to reach an understanding. Professor Oman gives what he calls a complete analysis of these revelations.

A series of hitherto unpublished communications between Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary in 1914, and Prince Lichnowsky, German Ambassador in London at the outbreak of the war, goes to prove, Professor Oman says, that the British Foreign Office believes that Lichnowsky was absolutely honest. The book says:

"They emphasize the personal anxiety of Lichnowsky and show that he was actually and literally betrayed by his Government—in other words, that he was the unwilling tool of the Kaiser."

On July 29, 1914, Prince Lichnowsky wrote privately as follows to Sir Edward Grey:

"I begin to hope that it once more has been possible, owing to Anglo-German collaboration, to save the peace of Europe."

On July 30 Sir W. E. Goschen, British Ambassador in Berlin, wrote to Sir Edward Grey, saying:

"The Chancellor told me last night that he was pressing the button with a view to forming a moderating influence on Vienna."

Information contained in the book shows that the opposite was taking place, and that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg was doing everything possible to get the German war machine going.

The book refers to a journalistic mystery never cleared up—the publication by the Westminster Gazette on Aug. 1, 1914, of a dispatch dated in Berlin, giving the text of a purported telegram addressed on July 30 by von Bethmann-Hollweg to the German Ambassador in Vienna, saying:

"We must refuse to be drawn into a world conflagration through Austria-Hungary not respecting our advice."

Professor Oman says that the newspaper never revealed the source of the dispatch, and it was never included in the German White Book or in any official publication, yet the document was dragged out two and one-half years later by Chancellor Michaelis and cited as proof that Germany was holding back until Russia mobilized, which mobilization Germany gives as the cause of the war.

Information Kept from Czar.

The book goes into detail of the fateful night during which the order of Emperor Nicholas countermanding the Russian demobilization was ignored by the Russian War Minister and the Chief of the Russian General Staff. It is shown that the Emperor was not in possession of information in the hands of his War Minister and Chief of Staff. The evidence establishes that the Russian mobilization was caused by war threats made by Count Pourtales, the German Ambassador in Petrograd, that the Russian Ministers knew all about it and went ahead with their plans and that when the war came Emperor Nicholas realized that they were right and he was wrong.

Regarding the so-called Russian mobilization Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador in Petrograd, in a secret document says:

"The military authorities without the knowledge of the Czar did make secret preparations for a general mobilization, though, on being questioned by the Emperor, General Soukhomlinoff (the Russian Minister of War) denied this."

It is shown, however, that this did not alter the general situation. It is also shown that when the Russian military chiefs ignored the midnight waverings of the Emperor and his order to suspend the mobilization they were justified because a few hours later it became clear that Germany was bent on war.

It is shown that Baron von Schoen, the German Ambassador to France, had in his possession a demand which would make it impossible for France to remain neutral—a demand for the surrender of the fortresses of Toul and Verdun. It is stated that Baron von Schoen actually had a German official demand to this effect in his pocket on one visit to the French Foreign Office.

One chapter of the book is devoted to an illustration of former Emperor William's personal treachery and his elastic memory, enabling him conveniently to forget unpleasant things. Other chapters point out the clumsy German attempt to lay the blame for the war on France.

The British Foreign Office sanctions the publication of the book at this time, hoping to clear up some obscure points and aiming to influence public opinion favorably during the Peace Conference.

Professor Oman in a footnote calls attention to the difference between the German and the allied conceptions of mobilization. He says that Germany holds that mobilization means that the whole war machine shall be ready for action. The definition of the Allies is merely getting ready.

Mendacious Dispatch from Kaiser.

One chapter of Professor Oman's work is devoted to telegrams exchanged between King George, the German Emperor, and the Emperor of Russia, which for the first time are given in chronological order. One telegram from Emperor William to King George, dated July 31, 1914, saying the Emperor was engaged in mediation, was sent at midday and subsequent to the council held in the morning at which war had been decided upon.

In connection with the allegations of a French invasion of Luxemburg, Professor Oman publishes an interesting statement made by the Luxemburg Minister of State saying there had been no encroachment by the French on Luxemburg soil. Professor Oman instances this as a daring act on the part of the Luxemburg authorities.

Professor Oman analyzes at length charges of French invasions of the frontier. Germany alleged that French aviators dropped bombs at Nuremburg Aug. 2, which statement was denied the next day by the Bavarian Minister of War. Nevertheless, on Aug. 4, says Professor Oman, the German Chancellor deliberately used this charge in an attempt to bolster up the contention that France started the hostilities.

It is stated by Professor Oman that the Germans manufactured, but did not make much use of, a story that a band of French officers, disguised as Dutch, violated Holland's neutrality in crossing Holland on a military mission. The Clogne Gazette, he says, printed the story, crediting it to the "reliable Wolff Bureau," but coupled with it a statement that it was not likely true.

Professor Oman says nothing was charged of a Belgian neutrality violation on the part of the French to show that the French took any steps outside the bounds of legitimate precautions.

ROME AWAITS ORLANDO.

Premier Expected to Make Important Speech to Parliament.

ROME, Feb. 12.—Premier Orlando is expected back here immediately after the departure of President Wilson for America. The presence of the Premier is indispensable at the opening of Parliament, which is awaited with great interest by all political parties, since it is the first sitting of the Cabinet since the opening of the Peace Conference. It is expected by many that Signor Orlando will make important declarations.

The new Ministers will also make interesting announcements, especially the Minister of Finance, who has decreed that $5,000,000 shall be spent on the construction and reconstruction of public buildings, which will help greatly to solve the problem of unemployment becoming serious through rapid demobilization of the army.

The general elections are expected to be held in the early Spring, but nothing has yet been definitely settled. One event which is awaited with curiosity is a great campaign to be instituted by all the feminine associations before the general elections for the extension of the suffrage to women.

TO AID FRENCH CHURCHES.

Presbyterian Assembly Sets Aside $500,000 of $13,022,399 Fund.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 13.—The Executive Commission of the Presbyterian General Assembly, in closing its mid-Winter sessions here today, appropriated $13,022,339.50 for the first twelve months of the new era drive which is to continue for five years.

It was stated that 135,000 Presbyterians in all sections of the country were pledged to help raise this huge sum. President Wilson, Vice President Marshall, and Secretary of State Lansing, each a ruling elder of the faith, are expected to make liberal contributions.

For the first time American Presbyterians appropriated $500,000 in the new era budget for the relief of French Protestant churches. The action gives impetus to "a hands-across-the-sea movement" which is expected to lay the foundation of a league of churches of the world to strengthen the work of the League of Nations.

Another $500,000 was appropriated for the benefit of the suffering and needy soldiers and sailors of the Presbyterian faith. The Post Bellum World Evangelization Budget provides a total of $4,286,679 for work in foreign fields, and $1,709,415 was allotted to the Home Missions Board, and $900,000 additional for the Woman's Board of Home Missions. For relief $894,900 was appropriated, for general education $915,000, for publication $495,000, and for church erection $467,000.

To strengthen the nation for acceptance of prohibition the Executive Commission today set aside $80,000, an increase of $30,000 over the last fiscal year. Members discredited reports that the soldier in the ranks will return home dissatisfied with America because it is to be a bone-dry nation. "Presbyterian soldiers and sailors will obey the law, whatever it may be, if they are true to the church," declared Dr. William Henry Roberts of Philadelphia.

TALK ON AMERICANIZATION.

Speaker Declares 500,000 in City Speak No English.

New York City's relation to Federal and State Americanization programs and the Smith-Bankhead bill, now being considered by the Education Committees of both houses of Congress, were discussed yesterday at the Engineering Societies Building by representatives of various organizations in this city. The meeting was called by the Section on Aliens of the Council of Organizations.

The Americanization bill proposes Federal aid for the States in the education of native illiterates and of persons unable to understand and use the English language. William C. Smith of the State Department of Education presented the State's plans. He said that there were 600,000 persons in the State and 500,000 in New York City who could neither read, write nor speak English.

Dr. John Willis Slaughter of the Community Council of National Defense said that there were thousands of mothers in this city today who did not know why their sons were sent to the war. Americanization was a process, he said, and not a problem. "Make it useful, desirable, and pleasurable," he said, "to learn English, and the immigrants will become American citizens."

Some of the statistics which were given out the meeting, based on a report from the Education and Labor Senate, were: The non-English-speaking persons in this country outnumber all the inhabitants of Connecticut, Florida, Nevada, Wyoming, Delaware, Arizona, Idaho, Mississippi, Vermont, Rhode Island, North and South Dakota, Oregon, Maine, and Washington combined. They would outvote the combined population of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, or any State in the Union except New York.

The South leads in illiterates and the North in non-English-speaking persons. About 15.8 per cent. of the population of Passaic, N. J., cannot read, write, or speak English. Sixteen per cent. of the population of the South Atlantic States are illiterate.

BAR SOLDIERS' TALK WITH GERMAN GIRLS

"Fraternization" Rule, as Construed in Our Occupation Area, Raises a Problem.

STRICTER THAN FRENCH

M. P.'s Are on the Job, but Sometimes Too Officious, and Amusing Incidents Result.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 13.—There are two main subjects of conversation among the men of the American Army of Occupation. One is home and the other is fraternization. Americans will understand perfectly what the soldiers say about home. Not being able to go there right away, it is natural that fraternization comes up for consideration.

It should be said at the outset that the talk of fraternization of American soldiers and German civilians in the manner in which the word is accepted in Europe is untrue. Fraternization, as the term is used in France and England, means association and interchange, perhaps, of ideas and ideals, an association which would be in a manner prejudicial to the interests of those opposed to Germany. Such fraternization would be committed in discussing with the French the cause of the war and letting the German side get into one's brain, or discussion between Germans and American soldiers of the differences between the Allies or something of that sort. That is fraternization as most persons in Europe see it. That is fraternization of which the allied Governments stand in fear.

But there is no question of such fraternization between American soldiers and Germans.

The big fraternization question in that part of Germany occupied by Americans is—women.

The anti-fraternization rule is interallied; it came to the armies along the Rhine from General Foch's headquarters. An interesting situation arises in that the commanders of the different armies construe the rule against fraternization in different ways. For instance, on the American right the French do not hold that talking with German girls is fraternizing; the American army holds that it is fraternization. Consequently, while it is not forbidden in Mayence for the allied soldiers to be on speaking terms with a fraulein, it is forbidden in Coblenz.

I believe that the French theory is that when a man talks to a girl he does not talk politics and, therefore, there is no peril to international policies. I do not know just what the American theory is, but it works out so that an American cannot talk to a German girl if an M. P. sees him. Incidentally, the French theory was expounded to me in this way: Talking to a German girl is like drinking a bottle of German wine, and drinking a bottle of German wine is not fraternization.

A Genuine Problem.

There are pretty girls along the Rhine, and they are not all in the French sector. The 300,000 American youths in Germany are used to talking to pretty girls at home; they kept it up in France; they did not stop it in Luxemburg. It seems sort of second nature to talk to pretty girls in Germany. But the law says no.

A law backed up by Lieut. Col. Dodge and his ever present military policemen is a law to be respected.

The policy of the German residents to be nice to Americans is not confined to old folks or little children. Therefore it presents a problem.

Here is a young Lieutenant freshly shaved, feeling at peace with the world and with an afternoon off. He walks down Schloss Strasse. He passes a handsome girl. She smiles at him. What is he to do? On the corner behind is an M. P.; on the corner ahead is another and a man in civilian clothes two feet away may be an M. P. incognito.

What is the Lieutenant to do? The answer is nothing, unless he wants to be court-martialed.

Later in the day he drops into a tea room. Seated two tables away or maybe at the next table is the same good-looking girl. She smiles invitingly again. He gets up and goes out, and agrees with Sherman.

That Lieutenant would be up and doing if hostilities were renewed tomorrow morning. He is a good loyal soldier. He thinks that he would be just as loyal if the army would let him talk with that German girl. But the army thinks not, and the Lieutenant is S. O. L. as the soldiers say.

There are thousands of other Lieutenants and tens of thousands of soldiers in the same boat. So one may imagine that if this law is not broken it is sometimes bent.

M. P.'s Sometimes Too Energetic.

That is where the M. P.'s add to their unpopularity. An American appears on the street with a girl, and he is their victim. The question is always, "Is that an American girl you are with?"

This has caused many amusing incidents when Americans were out walking with American telephone girls, nurses or Y. M. C. A. workers. Sometimes an M. P. gets an exaggerated idea of his importance when he learns he can arrest anybody. Therein some M. P.'s have learned the wisdom of the old army saying, "An M. P. can arrest a General but a wise M. P. won't."

A dignified Major was walking down the street the other day with a dignified Red Cross nurse. An M. P. stopped him with the question, "Who is your friend?" That M. P. picked a tartar and had to face a court-martial.

But generally speaking the M. P.'s get the best of it. It is foolhardy for officers or soldiers to venture on the street with German women. The same is true of the cafés which are inspected every two and a half minutes or oftener.

It is a reflection upon the difference in the methods of the military occupation by the German army and that of the American army to consider that this anti-fraternizing rule is unpopular among the German girls and their elders as well. The association of the Americans and German girls would unquestionably receive encouragement from German parents.

Colonel's Plan That Went Wrong.

There is a story told of a Colonel, the Chief of Staff of an American division, who planned a dance. Near his headquarters stands an old monastery which would make a fine hall for dancing. The Colonel went to the Abbot and told him that the American officers would like to use his hall for a dance.

"How many officers will there be?" asked the Abbot.

"About a hundred and fifty," replied the Colonel.

"The Americans are welcome to the hall," said the Abbot, "and I will provide 150 pretty girls from the Rheinland." Then when the Colonel explained that the officers would bring American girls, the Abbot began to hesitate and ended by saying that he would refer to his Bishop the request for the hall.

On the other hand, there is the American officer who summoned the Burgermeister of the town and told him to supply fifty girls for a dance. When headquarters heard of it, that Captain was relieved of duty.

Colonel Dodge's police court records show that roundups by the M. P.s' flying squadrons of offending soldiers have not been barren of results. Some officers and men have been convicted of offenses.

A Defense That Succeeded.

Sometimes, even after being caught in the alleged offense by an M. P., the accused gets off. One day an M. P. was walking down the street and heard a piano. Looking in a window he saw a German and his wife seated in the parlor and their daughter playing a piano while over in the corner was an American Lieutenant enjoying the music.

The Lieutenant was arrested and brought before a court-martial. First he set forth that he was billeted in that house. Second, he asserted that he could not speak German, that no member of the family could speak English and, therefore, there could be no social intercourse. The court-martial dismissed the charge.

The whole question is an interesting study in psychology. On the one hand there are American youths who have sweethearts at home. It is harder to consider a pretty girl an enemy than to put an ugly German with a machine gun in that category.

On the other hand, there are thousands of German girls whose beaux are most of them gone, many killed, others still in the army. They want men to talk to. Americans are right at hand.

The present rule is not a perfectly satisfactory solution of the problem. But it is the solution that seems best to the commander of the American army.

HURLEY ASKS FOR ADVICE.

Wants Opinion of the Nation in Formulating Marine Policy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board announced tonight that he had arranged with the United States Chamber of Commerce to get an expression of opinion from business, civic, industrial, and labor organizations of the United States upon the policy that should be adopted by the Government toward the merchant marine. He said a series of questions would be telegraphed immediately to obtain opinions on ship construction, Government or private ownership and operation, and all other questions bearing on the situation.

Until returns on the questionnaire are assembled, Mr. Hurley said, the Shipping Board will not indicate a position of its own on the questions involved. Information which the board has bearing upon actual conditions in the international field, however, soon will be presented to the public.

Mr. Hurley said there was obvious necessity for the formulation of opinions on a definite future policy as to the merchant marine, and added that speed was so essential that he had taken the unusual method announced in order to get an expression from the country. He made it plain that the scope covered by the Chamber of Commerce in its usual inquiries would be greatly widened, and that shipping interests, labor, and others particularly concerned would also be asked to join in the expression.

TUMULTY IS NOT AVERSE.

President's Secretary Finds Attraction in Governorship.

Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, went to Jersey City from New York yesterday to visit his brother Philip. He was asked whether he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor if shown he was the unanimous choice of the party.

"I won't say that I would," he replied, "but I will say it would have many attractive features."

Actress Named in Separation Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Philbin heard testimony yesterday in a suit of Mrs. Justina Mills Underhill for a separation from Rawson Underhill, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, in which Miss May Rivers, a trained nurse, told of the defendant's attention to Miss Marion Dorr, an actress. She said that Underhill and Miss Dorr took a trip to Florida together, and that she had heard Underhill accuse Miss Dorr of trying to get $50,000 from him, and that she admitted it. Justice Philbin reserved decision in the case.

Dining Car Service Enlarged.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—War-time restrictions on railroad dining car service will be modified March 1. Director General Hines today authorized Federal managers of all lines to resume a la carte service wherever it could be done without causing congestion. On trains where table d'hote service is continued not more than five courses may be served, the cost to be $1.25 and the meal to "be made worth the price."

Record Paris-London Flight.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The British Air Ministry announces that a British service machine yesterday made a record flight between Paris and London, covering the distance in one hour and fifty minutes.

SAYS LLOYD GEORGE TOLD OUR POLICY

Senator Johnson Assails Administration for Not Revealing Plans in Russia.

HITCHCOCK DEFENDS IT

Denounces Lenine's Reply to Wilson as Appeal to Anarchists to Overthrow Government.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Deploring the failure of the Administration to disclose its Russian policy, Senator Johnson of California, in the Senate today, during the liveliest debate in many months, expressed gratification that Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain had made public information not obtainable here that American troops were to be withdrawn from Russian soil and that American intervention in that country would soon be at an end.

Senator Johnson felt, he said, that the Administration ought to have taken the American people into its confidence in the Russian policy, but lacking that it was consoling to get information by way of Great Britain.

"I read in a statement of the Premier of Great Britain yesterday that the United States would no longer send troops into Russia and no longer would extend aid, substantially, in the matter of intervention," said Senator Johnson.

"I want to congratulate the United States. I want to congratulate the Congress of the United States. I want to congratulate the all-seeing eye of the United States Senate, the Committee on Foreign Relations, that finally now we have learned from the Premier of Great Britain, when a resolution has been before the Senate since Dec. 12 last, the policy of the United States Government with respect to Russia.

"The reason why I feel as I do upon this subject with all the force of my being is that by our supineness—aye, were it not invidious, I would say by our cowardice—we are risking in Russia today 5,000 precious American lives without the hope of consummation of any policy of this Government, without the hope of benefits of any degree of any plan or any scheme or any purpose that may be entertained by our Government or any man upon this floor.

Warns of Establishing Precedent.

"Beware, take care, of the precedent we are establishing now. Beware, take care, if you permit one President of the United States or one Administration to wage war without declaring war; beware, take care, of what a President of the United States, for whom you may not have the same confidence and for whom you may not have the same trust, affection, and love, may in the future do. We are establishing the precedent now by which we may be plagued in the future."

Senator Hitchcock interrupted to say that the Committee on Foreign Relations had not "bottled up" the Johnson resolution. No resolution which had come to the Committee on Foreign Relations in recent months had received so much attention and consideration. A vote was reached at the last meeting of the committee, he said, but only one Republican was present and action was deferred.

Mr. Johnson expressed gratification that the committee was considering the matter, and continued:

"We are in Russia because we were forced there in the first place, against the will of the President, I am very glad to say. We are in Russia for no good at all to ourselves or the Russian people, and thank God, we have learned today from the British Premier finally that the President of the United States probably will not proceed in this unusual, this vicious, and this criminal course in that land.

"I trust that the news which has come to us is true, but why in this great democracy, why this great Foreign Relations Committee, can we not learn from our own people, from those who govern us presumably not as masters, but as parts of a great democracy—why can we not learn from them first hand, exactly what the United States Government intends to do and just exactly what it has done in the past?"

Republican Leader Lodge and Senator Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip, differed regarding the statement of Premier Lloyd George. Senator Lodge said the Premier's announcement apparently was authentic and was the first definite statement as to the American policy, while Senator Lewis insisted that Mr. Lloyd George was divulging the decision of the Supreme War Council and not merely the American policy.

Senator Lodge remarked that, the United States having intervened in Russia, it ought to have sent an appreciable army there, either that or it ought to have kept out. He spoke of the march of the Czechoslovaks across Siberia, saying he felt that the United States should have "sent help to these men."

Referring to the German menace against Finland and Archangel, the Senator continued:

"There again I thought action was justified by the Allies and by the United States to meet the German advance. In my mind, it had nothing to do with the Russian Government. But again, as I am sorry to say, we intervened in the weak way we did. The danger of the advance of Germany through Finland ceased, and from that time, it seems to me, it was the duty of the United States to take those troops out. They were too many to be sacrificed uselessly and they were too few to be effective."

Tempest in Teapot, Says Hitchcock.

Senator Hitchcock agreed that we had gone into Russia as a military necessity, as a matter of warfare against Germany, and was inclined to think the California Senator's agitation of the question was a tempest in a teapot.

"When the armistice was signed," he continued, "it certainly would have been a reckless policy instantly to withdraw troops from Russia. It would be perfect anarchy and disorder for us to withdraw our troops without first securing an agreement with the other countries, even if in military policy it was proper to do so.

"When they come out, the terms of such withdrawal will be that there will be no butchery of those Russians who have been co-operating with these soldiers."

The Senator added that apparently it had been the President's policy to hold out a friendly hand to Russia, as it was the President who first recognized the Russian revolution and who first sent a friendly message to the Soviet Government. This message the Senator read from the record.

The reply of the Lenine Government, he declared, was an appeal to the laboring classes of America "to throw off the capitalistic yoke" and establish a Socialist Government.

"It was German propaganda," he added, "endeavoring to arouse the Socialists and anarchists in this country to overthrow the United States Government. It was practically an invasion of the United States, an attempt to arouse a rebellion here."

When Senator Hitchcock said "that is enough to condemn the element of which the Senator from California seems to be the champion," Senator Johnson interrupted to say warmly that Senator Hitchcock had misinterpreted his statements.

"I am not the representative of that Government," said Senator Johnson. "Such a statement is absolutely without foundation in fact. I ask the Senator to declare war on that Government, if you don't want it. Why don't you declare war, instead of murdering our boys?"

In spite of the Bolshevist reply, Senator Hitchcock continued, the President in his friendship for the Russian people had brought Great Britain, France, and Italy to the point where they had agreed to meet the Bolsheviki at Princes' Islands.

Senator Johnson retorted that no "specious" argument could convince the American people that war was not being made on the Russian people, and said he "did not care a rap" for the argument presented by Senator Hitchcock.

When the time limit of discussion expired, Senator Johnson asked unanimous consent that instead of being sent to the calendar his resolution go over for further debate tomorrow.

Senator Hitchcock objected, and the resolution went to the calendar.

DEFENDS JEWS IN RUSSIA.

A. J. Sack Replies to Dr. Simons's Testimony in Washington.

A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in the United States, issued a statement last night in reply to the testimony of the Rev. Dr. George S. Simons with regard to the activity of Jews in the Bolshevist movement in Russia.

"It is true," he said, "that Trotzky, Kamenev, and some other Bolshevist leaders are Jews, but on the other hand Lenine, who represents the brains and the will power behind the Bolshevist movement, the man who built up the theory of Bolshevism and is the strongest in endeavoring to build it up as a practice, is a Russian nobleman by birth. Many other leaders of Bolshevism, such as Lunacharsky, Krylenko, Kolontay, Dybenko, are also Russians.

"A wrong impression as to the rôle the Jews are playing in the Bolshevist movement may be further produced by the fact that Dr. Simons, while mentioning that Trotzky is a Jew, omitted to mention that Dora Kaplan, who was executed for trying to assassinate Lenine, was also Jewish. And while Joffe is a Jew, Kamkoff, the leader of the left wing of the party of Socialist Revolutionists who participated in the assassination of Count von Mirbach and was executed by the Bolsheviki, was also a Jew. His real name was Katz. The Jewish people as a whole, not only the middle class, but also the laboring masses and their leaders, are actively fighting against Bolshevism in Russia. They look upon Bolshevism as a movement which destroys the possibility for democracy in Russia, the possibility of order under which all the nationalities inhabiting Russia will enjoy liberty and equal rights."

PLAN AUTO EXPRESS ROUTES

Exhibitors at Show Get Several Big Orders for Trucks.

Motor trucks continued to attract attention yesterday in Madison Square Garden and the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory and an interesting feature to the exhibitors was the fact that several substantial orders were placed by individual buyers and firms contemplating the establishment of express highway routes in different parts of the country.

Invitations had been extended to the various motor truck clubs in the metropolitan territory and a large delegation was present from the Motor Truck Club of New Jersey. Nearly one hundred members of the Motor Truck Association of America went to the Garden in the evening after their monthly dinner at the Automobile Club of America. At the dinner an interesting talk was given by David Beecroft, who recently returned from an investigation of automobile conditions in Europe. He related many incidents of the performances of army and transport trucks in all lines of duty at the battle front and in the areas back of the war zone. Several of the members discussed the bills introduced into the State Legislature and strong opposition was expressed against the plan to increase the present registration fees on all types of motor vehicles. The proposed vehicular tunnel connecting New York and New Jersey was unanimously approved.

The show will continue today in both buildings and will close tomorrow night.

REVENUE BILL NOW READY FOR WILSON

ment for the abolishment of the zone rates go into the bill after its adoption on the floor of the Senate he felt at the same time that it was going out again when the bill got to conference. He had even seen one of the House conferees quoted in a newspaper, before the bill went to conference, to the effect that if the Senate insisted on the amendment there would be no revenue bill at all.

"I hope," interrupted Senator Moses, "that the Senate conferees are not making the confession that they were terrorized."

Senators Smoot and Simmons started to explain that the main objector to the amendment among the House conferees was sustained by two other House conferees. This brought a retort from Senator Moses about the "kick of a great statesman in his dying hours" having uncalled-for strength. None of the Senators mentioned the name of Representative Claude Kitchin during the debate, however. Senator Smoot made this statement:

"My understanding was that the whole thing would go to the bone pile if the amendment abolishing the zone system was left in. I would like to see the whole question of second-class matter taken up by the Post Office Committee and threshed out, and I believe it should be done before July 1, 1919, if possible.

"I am not opposed to the imposition of taxes on second-class mail matter if that is necessary and justified. If the increase is necessary let us have it. But for Heaven's sake don't chop this country up into zones. No other civilized country has done it. It is mortifying to me to know that a magazine may be sent to the farthest end of India for less than it may be sent from my State to an adjoining State.

"Let us make it possible for information to be carried through the public press to all parts of the country and to all citizens at the same rate."

In asserting that the Revenue bill as proposed would not raise more than $3,000,000,000 in 1919, Senator Smoot said that he knew of whole lines of business which would not make sufficient profits in the year 1919 to pay ordinary dividends, and would thus escape tax when the relief provisions in the bill were considered. He held out the conversion of foreign obligations as the best antidote for the situation confronted.

The proposed bill which he then read into the record provides that within twenty days of passage steps should be taken to convert into market value the obligations of foreign Governments to the United States. He proposed the issue of bonds and debentures maturing in from five to twenty-five years and bearing interest at not more than 6 per cent. or less than 5 per cent. These were to be for amounts of $1,000, $500, $100, $50, guaranteed by the United States Government. His proposal specified also that when the Secretary of the Treasury received the principal with accrued interest from the foreign Governments the fact be properly advertised and the bonds redeemed. He suggested that bonds should not sell at less than par with accrued interest.

"I believe that these obligations which the Government now holds in the form of notes," he said, "could be sold in the open markets of all countries where there was money to invest in securities of this nature."

The real effect of the new law, Mr. Smoot said, would be "burdensome beyond measure," on small institutions. It was best, he said, that the country know the real situation, for then the people would be more willing to pay the taxes.

Senator Calder of New York also expressed the fear that the law might cripple many industries.

RED ARMY DEFEATED RETREATS IN NORTH

Attack on Anglo-Russian Positions at Sredmakrenga Abandoned as Americans Arrive.

ALLIED VICTORY AT KADISH

Bolshevist Forces of 23,000 Men Suffering from Shortage of Food —Bread Rations Cut.

ARCHANGEL, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—American reinforcements, marching over thirty miles of a forest trail, reached the hard-pressed British and Russians in the region of Sredmakrenga yesterday. The result was that the Bolsheviki, who had been launching strong attacks in this region, retired southward, apparently abandoning their offensive move.

The Bolsheviki evidently feared that they would be cut off in the rear and they withdrew before the Americans reached Sredmakrenga.

Conditions on other sectors of the Northern Russian fronts were unchanged today, following the Sredmakrenga operation and an attack by the Bolsheviki against Kadish on Tuesday afternoon, which was brilliantly repulsed. An official statement regarding the Kadish fighting says:

"On Tuesday afternoon we gallantly repulsed a strong Bolshevist attack against Kadish. The situation is considered more satisfactory."

LONDON, Feb. 13, (British Wireless Service.)—The situation at Kadish, on the Archangel front, is more satisfactory for the moment, according to an official statement issued today by the British War Office. On Feb. 10 the allied troops drove 800 Bolsheviki back six miles in the region of Sredmakrenga. The statement reads:

"After a Bolshevist attack on Sredmakrenga, 100 miles south of the City of Archangel, on Feb. 10, a combined attack was carried out by allied troops, and the enemy, numbering some 800, was driven back to positions six miles south of Sredmakrenga.

"The enemy attacked in strong force on the afternoon of Feb. 11 on the Kadish sector. The attack, which was made in intense cold, is considered to have been repulsed most efficiently, and the situation is considered for the moment more satisfactory."

The Bolshevist force fighting the Allies in Northern Russia comprises 23,000 men, with 151 machine guns, 66 field guns, and 9 six-inch guns, according to a statement from authoritative quarters here.

An attempt is being made to standardize the organization and equipment of the Soviet armies, and schools for officers and aviators have been opened.

General Vetritis, a Lett, has been appointed Commander in Chief of all the Soviet armies.

The bread ration of the Soviet troops has been reduced from two pounds to one pound daily, the information shows, and there are other indications that the Bolsheviki are suffering from a food shortage.

ARMY SURGEONS FOR SIBERIA.

Will Relieve 52 Other Americans—Reports of Hardship Denied.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Orders assigning fifty-two medical officers for duty with the American forces in Siberia were issued today by the War Department. The party, including seven Majors, nineteen Captains, and twenty-six Lieutenants, will sail from San Francisco.

These officers are to relieve a similar number of medical officers, who have indicated their desire to return to civil life. Under the policy of the War Department, officers asking for discharge will be replaced as far as possible by men who have applied for retention in the permanent establishment. It is understood that similar action soon will be taken in the case of line officers.

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. 10, (by Canadian Press.)—Published reports of alleged hardships endured by allied troops in Siberia this Winter are untrue, it is shown in an investigation made by the correspondent of the Canadian Press. Canadian troops here in Vladivostok pending a decision on the matter of allied policy toward Russia are well housed in comfortable barracks and the weather on the Siberian coast is milder than in Eastern Canada.

The British units at Omsk suffered from severe cold. The health of the Canadians has been excellent. The chief complaint is of the infrequency of mail service and lack of home news. The Government has taken steps to overcome this and is now sending regularly summaries of Canadian news for distribution to the troops.

Anarchy on Chilean Frontier.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 13.—As a result of anarchistic outbreaks and disorders on both sides of the Chile-Argentine frontier, the Chilean Foreign Office is preparing a convention with Argentina relative to frontier police and extradition.

TELL OF RED PLANS TO RULE AMERICA

Vice Consuls from Russia Testify That Bolsheviki Frankly Admit This Hope.

MANY ARE FROM NEW YORK

Ralph M. Dennis Informs Senators That an East Side Cobbler Rules One City.

HORRORS ON EVERY HAND

Robert F. Leonard, Long a Prisoner of Bolsheviki, Describes Wholesale Murders.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Two American Vice Consuls, both recently out of Russia, one of them after weeks—sometimes in solitary confinement—in Bolshevist jails, were the principal witnesses today before the Senate Committee which is investigating Bolshevism at home and abroad.

These witnesses were Ralph M. Dennis of Chicago and Robert F. Leonard of Minneapolis. Their stories corroborated those of previous witnesses who have told the committee of conditions existing in Russia under Bolshevist domination. Both also confirmed the statement made yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Simons of the Methodist Church, who testified that much of Russia's misfortune is due to an influx of apostate Jewish agitators from the east side of New York. Mr. Dennis testified, however, that not all of these agitators who went into Russia from this country were from New York. Some were from Chicago and other places.

The witnesses told of the money tributes levied on the principal cities when the Bolsheviki gained control, of the murder of innocent persons, of the prominent part that Germans played in the aftermath of the Bolshevist triumph, the propagation of lies intended to deceive the outside world as to actual conditions in Russia, and of the industrial, social, and financial chaos that reigns in the country.

Mr. Dennis said that conditions were such that some of the strongest supporters of the Allies would welcome even German control, for that, at least, would mean that life and property would be secure to a certain degree. "It is a case of any port in a storm," said Mr. Dennis.

Slaughtered 300 Wounded.

Mr. Dennis, who left Russia on Sept. 2, told of the slaughter of 300 helpless wounded Russian officers by the Red Guards, while Mr. Leonard narrated the story of the execution of scores who were taken from jails and marched, without trial or chance at defense, to the places of execution, the bodies of the victims being thrown into long ditches which were visible from his cell window.

Major Lowry Humes, the Judge Advocate, produced an official translation of a document issued in Petrograd which was intended to explain the Bolshevist budget of 1918. This document shows that the budget called for an expenditure of about 48,000,000,000 rubles, or a little more than $23,000,000,000.

Two important witnesses were examined tonight in executive session. This was done in order to protect their relatives and friends in Russia from the vengeance of the Bolshevist Government. Their testimony will be made public tomorrow, only such parts as might indicate the identity of the witnesses being withheld. These witnesses are persons of excellent credibility.

Many Boys Murdered.

Mr. Dennis was in Russia from Sept. 2, 1917, to Sept. 2, 1918. He went over as a Secretary for the Young Men's Christian Association, but soon after his arrival resigned and entered the consular service of the United States. He was on duty principally in Petrograd, Moscow, Nijni-Novgorod, and Rostoff. He was in the last named place when the city was taken by the Red Guards after a fight with the rear guard of Korniloff's loyal army of Cossacks.

"The moment the Bolshevist forces entered Rostoff," said Mr. Dennis, "terrorism began. Armored cars mounting machine guns toured the city, the cars marked with the legend 'Death to the bourgeoisie.' After four days of terror they started a report that the slaughter was due to the opposition or anti-Bolshevist elements, and with this report there began wholesale killing."

"How many people were killed?" asked Senator Nelson.

"There is no way of estimating the number that I know of. Here is one instance I know of: A number of little boys, little chaps of sixteen and seventeen and eighteen, had volunteered for service in Korniloff's army. After Korniloff retreated from the city they came back to their homes thinking it all right to do so. They were just children. They were rounded up by the Bolsheviki and killed."

"What became of the Grand Duke Nicholas?" asked Senator Overman.

"I was told that he is still alive, but whether that is true or not I have no way of knowing."

"Who officered the Red forces that entered Rostoff?" Major Humes, the judge advocate, asked.

"German officers for the most part held the directing commands. They did not appear publicly with the troops. The commander in chief was a Lett. Sixteen German officers were billeted in the hotel where I was."

"What was the personnel of the army?" asked Senator Nelson.

"Letts and all sorts of mercenaries. Within two weeks after the Bolshevist forces entered the city public opinion switched against them. At first the working and peasant classes were sympathetic, but when it was seen that promises as to land and food were false they changed. Today this discontent, due to false promises is general, in my opinion, throughout Russia. When we left Rostoff the Germans were in control. (This was at the beginning of Bolshevist control in 1917.)"

"How would you describe these Bolshevik forces so that the average man would understand them and their composition?" asked Senator Wolcott.

"A Mob of Captain Kidds."

"As a mob of Captain Kidds with the exception that they operated by land instead of on the water," replied Mr. Dennis.

Mr. Dennis cited the case of one Bolshevist official in Rostoff whose private loot included carloads of stolen goods and supplies and more than 270,000 rubles. This man, he said, was the adjutant of Antoneff, the Bolshevist commissaire of the district.

"What of the atrocities committed by the Reds?" Major Humes asked.

"I will cite an instance that came under my observation. There were in Rostoff, before the Reds and Germans drove Korniloff out, about 300 wounded officers and men of the loyal forces, who were in a hospital. They were desperately wounded men. They were put on a special train and taken to a place and removed to a town some distance away. It was not thought the latter would be captured by the enemy forces, but it was, and there was no chance to move the wounded, so they had to be left to the mercy of the Bolsheviki and the Germans. All of these men were taken from their beds and murdered and their bodies thrown into the streets, where they lay unattended for four days. Most of these murdered men were officers, and included a number of Cossacks."

Bolsheviki in Minority.

Mr. Dennis said that he was convinced that fully three-fourths of the Russians were anti-Bolshevist. In answer to a question he said that it seemed to be an impossible thing for those opposing the Bolsheviki to get together under a common leader.

"If you find five Russians," he said, "as a rule you will find five different viewpoints."

"What became of all the gold in Russia?" Mr. Dennis was asked.

"I do not know. I know that a great amount of gold money, gilt edge securities, &c., were brought to Nijni-Novgorod in charge of German bankers. I met the Germans myself. I do not know of my own knowledge, but I have been told that in one instance $200,000,000 was sent into Germany."

Mr. Dennis said that the Commissaire of Nijni-Novgorod was one of the cruelest and most implacable officials he had met while in Russia.

"Who was he?" asked Senator Overman.

"He told me that he had lived for thirteen years on the east side in New York, where he worked as a cobbler. As a matter of fact the city when I was there was full of people who had come back to Russia after long absences. Many of them told me they had lived in America from three to a dozen years. They were mostly apostate Jews from the crowded industrial centres in this country. One of them, when I left, told me rather good-naturedly that in a few years, perhaps ten, they expected to come back to America and give us the same kind of government that Russia now enjoys."

The witness also stated that large numbers of Germans were investing in Russia, taking, as he put it, "a gamble on the outcome."

"Were these apostates citizens of the United States?" asked Senator Wolcott.

"Those with whom I talked said in answer to the question that they had never been naturalized over here."

"Since your return to this country have you observed any Bolshevist tendencies here?"

"In Chicago a few nights ago I attended a meeting in the Coliseum. It was packed, and they had overflow meetings outside. They openly argued for Bolshevism in America, and now they have started a paper they call the American Bolshevist. That paper is printed in Minnesota. I see no difference between the Bolshevist movement and that of the I. W. W. here at home."

"Are all these agitators who went from America to Russia from the East Side of New York?" Senator Overman asked.

"Not all, they are from various congested centres, some I know to be from Chicago."

"Is any work being done in Russia?"

Ruin and Stagnation Everywhere.

"In the ten months I was there, the entire time under Bolshevist rule, I visited many of the great cities, and in that time I never saw one single carpenter or mason at work. There is absolutely nothing in the way of construction going on. Everywhere everything is going to destruction and ruin. I don't refer to farmers. There is still farming. I have been told that the farming is about 10 per cent. of the normal acreage. I think that too low an estimate, however. Russia is just a land of machine guns. A Government of machine guns maintained by machine guns, and they have enough ammunition on hand to keep them going for a long time to come."

"How many of these people from America would you say are holding official positions in Russia?" Senator Overman asked.

"Our best opinion is that about 25 per cent. of the officials in Russia, that is the part controlled by the Bolsheviki, are men who went back to Russia from the United States. These figures include all commissaries and Soviet members."

Concerning the position of the bourgeoisie class, the witness said it could not be pictured in words.

"They are anti-German," he added, "yet I have had them tell me that they wished the Germans would come in and take control, for at least then their property and lives would be in a measure safe."

"Did you meet Raymond Robins in Russia?" Senator Wolcott asked.

"Yes, I had a long talk with him in Moscow. His attitude was, I think, one of recognition of the Bolsheviki because, he put it, they were people in charge. He said to me that they were the only people over there 'with the guts.'"

"Russia," said Mr. Dennis, "is today a kaleidoscope. It is changing every minute. I should like to see the fellow that could draw a blueprint of that unhappy country."

Sold Guns to Germans.

Mr. Leonard was on the Russian front at the time of the Bolshevist coup.

"Did you see the propagandists at work among the Russian soldiers before the collapse?" he was asked.

"Certainly, I couldn't help it. I saw the soldiers, that is the Russian soldiers, selling machine guns to the enemy for six rubles, while field pieces were disposed of for a bottle of brandy."

"Who was in charge of the propaganda?" Senator Overman asked.

"I was told that the men in charge of it numbered about 400. Some of it was directed from the front, and some of it, and this was the most deadly, from the rear."

"Were any of them from the United States?"

"Yes, soldiers have told me that they met some from America among them."

"Where were you when the Bolsheviki gained control?"

"In Kieff."

"What did they do there?"

"The first thing was to levy 1,000,000 rubles on the city."

Senator Nelson asked Mr. Leonard to estimate the extent of Russian territory in which the Bolsheviki are in control. He replied that they were supreme in Petrograd and Moscow district and to a lesser extent in some of the other districts of which large cities are the centres.

"Were you in jail while you were over there?" Senator Nelson asked.

"Yes, Sir, several times. I was first imprisoned by the Bolsheviki at Tsaritzen, along with another American Vice Consul and his interpreter. We were leaving the place on our way to Moscow when we were overhauled and placed in arrest. We were arrested by two Commissaries, one a Russian and the other an apostate Jew. We were not told what the charge was, and when we tried to communicate with our consulate in Moscow were refused that permission. Finally we smuggled word to Mr. Poole in Moscow by a Norwegian. I understand that at the instance of Mr. Poole, the Minister for Foreign Affairs in Petrograd, wired that we be released, but the Reds in Tsaritzen ignored the order. At any rate we were not released.

"During the time you were in these various jails, what did you see in the way of atrocities which were ordered by these extraordinary commissions?" Senator Overman asked.

"Those commissions," replied Mr. Leonard, "worked on the theory that all men are guilty until proved innocent. They arrest on the authority of anything from an anonymous letter up. They are very primitive in their methods. For instance, they would come into the jail at midnight or early in the dark hours of the morning and take out prisoners and beat them up with the butts of their weapons. I have seen the wounds on the bodies of the men. At other times they would come in and call the roll of the prisoners and then inform certain numbers of them that they were to be sent to another prison. The next morning we would hear that instead of a new prison they received bullets in the head. Most of the members of these extraordinary committees are Letts, who can't even speak Russian.

"While we were in jail at Astrakhan, at about the time the attempt was made to kill Lenine, we saw a message announcing the shooting of 300 officers, all Russians of the old army, who were lined up and slaughtered as a measure of retaliation. In this jail we could see from our cell the ditch into which they threw the bodies of the dead. It appeared to be full all the time."

Peasants in Silk Stockings.

"Did you come in contact with these agitators from the east side of New York?"

"Very few of them. They are mostly in the Central Government. There are not so many in the outlying Soviets. I remember one of them, however, who was the commissaire of a city I happened to be in for a time. When he took office he seized all the silk stockings in the place and gave every peasant woman a pair. A few days later, this was in the Cossack country, he heard that the Cossacks were coming and he told me that if the worst happened he would claim American citizenship and would show his New York City library card and tell them it was an American passport. However, they did not come and so he did not have to use the card.

"There is an organization of what is known as Committees of the Poor. They were put up by the Central Government. Their members are drawn from the riffraff, the men who drank up all they had, the utterly worthless. The old Soviets, owing to the fact that the peasants in them owned land, could not be controlled, so they put these committees in power to handle the situation. I know of villages in which there were no eligibles for these committees, and in such instances Lenine sent in 'poor eligibles' to take the positions."

Would Abolish Marriage.

"What of marriage and of home life under Bolsheviki rule?" Senator Wolcott asked.

"They are aiming at free love and hope to do away with marriage; to make marriage a contract for a term of years, so to speak. That is their program."

"May be that's due to the acquisition of that horrible creature, Maxim Gorky. He is about as immoral as a person can be," remarked Senator Nelson.

"Yes, there was great rejoicing when Gorky came into the fold," Mr. Leonard answered.

"Can the Church help to save Russia?" Senator Nelson asked.

"If the Church purges itself—I mean the Russian Church—and can produce a leader it may be able to save Russia."

"What effect has Bolshevism had on Petrograd?"

"I left there Nov. 13 last. Before Bolshevism it was a city of more than 2,000,000. Today it is a city of probably not more than 500,000 people."

"What has become of the great Generals of the old Russian Army?"

"Brusiloff was shot in bed and I have heard that he was killed. I do not know the fate of Russky. I have heard that the Grand Duke Nicholas is in the Crimea, but do not know whether it is true or not. I do not know what has become of Demetrieff who fought so well for Russia."

The last witness of the day was Professor Russell Story of the University of Illinois. He said that the Bolsheviki that he met in Russia were frankly anti-Ally and were just as frankly aiming at world domination.

The hearing will continue tomorrow.

WRITS FOR REDS VACATED.

Judge Knox Dismisses Habeas Corpus Appeals as Devoid of Facts.

Judge John C. Knox in the United States District Court yesterday dismissed the writs of habeas corpus issued in behalf of the fifty-eight I. W. W. deportees on Ellis Island awaiting transfer back to their homes. Judge Knox, who had refused to sustain a single objection by the Government attorney, apparently with the view of allowing the counsel for the radicals the fullest scope for his arguments, found that no facts produced by the defense were sufficient to justify continuance of the writs. In vacating them, however, the Judge stipulated that should evidence warrant it he would reissue writs wherever an allegation of injustice or error might be entered.

While the undesirables' counsel was making the fight in court Acting Commissioner of Immigration Byron H. Uhl said he had canvassed the men on the Island and found that 50 per cent. of them opposed any plan to halt deportation, declaring that they wished to get overseas as fast as possible. Despite this, Miss Caroline A. Lowe, I. W. W. attorney, and Charles Recht, another attorney, left last night for Washington, where they will look over the records of the hearing in each case in an effort to find irregularity.

When Judge Knox opened the hearing in the afternoon Ben A. Matthews, Chief of the Criminal Division of the Federal District Attorney's office, moved to dismiss the writs on the ground that the petition was not signed by any of the men detained. He argued in effect that Miss Lowe, who drew the petition, had only second-hand information of the matter. Miss Lowe countered by declaring that she had been refused permission to see her clients, and she then took the stand, where she was questioned by Recht and by the Assistant District Attorney.

Miss Lowe said she was born in Canada and for a number of years had taught school in Kansas City, Mo., being President of the Teachers' Association there when she resigned to become an I. W. W. attorney in Chicago. She said she had been one of the counsel at the trial of "Big Bill" Haywood at Chicago. She placed the I. W. W. membership in this country at about 100,000, but said: "We have been raided so often lately that it is impossible to give the figures accurately." She disclosed that she had received a sum of money sent from Butte via Chicago, which she was endeavoring to give to the deportees. After Miss Lowe had admitted that she was unable to contribute any specification in regard to her allegation that the trials of the men had not been thorough, Judge Knox decided to dismiss the writs.

"It seems to me," he said, "to be not only impracticable, but bad in policy for courts to issue writs of habeas corpus on a petition which does not set out facts upon which a charge of wrong can justly be predicted. There are here fifty-three writs to be issued in behalf of as many men. None has signed the petition and no adequate authority for this petition has been shown in the court.

"There are 1,000 men maybe on Ellis Island, and for all I can determine from the proceedings of today the petition might apply to any or all of them. It seems that some hearing or decision of some kind has been recorded in each of these cases at the point of origin. It does not seem to be good practice for relators to wait until the eve of deportation and then ask for habeas corpus—this should have been done before.

"I would be inclined to grant writs in such cases on a proper showing that a wrong had been done. But in the present status of affairs I must deny the application and dismiss the writs, without prejudice, however, to a renewal upon showing of facts that will justify their issue. I would suggest that Mr. Recht and Mr. Matthews arrange so that the records in each case can be investigated."

The Bureau of Legal Advice, 118 East Twenty-eighth Street, issued a statement last night in which it announced that it was co-operating with the National I. W. W. in the fight to prevent the deportations. The statement set forth the bureau's belief that the convictions had not been proper.

LABORITES WARN COMMONS OF DANGER

Thomas Declares 1,000,000 Are Unemployed, and That Upheaval Is Threatened.

NATIONALIZATION IS URGED

Bonar Law Deprecates Creating Fear of Engaging in New Industrial Enterprises.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The debate on industrial unrest was opened in the House of Commons today by William Brace, Labor Member for South Glamorgan, who moved the official Labor Party amendment in reply to the speech from the Throne.

The amendment expresses regret at the absence of any mention in the speech of a definite proposal for dealing with the present causes of industrial unrest and for securing in this connection working hours and conditions of labor that would establish a higher standard of life and social well being for the people.

Mr. Brace asserted that not a little of the responsibility for the unrest lay in the failure to give responsible trade union officials such settlements by negotiations as they were entitled to receive, and in the granting of concessions regarding terms after unofficial stoppages of work, which concessions had been refused to trade union leaders before the stoppages.

Says Grievances Accumulated.

Organized labor, he said, stood strongly for the settlement of disputes by consultation and conciliation. The real cause of the present unrest, he declared, was an accumulation of unsettled grievances.

He contended that if the situation created by this unrest was to be remedied the Government must go to the root of the matter and nationalize the land, the railways, and the mines. As long as this question of nationalization was unsettled, he asserted, there would be serious industrial unrest.

J. H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railway Men, in seconding the amendment, said he had no hesitation in saying that the difficulties with the miners, railway men, and transport workers were so serious that the country might at any moment be plunged into one of the greatest industrial upheavals ever known. He said that there were 1,000,000 men and women unemployed.

Bonar Law Defends Cabinet.

It had been expected that Premier Lloyd George would intervene in the debate, but Andrew Bonar Law, Government spokesman in the House, explained that the Premier had been detained by important work and had asked him to speak instead.

Mr. Bonar Law begged the House not to force a division on the labor amendment, because, he said, it would be a bad thing thus to suggest that the Government was doing nothing to deal with the industrial situation. It was not fair, he added, to suggest that the Government was neglecting one of its chief duties.

He denied that the Government had shown a tenderness for profiteers. On the contrary, prices had been controlled or fixed in every direction, and one effect of a heavy excess profits duty likely would be an absence of working capital, which would be dangerous to the country in trade competition.

After announcing the Government's willingness to make any award to the miners retroactive, Mr. Bonar Law argued that a distinction had been drawn between the movement for obtaining better working conditions by limiting employers' profits and similar movements inflicting hardships on the community. He believed that if the people kept their heads there would be no great danger of serious unemployment. The demand for commodities of all kinds would prevent that. The dangers he foresaw were lack of credit and fear to engage in new enterprises.

Miners to Take Strike Vote.

The Miners' Federation of Great Britain, in conference at Southport today, decided to take a strike vote returnable on Feb. 22. The Federation yesterday voted to reject the proposals of the Government for meeting the miners' demand for a six-hour day and a 30 per cent. increase in wages.

The statement on the strike vote declares that "should the ballot be for a strike, notices will terminate on March 15."

"Unauthorised strikes cannot and must not be tolerated under any circumstances," is the declaration of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress in a manifesto dealing with the recent Clyde and railway strikes and addressed to all affiliated societies in Great Britain. The committee dwells upon the irregularity and defiance of agreement involved in these strikes and insists that it is the bounden duty of the minority to abide loyally by the decision of the majority in such cases.

"It is the duty of all who desire the trade union movement to be strengthened," the manifesto says, "to see that a union's action is governed in regular accordance with its constitution and rules. * * * If the movement is to progress and prosper, it is essential that strict discipline within the membership be maintained, and, where necessary, the machinery of responsible government must be assisted by the executives insisting that their decisions be carried out implicitly."

The Financial Commission of the conference met under the Presidency of ex-Premier Salandra of Italy. The Secretary of the commission was ordered to amalgamate all lists into one for presentation to the commission at its next meeting Monday.

An official bulletin issued tonight says:

A meeting of the sub-committee, appointed by the Commission on the International Régime of Ports, Waterways and Railways to study the general questions of freedom of transit and other matters, was held on Thursday at 3 o'clock at the Ministry of Public Works. The Hon. Henry White, U. S. A., was elected Chairman and Sir Herbert Llewellyn Smith, British Empire, Vice Chairman.

The committee considered a draft convention dealing with freedom of transit, submitted by the British delegation. The discussion indicated general agreement on the principles involved, but various amendments of detail were suggested. These amendments are now being collected and will form the basis of discussion at the next meeting.

MORE RAIDS IN CHICAGO.

Police and Secret Service Men Have Rounded Up 162 Reds.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—The continued arrival in this city of I. W. W. members from Seattle and other Western cities, combined with reports of a plot to assassinate President Wilson and W. G. McAdoo, by avowed followers of Bolshevism, have sprrred the Chicago police and Federal agents to extraordinary activity. Raids are of daily occurrence, for the Chicago authorities have reliable information that the Bolshevist forces in America are planning to make this city their headquarters for future operations.

A total of 162 I. W. W. members have so far been arrested by the Chicago police within the last two weeks and driven from the city.

In a raid yesterday three of the Seattle I. W. W. men were caught. They were William Bader, Henry Danielson, and Fred Enger.

Chicago police and detectives are making every effort to head off any Bolshevist or I. W. W. demonstrations here and no member of the anarchist band who has caused trouble anywhere else will be allowed to remain here.

DENIES WILSON PLOT.

Cleveland Prisoner Admits, However, He Is a Member of I. W. W.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 13.—Pietro Pierre, whose arrest here was said to have been the result of an I. W. W. plot against the lives of President Wilson and William G. McAdoo, declared today that the whole story was fiction. Pierre had been shadowed for months before his arrest by Secret Service operatives.

"I'm merely in jail now as the result of personal grudges," asid the prisoner. "The men who don't like me have framed stories about me that are as absurd as ten-cent novels. I'm no anarchist. The last thing I would think of doing would be to attempt to destroy the Government."

He admitted having been in Fort Leavenworth on Federal charges, but denied that he had ever been connected with I. W. W. plots.

"I am a member of the I. W. W.," said Pierre. "I'm not ashamed of that. Every workman who hopes for a fair deal ought to be a member of the I. W. W. But wait until I come up for trial. Things may be learned there that aren't known now."

He refused to explain this statement further.

CASHIER UNDER GUARD; BANK IS CLOSED

Cashier of a Pittsburgh Institution Accused of Perjury and Embezzlement.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—U. S. Swartz, cashier of the Park Bank, is being closely guarded by a constable in a hospital tonight. When he recovers sufficiently he will be taken before an Alderman to face charges preferred by the bank officials of perjury, fraudulent entry, and embezzlement. In the meantime the doors of the bank are closed by order of the Pennsylvania State Banking Commission, and State Examiner D. C. Cameron is in charge of the affairs of the institution.

Swartz's peculations are said to amount to more than $250,000. Directors of the bank are optimistic and believe the doors will soon be reopened and every depositor paid in full.

Swartz was found unconscious when officers called at his home to arrest him, and this gave rise to the report that he had tried to commit suicide. This rumor was discredited this afternoon, when it was announced that he was really ill and in no condition to go to jail. Alderman U. U. Kirby stated tonight that he would demand $40,000 bail from Swartz when the hearing was held.

It is said that the Directors of the bank were aware of the shortage several days ago and gave Swartz a chance to make good, which he promised to do. Failing to replace the money information was made against him by E. M. Diebold, Vice President of the bank.

The accused man was the largest stockholder in the institution. According to President E. C. Chalfant the bank has approximately $2,400,000 deposits and 12,000 depositors.

BEGIN RECASTING NATIONAL GUARD

Adjutant General Issues Order to Bring Organization Within Federal Requirements.

A WEEDING OUT NECESSARY

Some Men Too Young, Some Too Old—No New Law Necessary—Vanderbilt Committee's Report.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Initial steps were taken today by Adjt. Gen. Charles W. Berry to bring the National Guard within the Federal requirements. Following a conference with Governor Smith, a general order for the organization of malitia commands to conform to such requirements was issued from the Adjutant General's office this evening.

Earlier in the day Governor Smith had sent a special message to the Legislature informing the lawmakers that the reinstatement of National Guardsmen returning from overseas service with the American Expeditionary Force could be accomplished without any amendments to the State military law. Soon after assuming office the Governor, believing that legislation would be necessary for the purpose, appointed a special committee composed of military men, with General Cornelius Vanderbilt as Chairman, to investigate and recommend amendments to the present statute. A report from that committee received by the Governor yesterday was appended to his communication to the Legislature.

Committee Recommendations.

The Vanderbilt committee in its report made the following recommendations to guide the Adjutant General in the reorganization of the National Guard:

"1. That the Adjutant General of the State immediately order each unit commander to take all necessary steps for the reorganization of his command so that it will attain the standard required by the National Defense act of 1916.

"2. That, when a unit reports that it is reorganized according to the required standard and ready for inspection, the Adjutant General of the State shall immediately take such steps as may be necessary to obtain arms and equipment for that organization from the Federal Government.

"3. That where a unit as a company, battalion, or regiment occupies an armory, the commanding officer thereof shall make such arrangements as may be possible to have units returning from Federal service march to their respective armories with such escort, ceremony, and welcome as may be proper for the occasion, and that as soon as possible thereafter he confer with the officers of the returning organization and make such mutual arrangements as may be possible to secure their return to the military service.

"4. That where two or more officers of the same grade are available for a single position the matter shall be referred to the division commander, who will adjust it, if possible, in such manner that the best interests of the State may be conserved and both officers be utilized in some capacity, an officer with actual combat experience in the late war having the preference. Where such adjustment cannot be made satisfactorily in the manner indicated above, or should either party disagree with the ruling of the division commander, the matter should be referred to the Governor for final decision."

In the reorganization of the National Guard the requirements for enlistment laid down in the National Defense act will be adopted. The ages for grade qualifications are defined as follows in the Federal statute: All applicants must be 21 or over; Second Lieutenants must not be over 30, First Lieutenants not over 35, Captains not over 40, Majors not over 45, Lieutenant Colonels not over 50, Colonels not over 55, and commanding officers of the General grade not over 60.

Weeding Out Necessary.

The age and physical requirements laid down in the National Defense act will make a weeding-out process in the present State militia necessary. The present force was organized, after this country had gone to war and the State National Guard had been mustered into the Federal service, in compliance with the constitutional requirement that military force of at least 10,000 men should always be available within the State. With the draft law enforced and all of military age subject to its provisions, it was necessary to accept for the new State militia boys under 21 and men over 45. Adjt. Gen. Berry said that a large number of the rank and file of the present State militia was above 50 and a good many past 60.

According to the Adjutant General, special inducement will be offered former National Guardsmen who fought with the overseas forces and apply for reinstatement, provided they can fill the Federal requirements. It is understood that the new guardsmen will receive compensation from the Federal Government for drill and other guard duties. The War Department also will supply uniforms and military modern equipment to make Federalized guard regiments in the future combat units.

Under the National Defense act, this State, according to Adjutant General Berry, would be required to contribute as its quota to the Federal army in time of peace 35,000 men. The Adjutant General realizes that it will take some time to recruit the guard to that strength. At the outset it was intended that companies should be recruited to a minimum strength of 100, which would give regiments of 1,800. This is half the strength of the regiment on the fighting front in France.

"While promptness is desirable, it is realized that conditions vary in different parts of the State, so that the work of reorganization will go on with varying degrees of promptness, according to the locality," said Adjt. Gen. Berry. "The return of men from Federal service is also a factor to be considered. It is not intended that the reorganization shall be conducted in such a manner that any one desiring to serve will be shut out or that the command will become demobilized. Men who are unwilling or are unable to serve under the conditions required of Federal forces should be retained in the service under their present oath until such time as their places can be filled by those who can meet Federal requirements. Experience has shown that it will not be an easy matter to obtain personnel of proper calibre, and every effort should be made by the resourceful commander to reach every available man in his vicinity."

It was said today that all men returning from service with the Federal forces in France and joining the new National Guard would be permitted to wear chevrons and other insignia of distinction won in the fighting "over there."

FOR ROOSEVELT EXHIBITION.

Columbia Proposes Addition to Its Americanization Work.

A Roosevelt exhibition is being planned by Professor W. A. Braun, director of Columbia House, 419 West 117th Street, as part of Columbia University's Americanization program. The Roosevelt family have given their permission, and a number of public men, many friends of the Colonel, have promised their co-operation.

"Not only will such obvious things as Roosevelt portraits, busts, publis hed works, and original manuscripts be shown, buta lso illustrations showing Colonel Roosevelt's achievements, his intimate and touching letters to his children, his sayings revealing his American spirit, and special features that we can obtain only from the friends of the Colonel," said Professor Braun. "We are depending largely on their suggestions and co-operation to make the exhibition of such scope, breadth, and intimacy as to be worthy of Colonel Roosevelt. It is also proposed to give a series of illustrated lectures commemorating the life and activities of Colonel Roosevelt."

prevent the demobilization of the 369th Infantry, old 15th New York, before the unit parades in Fifth Avenue, the Rocky Mountain Club yesterday sent a message of protest to Secretary Baker. "They marched down Fifth Avenue on their way to France," said the message, "and why can't we let them march up Fifth Avenue on their way to Herlem?"

Five more members of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee wrote to Nathan S. Jonas yesterday commending his action in quitting the organization after the appointment of William R. Hearst and announcing their own resignations. Charles L. Morse of A. M. Kidder & Co., bankers at 5 Nassau Street, write in part:

"Upon my return from the South I have been informed as to the situation existing in the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee. I quite agree with you in your stand, and, being in absolute accord with the sentiments you have expressed, I have this day followed the action of the others of the committee and presentel my resignation to Mr. Riegelmann as one of the Honorary Vice Chairmen."

Charles H. Magie of the New York and Brooklyn Casket Company, 703 Bedford Avenue, wrote in part:

"As a resident of Brooklyn I consider it my duty to express to you my sincere and hearty approval of your action in connection with the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee. Your course was both manly and courageous, and in my opinion a large majority of the citizens of New York City are with you, believing that you did what was right and honorable."

In his letter Harry Zirn, a lawyer at 50 Court Street, said:

"No self-respecting and right-thinking man would have acted otherwise than you did in relation to the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Commitee. It is evident that Mr. Hearst has been trying to use the committee for his own political purposes. I have sent in my resignation as a member of the General Committee."

Darwin R. James, Jr., wrote:

"I inclose a letter from the Secretary of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee accepting my resignation, which I forwarded to Borough President Riegelmann on Feb. 4. It is only necessary for me to say that I could not remain a member of the committee under the circumstances, for I was in entire accord with the position taken by you and resented, as you properly resented, political intereference in the management of the committee organized for the purpose of extending a welcome to the boys returning from overseas. I think the affair most unfortunate."

William J. Myers of 815 Putnam Avenue also advised of his withdrawal from the committee, while a letter written at Blessonville, France, by Lieutenant W. F. Gips of the 304th Machine Gun Battalion protested in unmeasured terms against Hearst.

Eight other resignations from the committee were received yesterday at the office of Congressman John J. Delaney, who is in Washington. The letters indicated that they were from George W. Henderson, Dr. Leon Lauria, John Littleton, Walter M. Crittenden, Oswald M. Jacobs, Mrs. Maude Mayne, former Senator Charles F. Murphy, Republican leader of the Tenth Assembly District, and Benjamin J. Conboy.

Grover A. Whalen, Secretary to the Mayor, announced last night that plans had been made for a parade of the 15th Infantry, colored, on Feb. 23 under command of Colonel William B. Hayward. The parade will start at 11 o'clock from Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street and the line of march will be north to 110th Street; to Lenox Avenue, to 145th Street, where it will be dismissed. From 145th Street the regiment will be taken in special subway trains to the 71st Infantry Armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, where a dinner will be provided by the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Returning Troops. At 5 o'clock special trains will take the soldiers to Camp Upton.

Reviewing stands will be erected at Fifth Avenue and Sixtieth Street and at Lenox Avenue and 130th Street. The reviewing officers will be Secretary of War Baker, Assistant Secretary of War Emet J. Scott, Major Gen. Shanks, in charge of debarkation at Hoboken; Major Gen. Thomas Barry, Commandant of the Department of the East; Governor Smith, ex-Governor Whitman, Robert L. Moran, Acting Mayor, and Daniel G. Reid, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Mayor's Committee.

Bids for the erection of reviewing stands to accommodate 75,000 persons for the parade of the returning troops early in March were considered yesterday by the Executive Committee of the Mayor's Committee. G. J. Koch, Inc., was awarded the contract for the building the stands to accommodate 75,000 persons. The bid was for $74,000. The stands, which must be finished by March 5, will be used for three or four parades.

The first meeting of the 77th Division Home Auxiliary Association was held yesterday in Trinity Parish House, 187 Fulton Street, at which the election of officers took place. The auxiliary was formed at the request of officers of the division which is still on duty in France.

The officers elected were: Chairman, Dr. William T. Manning; Vice Chairman, Mrs. Robert Bacon; 2d Vice Chairman, Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock; 3d Vice Chairman, Mrs. T. H. Talmadge; Secretary, Mrs. Russell H. Hoadley; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Lloyd Derby; Treasurer, Stephen H. Olin, and Assistant Treasurer, Captain Elliot C. Bacon.

Among those forming the Executive Committee are: Former Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Cleveland H. Dodge, S. B. Bertrom, Major Archibald G. Thacher, Major De Lancy Jay, Walter Grafton, Captain F. S. Greene, Mrs. J. E. Curran, and L. F. H. Betts.

The association, it was announced, is making plans to welcome the division upon its return, and also to help in finding employment for the men.

CHARGE THAT JAPAN AIDS OPIUM TRADE

Sends Morphia Into China and Profits Thereby, Says China Herald Writer.

CUSTOMS CONTROL HELPS

Opium Transshipped in Kobe Harbor—Mailed Inn Postal Packages the Chinese May Not Eaxmine.

A charge that the Japanese Government secretly fosters the morphia traffic in China and other countries in the Far East is made by a correspondent in The North China Herald in its issue of Dec. 21 last. The correspondent asserts that the traffic has the financial support of the Bank of Japan, and that the Japanese postal service in China aids, although "Japan is a signatory to the agreement which forbids the import into China of morphia or of any appliances used in its manufacture or its application."

"Morphia no longer can be purchased in Europe," the correspondent writes. "The seat of industry has been transferred to Japan, and morphia is now manufactured by the Japanese themselves. Literally tens of millions of yen are transferred annually from China to Japan for the payment of Japanese morphia.

"The chief agency in the distribution of morphia in China is the Japanese post office. Morphia is imported by parcels post. No inspection of parcels in the Japanese post offices in China is permitted to the Chinese Customs Service. The service is only allowed to know what are the alleged contents of the postal packages, as stated in the Japanese invoices. Yet morphia enters China by this channel by the ton. A conservative estimate would place the amount of morphia imported by the Japanese into China in the course of a year as high as eighteen tons, and there is evidence that the amount is steadily increasing.

How Drug Is Circulated.

"In South China morphia is sold by Chinese peddlers, each of whom carries a passport certifying that he 's a native of the Island of Formosa and therefore entitled to Japanese protection. Japanese drug stores throughout China carry large stocks of morphia. Japanese medicine vendors look to morphia for their largest profits. Wherever Japanese are predominant there the trade flourishes. Through Tairen, morphia circulates throughout Manchuria and the province adjoining; through Tsingtao, morphia is distributed over Shantung province, Anhui and Kiangsu, while from Formosa morphia is carried with opium and other contraband by motor-driven fishing boats to some point on the mainland, from which it is distributed throughout the province of Fukien and the north of Kuangtung. Everywhere it is sold by Japanese under ex-territorial protection.

"While the morphia traffic is large there is every reason to believe that the opium traffic, upon which Japan is embarking with enthusiasm, is likely to prove even more lucrative. In the Calcutta opium sales Japan has become one of the considerable purchasers of Indian opium. She purchases for Formosa, where the opium trade shows a steady growth, and where opium is required for the manufacture of morphia. Sold by the Government of India, this opium is exported under permits applied for by the Japanese Government, is shipped to Kobe, and from Kobe is transshipped to Tsingtao. Large profits are being made in this trade, in which are interested some of the leading firms of Japan.

"It must be emphasized that this opium is not imported into Japan. It is transshipped in Kobe Harbor, from which point, assisted by the Japanese-controlled railway to Tsinanfu, it is smuggled through Shantung into Shanghai and the Yangtze Valley. This opium is sold in Shanghai at $500 a ball, forty balls to the chest, a total valuation of about $20,000 a chest. China's failure to sell 'for medicinal purposes' her opium at $27,000 a chest, the price asked by the opium ring, is thus explained. The price is undercut by the Japanese. There is reason to believe that between Jan. 1 and Sept. 30, 1918, not less than 2,000 chests of opium purchased in India were imported into Tsingtao through Kobe.

"Upon this amount the Japanese authorities levy a tax, which does not appear in the estimates, equivalent to Tls. 4,000 a chest, a total for the 2,000 chests at the present rate of exchange of £2,000,000 ($10,000,000.) The acquisition of this immense profit from a contraband traffic would explain the origin of those immense sums now being lavished upon the development of Tsingtao and the establishment there of Japanese commercial supremacy.

Done Under Japanese Military Control.

"It may be asked how it is possible that at Tairen, where the morphia traffic is greatest, and at Tsingtao, which is the chief centre of the Japanese opium trade, the importation of this contraband continues without the knowledge of the Chinese Maritime Customs. At both Dalny and Tsingtao these offices are wholly under the control of the Japanese and wholly manned by them. Japanese military domination would forbid in both ports any intereference in a traffic in which the Japanese authorities were interested either officially or unofficially. In Dalny, the highest civic dignity has been conferred upon the chief dealer in morphia and opium.

"Moreover, in the case of Tsingtao, by the agreement which relinquished to Japanese the exclusive charge of the Chinese Maritime Customs, any trade in which the Government is interested, contraband or not, can be carried on without the official knowledge of the customs. Article 3 of the Agreement of Dec. 2, 1905, perpetuated in the agreement of Aug. 6, 1915, provides that any goods landed in Tsingtao under 'certificates of Government' shall be free from customs examination. The way has thus been opened, not only for the illegal import of opium, but of contraband in arms.

"The Maritime Customs returns of 1917 show that forty-five piculs of boiled opium were admitted to Tsingtao in 1917, but the actual amount probably was fifty times greater. The balance enters in cases stamped 'Chun pung pin,' meaning 'military stores,' and boxes so stamped are to be seen commonly in the Japanese drug stores along the Shantung Railway.

"In 1917 morphia to the amount of nearly two tons is recorded as having entered Tairen for use in the leased territory, but no morphia is recorded as having entered Manchuria from the lease teritory during the year, nor does any entry of morphia appear in the Tsingtao customs returns for 1917. Yet a competent witness, Dr. Wu Lien-teh, states that 'almost every Japanese drug dealer or peddler in Manchuria sells morphia in one form or another, and does so with impunity, because no Japanese can be arrested without first informing the Consul.'"

DR. EATON LAUDS A. F. OF L.

One of Greatest Conservative Influences of Nation, He Says.

The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton who, as head of the National Service Section of the United States Shipping Board, traveled throughout the country delivering patriotic addresses to workers in shipyards and industrial plants, discussed last evening the work of the committee and also labor conditions in America today.

Concerning the labor situation today, Dr. Eaton said:

"Organized labor in this country as represented by the American Federation of Labor is one of the great conservative influences in the nation. Making allowances for many of its abuses of power, I can say that the federation is anti-Socialist, anti-anarchist, and anti-Bolshevist. It is an American institution, but it is in danger of attack by the Bolsheviki under various names."

As a means of continuing the "inspirational and educational" work of the National Service Section, he announced the formation of the National Service League, with Mayor W. L. Smalley of North Plainfield, N. J., President, and himself Honorary President, which would conduct its business on similar lines.

Idaho Limits Direct Primaries.

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 13.—Idaho today abandoned the direct primary system of nominating State and Congressional officers, when the Legislature passed the bill to confine the operations of the primary system to the nomination of county candidates and delegates to State conventions. The present law has been in existence ten years, although several times amended.

SUES HARKNESS ESTATE.

Kentucky Demands Taxes Aggregating $5,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 13.—On the allegation that Harry S. Harkness, who died in New York on Jan. 23, was a legal resident of this county at that time, State and county officials joined this afternoon in a suit to collect $5,000,000 from Mrs. Florence Harkness of New York, his widow, and J. W. McMiller, executor of the estate.

The petitioners allege that Harkness failed to list for taxation for three years stocks in various companies worth about $12,000,000. The Kentucky Tax Commission passed upon the petition and ordered the suit brought.

Are You Prepared For Peace

Do you fully understand the momentous questions which are being discussed and decided by the Delegates of the Nations assembled at this the most important Peace Conference in the History of the World?

Do you know the full meaning of President Wilson's famous fourteen points? What is meant by "self determination of small peoples"? Are you familiar with the geography of Europe? Old boundary lines will be obliterated and new frontiers established. Do you fully appreciate the underlying reasons for the determination of such lines? Are you familiar with the history of Alsace-Lorraine and why Germany has so tenaciously held to these provinces? What is Italia Irredenta? Who are the Czecho-Slavs, Jugo-Slovaks and the Serbo-Croats? Many of the questions to be decided at the Peace Conference go deep in history, in diplomacy, in court intrigue, in the Franco-Prussian war; the wars between Italy, Austria, Germany, Denmark and Russia. The ghosts of Catherine of Russia, Frederick the Great, William the First, of Bismarck, of Napoleon, play an important part at the Peace Conference.

There never has been a time when the American man or woman needed correct, authoritative and comprehensive information as during this great period in the world's history. The maze of questions with their roots far back in history are absolutely baffling to clear understanding without the aid of a reliable work close at hand. The Encyclopaedia Britannica in such an emergency is absolutely necessary. It is the patriotic duty of the average man and woman to understand the problems confronting the great statesmen of our country and the world, in bringing forth a peace which will prevent the Nations of the world being again thrown into the cataclysm of bloody wars. As a citizen of a democracy you will be called on to ratify this peace settlement, which will have such far-reaching results that our posterity for many generations to come will feel the effects and you must be so posted that you can intelligently cast your vote.

The standing of this great work is attested to by the fact that President Wilson had placed in the Conference Room of the S. S. George Washington a set of the Encyclopaedia Britannica where he could consult it repeatedly, for President Wilson knows that the Britannica furnishes accurate, comprehensive and reliable information and as a background of knowledge it is invaluable to him. It furnishes knowledge to this great statesman as well as to the man in every walk of life, whether this man be a clerk, banker, professional man, business man, manufacturer, and again to the woman, to the housewife and to the business woman. Even President Wilson, as wide as his education, as great as his knowledge and his intelligence, and with as powerful a brain, cannot carry all the knowledge he needs in his head, and turns to the great Encyclopaedia Britannica for reliable, stable, comprehensive information. Is not the example of such a man enough for you?

BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLOTHING

Good taste demands the utmost simplicity in the day dress or school outfit of a boy or girl.

In many of our select schools distinct limitations govern the dress of the pupils.

For years we have provided in carefully designed models clothing for boys and girls which, while noticeable for its restraint, possesses marked distinction and individuality. This we attribute to the importance we attach to the providing for our clothing for boys and girls both washable and woolen fabrics, imported by us exclusively for this purpose.

Sailor Suits for boys from 3 to 9 years in correct English models; made of imported wash fabrics and serges.

Norfolk Suits for boys from 7 to 16 years in imported tweeds and homespuns.

Complete assortments of headwear, furnishings and footwear for boys.

Girls' Wash Dresses for school wear in regulation models and other simple designs for girls from 4 to 14.

Regulation Middy Blouses for girls from 4 to 12 years made of imported wash fabrics, separately or with pleated skirts and bloomers.

Right and Wrong Ways to Operate a Truck

Merely keeping a truck out of the repair man's hands does not necessarily mean that you are running it right. Simple methods there are by the hundreds for trimming down costs, increasing mileage, and raising every phase of a truck's efficiency. Exactly what these methods are and how you can use them in your business is here specifically told.

"WHAT!" snapped Preston, screwing his face into an expression of utter disbelief, "you don't mean to tell me it costs you that much to deliver a package. Why, we deliver in the same radius for one-third less than it costs you. And on top of that we deliver almost twice the number of packages in the same time."

It all happened in Morton's office. A friend of his dropped in for a visit. They got to talking about motor truck deliveries. Morton prided himself on his low cost and speed of delivery. And he had a right to be proud of it, for he had made big savings in his firm's former best record.

Then along came his friend Preston. They compared notes, figures, experiences. And at the end of it all Morton, experienced though he was, admitted that he had a lot to learn.

That was last September. Preston's ideas on handling motor trucks were put into immediate operation. And the result? This—Morton has since cut his delivery costs by one-third, and more than doubled his number of deliveries per truck per day. And this without increasing expenses by a single penny.

Experiences of Thousands of Users

THIS experience is typical with motor trucks. Many a man who is already satisfied with the performance of his trucks has only scratched the surface of their efficiency. He could, if he only knew how, greatly improve his present efficiency record. Costs that he already considers low could be trimmed down. Delivery time could be shortened. Radius of delivery could be increased. And a hundred and one other advantages could be gained—all without increasing expenses by a single penny.

It's safe to say that ninety out of every hundred motor-truck users could do this. That they are not already doing it is no reflection on them. The motor truck is comparatively new. Hit-or-miss methods were inevitable at the start. Every new idea or product has to go through this stage. The motor truck was no exception. There was no record of experience to guide users. Each had to find out for himself what to do and what not to do.

No one man, no matter how capable, can "know it all." The result is that, in the absence of experience records, many a truck user is not getting anything like the efficiency out of his trucks which they are capable of giving. He may already be satisfied with their performance, yes! But they'll produce much bigger results—and give still greater satisfaction—if only they are operated in the right way.

But what is the right way? That used to be a poser. What was right for one man was wrong for another. But now this question, which has always perplexed truck users, has definitely and conclusively been answered. For a personal man-to-man investigation has been made, and the experiences of each checked one against the other, proved and verified, and put down on paper.

Here is the way it all came about. Each month hundreds of requests came to SYSTEM, The Magazine of Business, for definite information on all phases of truck operation. These requests grew in volume, which indicated a widespread need for definite data on motor trucks. So SYSTEM sent skilled investigators throughout the country to look into motor truck conditions at first hand.

By reason of the field it covers, its highly specialized organization, and its intimate connections with thousands of business houses throughout the country, SYSTEM was especially qualified to perform this great work. The question of editorial direction was an important one. SYSTEM'S editorial staff was fortunate to obtain the enthusiastic co-operation of Mr. S. V. Norton, whose unusually wide range of experience with motor trucks qualifies him to speak as an authority. Capt. B. B. Lipsner, U. S. R., another recognized expert, also collaborated.

Thousands of users, in every conceivable line of business the country over, were called upon. Motor truck manufacturers, truck users, tire manufacturers, automobile clubs and associations, and governmental departments enthusiastically co-operated in this work of collecting definite data. They realized the great value it would be to them individually as well as to the entire industry.

Sent to You on Approval

THIS exhaustive investigation is now published in book form. It is called "THE MOTOR TRUCK AS AN AID TO BUSINESS PROFITS." It is a veritable encyclopedia of motor truck information. Simply turn to the handy index. There you'll find the complete answer to practically every question of truck operation as easily as you find a word in a dictionary.

This great book has started many a man into a realization of what he has been missing with his trucks. It's reasonable to suppose that it will startle you. Remember, it gives not pet theories, but definite, tangible facts based on the actual experiences of thousands of truck users the country over.

To get the book, merely fill in and mail the coupon. Send no money. Book goes to you by return mail, wholly on approval—free of charge or obligation. Look it over carefully. Test it in every way you can think of. Prove its merit for yourself. Keep it five days. Then if at the end of this time you don't want it, return it and the transaction is closed. And if you keep it, as you surely will, simply send $7.80 in full payment on receipt of bill.

Owing to the high cost of producing this book, it obviously cannot be sent broadcast on approval. The approval offer must necessarily be limited to rated firms, or individuals who have the book sent to their business address. Or you can remit $7.80 with order on the distinct understanding that you can return the book and have your money refunded instantly should the book not satisfy you in every way.

New Motor Vehicle Bill.

Colonel Edward S. Cornell of the National Highways Protective Society, who did not attend the recent conferences at the Traffic Court at which amendments to the present laws regulating motor vehicles were drawn up, announced yesterday that Senator John J. Mackrell of Troy had introduced at Albany a bill creating a Motor Vehicle Department in charge of a Commissioner. He said the bill had the approval of safety and other societies, but is not approved by those who were present at the Traffic Court meetings, which Secretary of State Hugo attended. He pointed out that if the present law is amended it will still "limp so badly" that it will be of little value.

SAYS DEMOTION MADE COLONEL A SUICIDE

Representative Gallivan Declares Wyoming Guardsman Was Wronged by Regulars.

REAL FATE JUST REVEALED

First Report Said "Killed in Action"—Other Cases of Demotion Board's Misfreatment Charged.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Representative James A. Gallivan of Massachusetts told the House today that Colonel Joseph Cavander of Wyoming was demoted by the Demotion Board at Blois, France, and felt so humiliated that he left the so-called "canning factory" and committed suicide. Reports, issued by the War Department in September, said that he had been "killed in action" but this was changed yesterday to read "died from self-inflicted wounds."

Mr. Gallivan made this assertion on the word of a Colonel of the Regular Army, and the statement of Representative Mondell of Wyoming, during continued discussion of alleged action of the "Leavenworth clique" in demoting National Guard officers just before the armistice was signed to make way for the elevation of West Point graduates.

The letter from the Colonel of Regulars read by Gallivan, was as follows:

"Colonel Joseph Cavander, who left Wyoming with as good a regiment of husky Westerners as was ever organized, and who was transferred from the infantry to the artillery with no choice, and who took up the new work with vim and enthusiasm, and put together a regiment whose record has not been excelled, and who were on the fighting line for five long months, was detached from the regiment and sent to the same board, where he was informed that he could take a Captain's commission or go home.

"Broken-hearted, he walked over to the hotel and fired a 45-calibre pistol bullet into his brain, and then the casualty reports showed him 'killed in action,' and I have in mind at least fifty generals, colonels, and lieutenant colonels of the National Guard who have met disgrace at this tribunal of injustice, and I will be glad to furnish the names and addresses if they are needed.

"We stood this long without a murmur while the war was going on, for the reason that nothing mattered much if the boche won, and we were willing to suffer even these things, in order to maintain harmony in our own forces, but now we feel that justice must be done."

"And here is the climax of that brave man's death," added Mr. Gallivan. "Early reports did say that this officer had been killed in action. But Representative Mondell of Wyoming told me today that the War Department had informed him that the records had been corrected to show that he died of self-inflicted wounds."

Another letter concerning General Hill of Illinois was read as follows:

"General Hill of Illinois, one of the most able and conscientious officers that the National Guard ever produced, was haled before the tribunal, whose door should have upon it, 'All Who Enter Here Leave Hope Behind,' and told he could accept a Colonel's commission in the S O S or a Major's commission in the line, and he stated that he came over here to fight, and was going to fight if he had to fight as a private. He went to the line as a Major, and every officer and man who knew him testified to his soldierly conduct and ability. I have visited his grave near Epionville, in an orchard, in that shell-torn Argonne Forest, and as I stood at that shrine I felt that if God ever cursed a human being he surely would trouble the consciences of that board, who never smelled powder, but who have broken the hearts of many patriotic American officers."

READING SOON TO SAIL.

Slight Illness Delays Ambassador's Return to America.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Associated Press is authoritatively informed that the Earl of Reading, British Ambassador to the United States, will return to America in about a week's time.

The Ambassador had intended to sail on the Olympic, but owing to an illness which is confining him to his room he was compelled to postpone his departure. If he is sufficiently improved, it is stated, he will sail on the Aquitania.

Why Swift & Company Handle Poultry, Eggs, Butter and Cheese

Swift & Company went into the produce business because they saw a crying need for the kind of service they were equipped to perform.

The produce business was in chaos. Collecting, transportation, preparation and distribution was hit-or-miss, with delay, deterioration and loss on every hand.

The farmer was at the mercy of an uncertain, localized market. He had no way of reaching through to the people who needed what he was raising for them. There was no premium upon improving his stocks, for grading was lax or lacking.

The consumer had to accept produce that, as a rule, had no known responsible name behind it. He had no way of knowing how long the eggs or the butter he was buying had been lying around in miscellaneous lots in the back room of a country store. Much of the poultry was not properly refrigerated before shipment or properly protected by refrigeration in transit.

Swift & Company's initiative brought system to this chaos. Their organization, equipment, and experience in handling perishable food products were already adjusted to the task. Their refrigerator cars, branch houses, central points, far-reaching connections, trained sales force, supplied just what was demanded.

Now the farmer has a daily cash market in touch with the nation's needs with better prices. Standardization makes better produce more profitable. More consumers are served with better, fresher, finer foodstuffs.

Nothing suffers from this save inefficiency, which has no claim upon public support.

Why do people sleep

Remember the morning you woke up with a feeling that you really had been sound asleep all night? Never felt so well before! Nor looked so fresh and rested—nor got things done so easily.

IT WAS the deep sleep that did it. Nothing keeps us looking so young or feeling so vigorous as enough deep, restful sleep—every nerve and muscle relaxed.

Do you ever really relax?

The chances are you don't.

No matter what you do to bring sleep, you will never sleep sound unless your bed invites perfect relaxation. Most beds have a loose joint that squeaks or rattles. Even a slight noise sets your nerves on edge.

There is not a person anywhere but will sleep better for doing away with the old wooden bed or loose-jointed noisy metal bed and getting a Simmons Metal Bed.

Why the Simmons Bed?

Thousands who for years have been "light sleepers"—waking at every sound—sleep the night through on a Simmons Bed.

The Simmons Metal Bed is strong and rigid where the average bed is weakest—in the corner locks.

These are some of the Simmons basic patents—the pressed steel corner locks—they have much longer locking surfaces than you find in the average bed. In fact, it is the pressed steel corner locks that have made possible the Simmons new Three-piece Bed—the spring made in a single unit with the side rails.

The Simmons Company of Kenosha, Wisconsin, San Francisco, California, Newark, New Jersey and Montreal, Canada, has been specializing for two generations in making the best metal beds that can be produced.

And what is more, Simmons Beds are produced complete by the Simmons Organization.

Every item, every detail made straightforward from the bulk metal under the Simmons roof—tubing, corner lock, fittings and springs; all the processes of forging, rolling, machining, brazing, grinding, polishing, finishing—to the last final touch of enamel or lacquer.

Simmons styles are good. Whatever your bedroom decoration scheme, there is a Simmons Bed that "belongs."

The tubing generous, massive—never skimpy or weak.

Beautifully finished. Lacquer perfect. Enamel free from pin-holes, blisters and lumps—clear and smooth.

Don't Blame Your Mattress for the Faults of Your Spring!

Not even a Simmons Bed can help you much if your spring is slack or weak—if it sags so that you roll down into a hollow.

Even a slight sag throws a strain on the muscles of your body.

And you're very lucky indeed if your spring never creaks, never knocks or rattles, just when you finally snuggle down to sleep!

The strange part of it is that you may not be conscious of waking. But your nervous system has been half awake a good part of the night.

Small wonder if you feel all fagged out in the morning!

How Simmons Springs are Built for Sleep

Long ago, this company realized that a good spring is quite as essential to sleep as a good bed.

Simmons Springs are built for sleep.

A good spring! Taut but elastic—never slack.

A spring so designed and constructed that it makes a flat, resilient foundation for the mattress.

A spring that gives to the contours of the body—supports the spine and muscles in any sleeping position—invites relaxation and promotes natural, restful sleep.

A spring that fits four-square and firm on the bed—that does not creak, knock or rattle.

Simmons Springs are designed on scientific principles—and built right.

Where your ordinary spring is made of tinned fabric, apt to rust and stain the bedding—Simmons Fabric Springs are electroplated, long-wearing and rust-proof.

See a Simmons Spring in with a group of various makes and your eye will pick it out immediately by the sturdy look.

You will rate its smooth finish—no corners or loose ends to tear the bedding.

You will be surprised to find that Simmons Springs cost little if any more than ordinary springs. They are worth more—much more.

You can identify Simmons Springs by the Simmons Company name displayed on the end rail of each spring.

These remarkable springs are not sold by every dealer in furniture. But you will see them in the leading stores of your community—the house-furnishing, department and general stores where you would expect to find first class goods.

It will pay you to find one of these quality-merchants. We shall be glad to tell you their names.

STRIKE OF BUILDERS AWAITS APPROVAL

Men in Thirty Trades to Quit at Noon on Saturday if Federation Gives Its Sanction.

NO CHANGE UNDER TRUCE

Carpenters Return to Association Jobs—Demand $6.50 per Day—Wages Elsewhere Cited.

The expected settlement of the differences between union carpenters and the Building Trades Employers' Association did not take place yesterday, although, as agreed, carpenters on local jobs went back to work with such allied building trade unionists as were employed on association jobs. A general strike of thirty allied trades will begin on Saturday at noon, when the truce ends, it was announced last night, if the Executive Council of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, which meets here today, gives its sanction to such action.

William L. Hutcheson, President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and Robert P. Brindell, Vice President of that organization, and Ronald P. Taylor, President of the Building Trades Employers' Association, and a committee met yesterday under the terms of the truce. When the conference was over Mr. Taylor issued the following statement:

"A committee of the Employers' Association met Mr. Hutcheson and Mr. Brindell this forenoon. They met again at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The conference came to an end when Mr. Hutcheson stated that the only condition of settlement that he would accept would be the payment to the carpenters of a wage of $6.50 per day beginning Monday morning, Feb. 17."

The strike would undoubtedly be renewed on Monday morning if no settlement was reached before that time, said union leaders, who pointed out that the case would be reviewed by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor today, with a view to extending the strike to the thirty crafts of the building trades.

"When I was discussing the case with Mr. Taylor I cited that carpenters were getting 80 cents an hour in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Bridgeport, Youngstown, and many other cities," said Mr. Hutcheson last night. "The carpenters in New York are asking only 81¼ cents an hour where the cost of living is so much greater.

"In reply to this Mr. Taylor said: You are dealing with weak sisters in those cities if you are getting that rate an hour for your men. He would not consider the humanitarian side of the case."

Milton Snelling, International President of the Hoisting Engineers' Union, said last night that under the truce some of his men were allowed to return to work for one contractor on the army base, but another, working on the same project, refused them employment. He said the organization of hoisting engineers had been loyal during the war, had faithfully lived up to its agreement with the association; men had worked for $33 a week when they could have obtained double that amount from other contractors. In other cities, he added, employers voluntarily increased their wages beyond the price stipulated in the agreement.

If the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, of which Mr. Hutcheson is a member, sanctions a general strike in the allied building trades on association work today, it was said last night that probably 325,000 union members in the thirty building crafts would be affected, though not all of this number were at present employed.

CHARGES BRUTALITY AGAIN.

Schlesinger Threatens to Appeal to Aldermen in Garment Strike.

Although the police in the district where most dress and waist manufacturing is done denied yesterday that there was basis for charges of violence made by Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Mr. Schlesinger asserted last night that unless the violence ceased he would bring the matter directly to the attention of the Board of Aldermen, which meets next Saturday.

Inspector Bolan was not at the headquarters of the Third Inspection District yesterday, but a Lieutenant in charge declared that the strikers had been arrested while picketing only for disorderly conduct and because they used threatening language. The district was being properly policed, he added, with two or three policemen assigned to some blocks.

"The mistreatment of the girl pickets in the dress and waist strike by the police continues unabated," said Mr. Schlesinger in a statement last night. "The brutality displayed by some of the men in uniform and others in civilian clothes, who pose as private detectives, surpasses everything that I have witnessed in my experience in any garment workers' strike in New York.

"The Merchants' Association, in its eagerness to assist the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, in a letter to Acting Mayor Moran, today urges a still harsher policy against the women strikers. It would appear that the mere fact that a number of these girls were born in Russia and Italy is sufficient to hurl against them the epithet of 'Bolshevism' and to rob them of their right to a square deal and impartial treatment."

Harry Gordon, counsel for the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, said last night that the association members had employed private detectives solely for the protection of property and the workers who had been employed during the strike.

DECREES A 5-DAY WEEK TO END TEXTILE STRIKE

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—A decision which is expected to end the strike of Eastern textile workers was reached by the War Labor Board tonight, when a temporary working basis of an eight-and-one-half hour day and a five-day week was announced. It was estimated by labor leaders that 90 per cent. of the idle employes would resume work on Monday.

A joint appeal by silk manufacturers and labor leaders of 40,000 striking textile workers in the East asked the board to standardize the hours of work in the silk industry and expressed a common purpose in desiring to counteract the activities of the I. W. W. and other radical elements resulted in the decision.

company Lieutenant came along and commanded the soldier to give up the cigarettes.

"I won't do it, and I don't give a —— for anybody," retorted the soldier.

General Ansell went on to tell of the boy being tried by court-martial, convicted, and sentenced to dishonorable discharge and forty years in jail. The commanding officer of his regiment, on reviewing the case, reduced the sentence to ten years.

"Now it must appear that this was a serious offense," said General Ansell. "But the facts must be considered as they were to get an insight into the matter. Here was a raw recruit, new to army life, in the turmoil of a kitchen, quite likely upset by a reproof that might have been harshly made and letting his temper get the better of him. For this he was sentenced to forty years in jail.

"In many instances—I am not citing exceptions—the same brutally excessive sentences have been imposed for trivial offenses.

"Any system that would impose such a sentence as that upon the boy you speak of is un-American," commented Senator Thomas. "It would make Bolsheviki out of the relatives of a man. I want to say that the officer who would act that way to a soldier is a —— fool."

"You don't want that go upon the record?" suggested Senator Chamberlain.

"Yes, I do," insisted Senator Thomas, hotly. "I say that officer was a —— fool, and ought himself to have been court-martialed. Any one imposing such a sentence ought to be court-martialed, too. It is easy to see why in peace times we cannot get men to go into our army."

General Ansell remarked that, outside of the power of review over the court-martial by a command officer, the only avenue left open to a soldier under sentence is the exercise of executive clemency by the President.

Some Representative Cases.

The General read from a memorandum he wrote and submitted to Secretary Baker, protesting against the system of court-martial. He called it "personal absolutism," and blamed the Chief of Staff and the Inspector General of the Army for allowing such a system to prevail.

General Ansell spoke of a soldier who had deserted from the army at West Point and who remained away from duty for five months being sentenced to death. Investigation by General Ansell developed that he had gone home, fearing that things were not going well, to find his father dying from paralysis.

"That boy remained with his father until he died," said General Ansell. "The day after, he reported back for duty."

The death sentence was set aside, after General Ansell's investigation, but the General did not know what had happened to the boy.

Another boy, the General said, had been sentenced to fifteen years for deserting for forty days. He had gone home to a sick wife and child. General Ansell felt that the circumstances "did not justify desertion, but extenuated it."

Upon a soldier in France, General Ansell said, the death sentence had been imposed for declining to drill after having been subjected to extreme exposure to cold for twenty-four hours. He insisted he was not able to stand. Two others were sentenced to death for sleeping on post, after having been on duty for four days with hardly any sleep. General Ansell set these sentences aside, he said, after the War Department had declined to act.

"It must be remembered," said General Ansell, "that these men seldom have adequate counsel and don't know how to defend themselves. The Government is represented by able counsel, and the offender has all the odds against him."

Senator Chamberlain wanted to know if it would not be advisable for Congress to pass a law to reinstate men who have been dishonorably discharged and heavily punished for slight offenses.

"It would be commendable if that could be done," replied General Ansell. "The dishonorable discharge is a stigma that must cling to a man through life. It is meant to. When an injustice is done, as has happened so often in our courts-martial, it seems only fair that reparation be made to the injured man."

SENATE TO WORK AT NIGHT.

Democrats Try to Speed Up as End of Congress Draws Near.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—In an effort to clear the congested legislative calendar and thus remove the necessity for the early convening of the new Congress in extra session, Democratic Senators decided at a conference tonight to hold night sessions of the Senate until Congress adjourns sine die March 4.

The conference decision was unanimous and also included an agreement to convene the Senate an hour earlier each day—11 o'clock instead of noon.

The night sessions will begin tomorrow, but the Senate will not start meeting at 11 o'clock until Saturday. The conference approved the decision of the Democratic Steering Committee to extend the daily sittings and several leaders expressed the opinion that the Senate could dispose of all necessary bills before the session ends. Other prominent Democrats, however, said they did not believe that even with extended sessions all the appropriations could be passed.

PERIOD VOCALION
Style 1496 Price $285

EITHER OF THESE BEAUTIFUL VOCALIONS

Delivered to you for a moderate down payment—balance in monthly terms of $15

THE instrument shown at the left is the famous Style 700 Aeolian-Vocalion, price $285. Many people consider this the most beautiful of any of the regular Upright Vocalion line. It has a pure, full tone, of great power and richness. Its volume may be beautifully modified in two ways; by the wonderful Graduola, with which you may graduate the flow of melody as you will, or by the Volunome—an ingenious device for setting the Vocalion to play at "Piano", "Forte", etc., until a change in volume is desired.

The superior Vocalion Automatic Stop, the famous Vocalion Universal Tone Arm for playing all records, and eight finest quality record albums are included in the splendid equipment of this Vocalion.

Shown above is Period Vocalion number 1496, price $285, designed in the Gothic Windsor manner—one of the sixteen handsome Period Models that have attracted such wide attention. Like its prototype, the Windsor chair, the Gothic Windsor Vocalion will harmonize with any style of furnishing, and will impart to the room in which it is used that same attractive atmosphere of the long ago.

Period Vocalions are all equipped with the Graduola, with the Universal Tone Arm, and the Vocalion Automatic Stop, and in addition they contain a new and most convenient record filing device. In choosing either of these Vocalions, you may feel confident that you are securing a phonograph of highest quality—superior in tone, in appearance, and richer in special features than any other phonograph on the market.

THE EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF THE U. S.
120 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Of all the Equitable's sixty years of public service, 1918 was by far the most important and successful.

During that year the greatest epidemic in America's history carried off over 400,000 people, most of them in the young and healthful period of life.

Of the $27,799,026 distributed in death claims by the Equitable in 1918, to the beneficiaries under its policies, $5,200,000 was directly due to the epidemic of Influenza and Pneumonia, emphasizing the urgent need of life insurance and of securing it at an early age.

In 1918 the Equitable distributed to its policyholders in Death Claims, Endowments, Dividends and other benefits, $65,412,490. It also promptly met all the obligations imposed by the Government during the great war. Liberty Bonds to the amount of $54,000,000 were purchased during 1918. To do this it was necessary for the Society to borrow $23,000,000.

The following figures are from the Society's 59th Annual Statement, which will be furnished on request:

OUTSTANDING INSURANCE, Dec. 31, 1918,		$1,924,538,578
Increase over 1917, $1[illegible]9,669,670
NEW INSURANCE IN 1918		$273,223,559
Increase over 1917, $2[illegible],878,907
INSURANCE RESERVE	$483,817,197
Balance due Banks, Liberty Bond a/c	21,000,000
Other Liabilities	18,085,970	$522,903,167
SURPLUS RESERVES:
For distribution to Policyholders, 1919	$18,016,362
Awaiting apportionment on deferred dividend policies	57,967,578
For Contingencies	12,926,813	$88,910,753
ASSETS, December 31, 1918		$611,813,920

Through GROUP INSURANCE the Equitable, in 1918, increased the protection furnished by employers to their employes to the extent of $80,000,000. The value of this protection was strikingly illustrated during the epidemic.

There was a marked gain in policies giving beneficiaries Monthly Incomes for life, as well as in Business Insurance, and in policies to cover Inheritance Taxes.

There was also a large increase in life policies providing for (1) waiver of premiums if totally disabled, (2) continuous income during total disability, and (3) double payment in case of accidental death.

As an extension of this branch of Equitable service, policies are now issued giving complete accident and health coverage, and providing for weekly incomes for disabilities caused by accident and disease.

W. A. DAY,
President.

MY FIRST DAY HERE, BY PHILIP GIBBS

Whirl of Traffic and Commotion of Lights Bewildering to the English Writer.

FINDS FRIENDLY RESCUERS

And Swaps Battlefield Reminiscences with British and Americans from "Over There."

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

The Cunard liner Carmania had passed Staten Island and was drawing near to the Statue of Liberty before I had my first glimpse of New York. The sky was clear and steel-blue over the Hudson River, which was covered with big and little craft, but there was a mist over the water, and the City of New York was veiled by it. I stood in the bow of the ship staring out, eager to see that view which has been described a thousand times by many great writers, so that I had a mental vision of it.

Gradually it appeared, a phantom city towering faintly through the sun-lit mists and then appeared in sharper outline but still vague and ghostlike out of the water. I drew my breath and felt a queer excitement and awe. It was more wonderful and more beautiful than any description I had read.

This great city with its high, straight towers and immense masses of architecture upon which the sunlight gleamed between gulfs of black shadow-worlds, was like some visionary's dream of a new world capital not yet materialized. It was fantastic, colossal, but unsubstantial.

It seemed to have no actuality and to be no more than a mirage created by the fevered imagination of man. But gradually, as the ship made her way forward, and the mists were dispelled, the city became real. Those great vague masses of architecture, those immense sky-reaching towers, had sharp outlines and solidity.

Baffled by High Buildings.

I tried to count the windows and the stories in the Woolworth Building, which rose high like an immense cathedral in the midst of buildings almost as tall as that, until I lost count. This city was real, there beyond the water, and was no dream of a wild imagination, but the architecture of the civilized people whom I had met with a sense of comfort and gladness along roads and villages behind the battlefront when we were hard pressed and the coming of the American armies was the promise of victory at a time when we were nearer to defeat than the world then knew.

When I left the steamer and passed the customs and drove into the City of New York I was scared—"scared stiff," as the English soldiers say. I felt absurdly and pitifully ignorant of a city which was a world away from anything I had seen in other parts of the world. I had come with the idea of telling the American people something of the war on the western front, but the audacity of such a thing appalled me. When for the first time I drove through New York streets I felt the smallest thing on earth, smaller than any "cootie" hiding in the trenches under the bombardment of 2,000 guns.

Through the windows of the automobile I could not see the topmost heights of the buildings on either side. They towered up to vast altitudes, story upon story, and I seemed to be driving down deep canyons with high cliffs rising sheer and straight on both sides, but cliffs pierced with innumerable windows, and in every window a display of wealth and elegance of civilization which put the remembrance of cities like Paris and London into insignificance. New York appeared to me stupendous, and on a vaster scale. I was caught up in the whirl of it. I became a little creature without will power or resistance in a torrent of life.

I lunched at the Vanderbilt Hotel and had a little restfulness in a quiet corner of a beautiful restaurant from which I watched American men and women all round me with a sense of having come into a new phase of civilization more complicated than anything I had seen in Europe with greater opportunities of luxury and immense reserves of power. I felt also that sense of being a "new chum" among these people with that feeling of loneliness and apprehension which came to young officers of ours when they came first to the Western front and the forward trenches in the midst of a vast human organization—a war machine with its myriad activities for destructive purpose, in which every man was familiar with his job and knew his way about in places of famous names, all strange and unknown to the man who had first come out.

But I had not been more than a few minutes in the city before I was aware of friendly hands groping out through the whirl of New York life to give me a welcome, and of friendly voices coming to me down many wires with a greeting. Before I had registered at the hotel some one said, "There's a call for you," and the telephone receiver was waiting unhooked. "Hello, is that you?" said a voice, and I knew it as the voice of a soldier whom I had last met in a French château on the road to Arras, when the sun was not shining brightly on our arms. I had not registered, and hardly knew myself what hotel would be my dwelling place, but somehow or other I had been found by this friend, and it seemed to me the quickest thing I had known. "Good for New York," I said, "but I do not know how it is done."

Then I learned that in New York one lives at the end of telephone wires with little bells calling to one all day long. Before the baggage was dumped in my bedroom the little bell rang and the telephone operator, who had a cheery girl's voice, said: "Welcome to our city, Philip Gibbs—and here's another call for you."

Strangers came out of that big life in the streets and asked all sorts of things about the state of Europe, of which I did not know the answer, so that I had to "camouflage" the depths of my ignorance; and while they talked the telephone bells went on ringing every two or three minutes, so that I became confused in mind and made sixteen engagements which overlapped each other, tied myself into hopeless tangles of accepted invitations, and forgot whether I was talking into a telephone or to another visitor, and shouted in a quiet bedroom far above the noises of the streets.

But I lost the sense of loneliness in a great city and felt a wonderful friendliness surrounding me and reaching out to me in New York because I was an Englishman who had been through the war, which was their war as well as ours.

In a Melodious Oasis.

Drifting like a straw on a torrent, without any power of resistance, but with a growing optimism that I should not be broken in the whirl of it, I found myself carried into a quieter backwater which was the tea lounge of the Biltmore Hotel. Quieter, but not silent, because for the first time off the stage I heard a real jazz band, and above its remarkable melody there was the noise of many people talking and laughing round little tables in a vast and beautiful room.

I sat at one little table and plunged into one of those group conversations and found that the men and women about me were most charming to a shy creature like myself. They were telling me of their experiences in the war and I was surprised to find that in this one group there were three English officers that knew as much about the old Ypres salient as I did and ladies who had been working among English and Irish soldiers since the beginning of the war. After all, the Atlantic was but a narrow strip and the war had bridged it, and America had gone to Europe and Europe to America and the people had begun to know each other with understanding.

There were French officers in the tea room as well as American and English officers, and they had seen the fighting qualities of each other's troops, whose blood had moistened the same battlefields. And hanging from the windows of clubs and business houses there were long banners with stars on the outside edge, showing how many men from that home had fallen on the field of honor. There were many of these golden stars of death above the heads of these people seething there in those whirlpools of life between Fifth Avenue and Broadway.

I went into Broadway alone in the evening just about dusk and that scared feeling came back to me and I felt more afraid of the City of New York than when I had walked through other cities like Arras and Amiens when shells were bursting, though I had not liked that.

Broadway! Sixteen motor cars made a leap for my body as I stared up at a wild commotion of lights on the high buildings. I escaped the motor cars by the width of a heel, but more, lights caught hold of my senses and captured them. There were fountains of light leaping above the topmost stories of fantastic buildings which seemed to touch the skies and cascades of light falling down steep walls and lights that wriggled and squirmed and whirled in marvelous combinations.

Pictures flashed out and began to play strange pantomimes. There were rows of grotesque little men who went through a form of physical exercise which brought a laugh out of my heart in the midst of the crowd which seethed about me. There was a marvelous kitten of light playing with a gigantic reel of cotton and urgent messages flashed into my soul imploring me to buy somebody's chewing gum and somebody's boots and all kinds of things which I did not want at that moment. My eyes were dazzled and bewildered and my senses dazed and the tide of traffic about me was a roaring torrent of which I was a little human atom with hair standing on end beneath my hat. I was terrified of Broadway and fled from it, feeling suddenly alone in all that teeming crowd and in need of a friendly hand.

Many friendly hands took hold of mine in the City Club, and the sincerity of the friendship that was offered me there has dispelled forever any fear that I had of New York. That night I dined with the club of the allied press in a room of the City Club, so cozy and so like our own literary clubs in another Street of Adventure at home, that I lost all sense of being a stranger and a "new chum." And around me were familiar faces of writing men who had chronicled the history of the world before the war came, and whom I had met in many cities of Europe. Through the war they have given their pens to the cause of the Allies and have played the game honestly, bravely, and with understanding of the perils which faced our civilization and all humanity.

Among them was Sir Arthur Pearson, who made a noble and moving speech which revealed the heights of human courage in those who have been blinded in our battles and have shown a splendid defiance of their agony and loss. We listened to him with reverence and admiration, and after that there were other speeches by Americans and English which should have reached beyond that corner in New York because they prove that whatever friction may come between the American and British peoples, whatever troubles may arise, in trade and competition, the intellect of America and the soul of the American people desire the closer alliance of the two English-speaking races, and will not be denied, because of the sacrifices both have made for the same ideals of civilization. They were spoken with emphasis and sincerity, and my first day in New York left me with the faith that its people are pledged to friendship with us.

Next morning my telephone bell rang at 7 o'clock and I answered it and said: "Don't you ever go to sleep here?" The answer came back: "We're pretty wide-awake and there's a lot to do."

GIBBS ANALYZES THE WAR.

Ideas Fought Brute Force, and Ideas Finally Won.

Philip Gibbs, war correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES and London Daily Chronicle with the British armies, and Carl W. Ackerman, correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES in Siberia, were guests of honor yesterday at a luncheon in The Times Annex, attended by the editorial and executive staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Mr. Gibbs said that from the very beginning he had been convinced that the war was a conflict of ideas against brute force, and that while on occasion it seemed as if brute force was perilously near a victory, ideas ultimately had triumphed.

Nothing could be better proof of this, he said, than the attitude of German soldiers and civilians to whom he talked when he accompanied the British Army of Occupation into Germany; all said that upon the news of America's entry into the war the Germans began to realize that their course had stirred up a whole world against them and that in opposition to all the other principal peoples they had no chance to win. He expressed the belief that close co-operation between the British commonwealth and America would be the surest guarantee of the preservation of the fruits of victory.

Mr. Ackerman told of the difficulties attending the allied expeditions into Siberia.

GIBBS TO LECTURE ON WAR.

Philip Gibbs, the famous war correspondent, whose dispatches in THE NEW YORK TIMES have been eagerly read in this country, will lecture on his experiences in France and Belgium on Thursday evening, Feb. 20, at Carnegie Hall, under the auspices of the Pond Lyceum Bureau. This is his first appearance as a lecturer here. He will make a six weeks' tour of the country, speaking in the large cities. Mr. Gibbs is well known as an author and, although a young man, has twenty books to his credit.

Mr. Gibbs and his three brothers are all celebrated in the world of literature: Cosmo Hamilton, with whom he collaborated in producing "Menders of Nets" at the Duke of York's Theatre; Arthur Hamilton Gibbs, actor and novelist, and Anthony Hamilton, traveler and lecturer. Mr. Gibbs's "Soul of the War" and the "Battle of the Somme" have passed into several editions.

HISTORIC 'BORIS' SUNG AGAIN

Thirty-five times Moussorgsky's historic "Boris Godunoff" has held its place on the Metropolitan stage, a "music drama of the future" still, but of noble sincerity, never more vital than now. Launched here by Mr. Gatti's artistic partner, Toscanini, seven seasons ago, it remains one of the few supreme lyric productions since a former generation saw America's first "Rheingold." There have been many changes in the "Boris" personnel, but few in its protagonists, Adam Didur acting the usurping Russian Czar last night for the third time this Winter, as always before, and on this occasion with Margaret Matzenauer newly returned to the part of the Princess Marina.

There are no scenes in all modern opera quite like those of the Czar's coronation and of his death, or that contrasting picture of the dark Polish garden, with its shouting intrigue and courtly Polonaise.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

"Loreley."

"Loreley," a romantic opera in three acts, book by Carl d'Ormeville and A. Zanardini, music by Alfredo Catalini, was sung for the first time in this city last night at the Lexington Theatre by the Chicago Opera Association. Italian was the language used.

CAST.

Rudolpho	Virgilio Lazzari
Anna, his niece	Florence Macbeth
Walter	Alessandro Dolci
Loreley	Anna Fitziu
Hermann	Giacomo Rimini

Incidental dances by Sylvia Tell and corps de ballet.

Conductor, Giorgio Polacco.

"I know not what evil is coming, but my heart feels sad and cold; a song in my head keeps humming, a tale from times of old." Thus sang Heinrich Heine, translated by James Thomson; but it may be confessed that little of the old-world magic of the Loreley legend transpires from the score of Catalani. It is a theme that has attracted more than one composer, Bruch, Lachner, Mendelssohn, among the rest. The present work was first heard at Turin in 1890. Toscanini has conducted it, and Campanini, too. It has been sung in Chicago. The composer was born at Lucca in 1854. Grove's Dictionary credits him with a respectable list of operatic, symphonic, and choral works, "La Wally," the last, produced in 1892, and in New York at the Metropolitan Opera House, Jan. 6, 1909. Catalini died at Milan in 1893.

The libretto is a hodge-podge of the Rhine legends dealing with the celebrated Water-Nixie, whose rock is the cynosure of all Cook's Tourists' eyes. The finny lady vanished over four years ago. A romantic tale of love, jealousy, and despair is set before us. A beautiful girl is to marry a nobleman, but the Loreley intervenes. He is spellbound by her witchery. He deserts his bride, who "spurns the advances" of her lover's friend. The Loreley at the end becomes the mate of Alberich, the river demon. The earth hero commits suicide by drowning. A flash of tail, a nose-dive, and the Loreley returns to her element. Annette Kellermann outdone! This musical water-witch ought to please the most hardened prohibitionist.

The Catalani score reveals excellent craftsmanship. Not original, not even boasting an individual profile, nevertheless there are the compensations of a melodic line, withal commonplace, skilled vocal writing for soli and ensemble, a sane harmonic scheme, together with a sense of atmosphere and a way of finishing musical sentences and scenes without any loose threads to confuse the hearer. Shipshape, in a word, is this Italian's technique.

His orchestral melos flows, there is enough color, and if the music hadn't been choked off by the too demonstrative conducting of Mr. Polacco—a conductor, be it said, of the first rank—perhaps we would have enjoyed the details of the orchestration. But the brass choir was overblown, the percussive instruments punctuating every few bars with a bang. We heard now and then some rich writing for the strings, especially for the violoncelli.

Mr. Polacco was not altogether to blame, for it appears that the orchestral pit is paved with cement; that and the megaphonic acoustics of the theatre do not promote the cult of the nuance. Noise ruled throughout. A metallic wall cut off the singers from the audience, so there was much shouting, which, it may be said in parenthesis, was heartily enjoyed by the audience.

Rose Raisa was to have sung the title rôle. Illness prevented her. Miss Fitziu did well under trying conditions. Like her colleagues, she had a sad tremolo. In Act I. the stageful positively trilled, and the singing of Florence Macbeth was an oasis in leagues of sandy vocalism. Nor was Miss Macbeth in the best of voice, yet she sung legato, even if her middle tones were clouded. The mermaid of Miss Fitziu was gorgeous. She was a handsome apparition at the end of Act II.

The most musical number was the simple Mozartean duo sung by Miss Macbeth and Mr. Dolci. Mr. Rimini was satisfactory, and the tenor, Dolci, sang in various tone productions that were surprising; also kaleidoscopic. Below F his voice lacks lustre, but he can volley forth his upper tones with power. Unlike Rose Ponselle—who sat in a stage box—his is not a seamless scale.

He is young. He is virile. He pleases. Time will show his potentialities. There were choruses, processions, a pretty ballet, and when Wagner wasn't hanging around in the score, Lohengrin under his arm, Papa Verdi took up the white man's burden. The principal objection to "Loreley" is its absence of vital characterization. Possibly Rose Raisa might lend it wings. At present it is not overwhelmingly interesting.

TWO ORCHESTRAS PLAY.

The Philharmonic, with Louise Homer—Symphony Society Matinee

Two orchestral concerts representative of the musical life of New York filled Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon, and night, that of the Philharmonic last evening having Louise Homer, the contralto, as guest. Mme. Homer sang Franck's "La Procession," Debussy's recitative, and an air of Azael from "The Prodigal Son," and later an air from Tschaikovsky's "Jeanne d'Arc."

The Philharmonic program, all of which will be repeated this afternoon, included also Brahms's "Tragic" overture at the start, and Kalinnikow's Symphony No. 1 at the evening's close, while midway in the proceedings there was a first performance in America of Respighi's "Fountains of Rome."

Four "Fountains" play in magical transformation, first that of the Julian Valley, with cattle passing in Rome's misty dawn; then, as told in a mad instrumental whirl, the dancing naiads of the Triton Fountain, and the pompous Neptune's chariot from the Fountain of Trevi. The noontide trumpet blare dies to a shimmer of sound at sunset by the beautiful water pools of the Villa Medici.

Ottorino Respighi, like Alfredo Casella, is one of those younger than the "young Italians" of opera veritism, who have turned to music not of the stage. Like his compatriot's "War Films," played recently by Walter Damrosch, these "Fountains of Rome" furnished to Mr. Stransky by the Italian Government are musical pictures, almost "moving pictures." They are scored with bells and all the modern apparatus.

The Symphony Society at its matinée in the same hall yesterday gave a program of orchestral works, including Franck's prelude, chorale and fugue, arranged by Pierné; Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, Mendelssohn's "Spinning Song," the allegretto from his quartet for strings, and Liszt's "Les Preludes."

Mrs. Hurd Reaches Semi-Finals.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 13.—The first match round of the St. Valentine tournament for women was played at Pinehurst today. Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, the medalist, came through to the semi-finals in the lower frame, in company with Miss Eleanor T. Chandler of Philadelphia. Mrs. F. T. Keating of Agawam and Mrs. J. D. Chapman of Greenwich survived in the upper bracket. All four had easy matches on their hands.

FOR NEW ERA FOR LABOR.

Four Catholic Bishops Join in Program for Reconstruction.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Adoption of minimum wage schedules, maintenance in general of the wage levels attained during the war, and permanent establishment of the National War Labor Board and the United States Employment Service were advocated as essentials of a just reconstruction in a report made public today by four Catholic Bishops, constituting the Administrative Committee of the National Catholic War Council.

While favoring, in the interests of health and morality, prohibition of child labor and reduction to the smallest practical limits of the employment of women in industry, the committee urged equal pay for women doing equal work with men. It declared also for insurance of workers against illness, old age, and unemployment until wages are high enough to tide over such periods, for abolition of monopolies, for continuance of heavy taxes on large incomes and excess profits, for co-operative merchandising in necessities to reduce the cost of living, and for Government-assisted colonization of unoccupied farm lands by demobilized soldiers and sailors

As a measure outside its present reconstruction program but of value in solving the problems of capital and labor, the committee urged gradual participation by labor in the management and eventually in the ownership of industry.

The report was issued in the names of Bishops Peter J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., Joseph Schrembs of Toledo, Ohio, William T. Russell of Charleston, S. C., and Auxiliary Bishop Patrick J. Hayes of New York. As members of the War Council's Administrative Committee they represent the Catholic hierarchy of America in general direction of war work in this country and overseas.

While holding that "mere justice, to say nothing of chivalry," dictates that women who filled in industry the places made vacant by men called to war "should not be compelled to suffer any greater loss or inconvenience than is absolutely necessary" in the readjustment under peace conditions, the report declared that no female worker should remain in an occupation harmful to health or morals. In this classification street car operation and the cleaning of locomotives were especially mentioned. An efficient national employment service, it was stated, would be able to shift to domestic and other suitable lines of activity women war workers whose circumstances required them to continue as wage earners.

The committee asserted that the average rate of pay had not increased faster than the cost of living, and that a considerable majority of wage earners, both men and women, were not receiving living wages when prices began to rise in 1915.

"Even if the great majority of workers," the committee said, "were now in receipt of more than living wages, there are no good reasons why rates of pay should be lowered. After all, a living wage is not necessarily the full measure of justice. All the Catholic authorities on the subject explicitly declare that this is only the minimum of justice. In a country as rich as ours there are very few cases in which it is possible to prove that the worker would be getting more than that to which he has a right if he were paid something in excess of this ethical minimum.

"So far as possible the insurance fund should be raised by a levy on industry, as is now done in the case of accident compensation. Any insurance scheme or any administrative method that tends to separate the workers into a distinct and dependent class, that offends against their domestic privacy and independence, or that threatens individual self-reliance and self-respect, should not be tolerated. Hence all the forms of State insurance should be regarded as merely a lesser evil, and should be so organized and administered as to hasten the coming of the normal condition."

Upholding the right of labor to organize and to deal with employers through representatives, the report urged a gradual recognition of the workers in the management and ownership of the industries of which they are a part. As a first step it suggested admission of employes to the industrial part of management through formation of shop committees to co-operate with owners of plants. The next phase, participation in ownership, the committee conceded was not of general value in a program for immediate social reconstruction. It classed private ownership as preferable to a collectivist organization of industry, which it characterized as a state of socialism which would mean bureaucracy, political tyranny, general social inefficiency and decadence, but asserted that the present system, producing "insufficient incomes for a great majority of wage earners and unnecessarily large incomes for a small minority of privileged capitalists," needed modification and improvement.

"It seems clear," said the committee, "that the present industrial system is destined to last for a long time in its main outlines, but the full possibilities of increased production will not be realized so long as the majority of the workers remain mere wage earners. The majority must somehow become owners, at least in part, of the instruments of production."

To bring about even moderate reforms, the Bishops asserted, both capital and labor must get a new viewpoint. The laborer, they declared, "must come to realize that he owes his employer and society an honest day's work in return for a fair wage, and that conditions cannot be substantially improved until he roots out the desire to get a maximum return for a minimum of service. The capitalist needs to lern the long-forgotten truth that wealth is stewardship; that profit-making is not the basic justification of business enterprise, that there are such things as fair profits, fair interest, and fair prices; that the laborer is a human being, not merely an instrument of production, and that the laborer's right to a decent livelihood is the first moral charge upon industry."

FOUNDATIONS OF THE LEAGUE.

Progress upon the plans for a League of Nations has been more satisfactory and hopeful since the Special Commission at Paris, after much discussion, adopted the rule of simplicity. Many proposals not essential to the purpose of the League have been discarded; others, notably the proposal for maintaining a large armed force to execute the decrees of the League, have been rejected for the very good reason that they would have endangered or made impossible the acceptance of the plan by the nations concerned. The Special Commission has now centred its attention upon the prime essentials. First, there must be a covenant of peace; second, the agreement to refer causes of difference between nations to the Council of the League for a hearing, with provision for arbitration later, if it be found necessary. Supplementary to these foundation requirements is the provision that the members of the League shall agree to put powerful economic restraint upon nations violating the covenant. The fear of practical outlawry through nonintercourse would be a great deterrent, its application would be a punishment no transgressor could long endure.

The rule of simplicity, of excluding all nonessentials, has been laid down most lucidly by Lord PHILLIMORE, Chairman of the British Committee which prepared a plan for the League of Nations, in an article in the last Quarterly Review in which he considers with candor and learning the whole ground of discussion, taking as his text something like a dozen publications and proposals of individuals and societies. We quote the concluding paragraphs of his article:

> In conclusion, it is suggested that the treaty which forms the League should be as simple and, so to speak, as preparatory as possible, affirming only the two broad principles: (1) That there shall not be war; and (2) that there shall be provision for settling differences. Further details will have to be settled as occasions may arise. Workers like Dr. EVANS DARBY and other members of the Peace Society, old laborers in the cause of peace, would have us rely on the moral law and the moral sense alone, and have no coercive force applied; but, as human nature is constituted, there must be force behind. "Quid leges sine moribus?" says HORACE, and truly; but unfortunately one must add, "Quid mores sine legibus?" and every law, as AUSTIN long ago observed, requires a sanction to support it.
> It is doubtless true that no treaty, however carefully framed, and whatever sanctions may be put on paper, will make the League of Nations an absolute and certain security of future peace; and that no covenants can be relied upon as certain to be fulfilled, because at the root of everything lie faith and justice and good-will, just as no laws will prevail if the citizens of a State are anarchical and lawless. Yet, since in every civilized State the reign of law, supported by "the resources of civilization," does on the whole prevail, and since law helps morals, and morals help law, we may humbly trust that a well-framed scheme of a League of Nations will at once perpetuate that holy horror of war which all at this moment feel, and furnish an adequate coercive system to restrain any such future crime against humanity.

A covenant of all the nations not to make war until the cause of complaint has been referred to a council and reported upon, with the further agreement to put constraint upon any nation breaking the covenant—that is the foundation of the League. A League containing these provisions as the minimum, with only such further provisions as are indispensable, would secure the adhesion of all nations now civilized and intending to remain so. Great Britain, France, and the United States, by their power and by the moral force they command because of their devotion to the cause of peace, are already united by ties of friendship that really constitute them a League of Nations. The extension of that League to include all nations may be secured if the statesmen now laboring upon the plans at Paris will be guided by the rule of simplicity.

REPUBLICAN BOOMS.

If Jackson Day and Jefferson Day are not as rich in Democratic oratory and dollar-dinners as they used to be in the golden prime of Mr. BRYAN, at least the Republican brethren do make a use, whether ceremonious or humorous it is hard to make out, of Lincoln Day. The better the day the better the boom; and at least two or three Republican Presidential booms were "launched" Wednesday. In Pittsburgh, one of the holy spots immemorially of protection, Senator PHILANDER C. KNOX's young dream of ambition was propelled artistically from the ivory gate or the gate of horn, as the future must decide. "Who will be our next President?" No sooner did this question possess the air than the Americus Republican Club, there banqueting mellifluously, rose to its feet as one man and yelled joyously, "PHIL KNOX." Mr. KNOX is a gentleman of much urbanity and dignity. Probably few persons in Pittsburgh or anywhere else habitually call him "PHIL," but it is necessary that a candidate for President should have some sort of endearing nickname. If the Pittsburgh boom, which appeals to some of the noblest feelings of old-fashioned Republican nature, because one hears in it the full dinner pail rattling and the American standard of wages climbing irresistibly in spite of all the dissolute attempts of pauper labor of Europe, has already contracted the well-beloved PHILANDER into "PHIL," its managers know the great popular democratic value, supposed or estimated, of the affectionate reduction of a candidate's name. WASHINGTON got along without it, but WASHINGTON was notoriously a cold and haughty plutocrat, who did not dull his palm with entertainment of each new, unfledged comrade, and used a great big aristocratic coach, copious of horses and outriders.

In Toledo, Senator HARDING, who is supposed to be the hope and darling of the Buckeye Republicans and the Ohio official candidate for President in 1920, launched himself formally and ceremoniously at a Lincoln dinner. It is beautiful to think of the number of budding Republican statesmen and candidates that are brought out of the nurseries on Lincoln Day and exposed to the gentle or harsh air of welcome or rebuke awaiting them. Never since the sun shone in heaven has Winter worn such a mild and lamblike face as in this present February. The prophetic woodchuck could not have possibly found any excuse for continuing subterranean habits on and after Candlemas Day. In these urbane temperatures no candidate exposes himself to frost. In lashing Mr. KNOX to the citadel of protection, no generous heart will forget Mr. HARDING, who saw the heaven-high and sacred tariff as early and often as anybody else, and, like Jack, climbed that august beanstalk and reached the sky.

In Albany County that ancient Amalekite, if he be not a Hittite, Mr. WILLIAM BARNES, ironically sensible, as usual, named Mayor OLE HANSON of Seattle for President. Mr. BARNES is exceeding his charter. Courage, high principle, contempt of political consequences—these are qualities in a public man that only a fossilized hunker like Mr. BARNES would dare to praise.

THE FEDERAL FINANCES.

Democrats vie with Republicans in condemning the appropriations for which both are responsible. Both are responsible for deferring enactment of the Tax bill beyond a date when it could be satisfactorily administered. The Treasury thought the latest date was Feb. 1. When Chairman KITCHIN predicted that it could not pass before Feb. 10, that was thought to be the same as saying that it was about as well as not to pass the bill at all. The bill has now passed, and on Feb. 13. Congress has taken twice as many months to prepare the bill as it allows weeks for statements and payments under it, and after all its pains finds that the country dislikes the bill as much as its authors do. Thus Senator PENROSE says that he has received "thousands" of letters showing that the sentiment of the country has changed since the country remarked what was in the bill. The country remarks that the deficit grows with the appropriations. No matter how they are increased, there are about as many more billions needed as when the previous limit was fixed. "After the "armistice enthusiasm subsided con- "siderably." That is as true outside Congress as inside it. There was no politics and little consideration of finance in fighting the war abroad. There is more politics and still less finance in starting the next home campaign, with both parties now defending the Treasury as energetically as they emptied it before the taxpayers took notice. The idea of taking credit for the bill occurs to nobody.

Its very badness and bigness may be turned to use through imposing more business-like methods in the national finances. The President cables his approval of the budget idea which President TAFT propounded, and which has advanced not at all in the years since then. If anything is needed more than a budget it is an audit. At present the Treasury sees that the totals are right, and compares the spendings with the authorizations by law. That is not an audit worthy the name. First, because it is done by the spenders of the money. The Treasury is administered by the party in power. Secondly, an audit should not be a mere addition of totals and interpretation of law. An audit should be both a certification of accounts and a corrector of policy. It should supply the means of knowing whether the money was spent well and honestly, and, if bad methods are discovered, should show the correction.

It is no function of the Treasury to correct the policy of Congress. That is the function of the opposition party, and its audit should be above partisanship, in a constructive spirit of patriotism. The budget idea alone has penetrated Congress, and the subject is attacked in the manner usual with politicians. The budget committee proposed is variously called bipartisan, unpartisan, nonpartisan, but the balance of parties runs through it. The error is as fundamental as that respecting the audit. The budget is as much the duty of the responsible majority as the audit is of the opposition. By mingling the two functions and giving representation to both parties the responsibility of either for either budget or audit is destroyed. Why not attack the subject in the manner of the dollar-a-year men, who know less about politics than Congress and more about accounts? Can it be assumed even that Congress is the better authority on politics? If it were, how is it possible to explain a tax bill that affronts all in either party and puts both parties on the defensive before an angered country?

ADMIRAL JELLICOE'S STORY.

The disclosures of Admiral JELLICOE's book, "The Grand Fleet, 1914-16," explain why Jutland was not a decisive British victory, and the wonder is that if the Grand Fleet was inferior in destroyers, in range-finding appliances, in armor-piercing projectiles, in direct-firing gear for secondary batteries, and in searchlights, as Admiral JELLICOE declares, the Germans were worsted and ran for their base in rout. He seems to make out a good case for his decision not to fight a night battle with the retiring High Seas Fleet, because he must be staking his professional reputation upon the accuracy of his statements. But POLLEN and other critics of the Admiral's tactics will still contend that he should have done more fighting before darkness fell and that his attack was not sufficiently aggressive. POLLEN has always insisted that the British fleet was torpedo shy at Jutland, and Admiral JELLICOE admits it.

A comparison of several of the capital ships of the two fleets shows that the German constructors had put more faith in torpedo tubes. But it is a surprising revelation that the British were weaker in destroyers. A British estimate on the eve of hostilities gave the German Navy 152 destroyers and the British 238. JANE's annual, which showed a marked British superiority in destroyers, must have misled his countrymen. If the British had had a great many more of this indispensable type of warship the Grand Fleet would not have put to sea with less than half of the German strength, which is indicated by Admiral JELLICOE's statement that "the High Seas "[German] Fleet possessed eighty- "eight destroyers and the Grand "Fleet only forty-two." Did the British have scores of obsolete destroyers not fit for battle and the Germans twice as many "up-to-date" destroyers? Could that have been the Admiral's meaning? If so, it is singular that in the Jutland fight the destroyer losses were: British seven, Germans six. There should have been a greater disparity against the British, apparently. On the eve of war the Germans were supposed to be at a hopeless disadvantage in dreadnoughts, but Admiral JELLICOE presents a catalogue of misfortunes to the British fleet to prove that its superiority on Oct. 27, 1914, was only on paper:

> The Ajax had developed condenser defects. The Iron Duke had similar troubles. The Orion had to be sent to Greenock for examination of her turbine supports, which appeared to be defective. The Conqueror was at Devonport refitting, and the New Zealand was in dock at Cromarty. The Erin and Agincourt, having been newly commissioned, could not yet be regarded as efficient, so that the dreadnought fleet consisted only of seventeen effective battleships and five battle cruisers. The German dreadnought fleet at the time comprised fifteen battleships and four battle cruisers, with the Blücher in addition.

Why "the Blücher in addition"? She was a 15,500-ton armored cruiser with a main battery of 8.2-inch guns. Could not the British match her with the Minotaur, Defence, and Shannon, (main batteries four 9.2-inch guns and secondary batteries ten 7.5-inch guns,) which Admiral JELLICOE does not include in his "five battle cruisers"? What chance would the Blücher have stood against these three armored cruisers? The impression made by Admiral JELLICOE in his estimate of the two fleets is that he exalts the German strength and minimizes the British. Now it is a fact that at Jutland the gun power of the British fleet was greatly superior. If the Admiral's estimates are unassailable, the Germans had a fine opportunity to wrest mastery of the sea from Great Britain and stupidly let it slip. And what else is to be concluded from the British Admiral's admissions of the superiority of the German equipment in many respects but that the Admiralty had let the navy run down or had allowed the Germans to steal a march upon them? With the publication of Lord JELLICOE's book a bitter controversy will begin to rage, for his analysis of the fleet will pierce British pride to the quick. He will have to defend his figures, and his leadership in the Jutland fight will be challenged.

AUSTRIA AND HER NEIGHBORS.

The old motto of the Hapsburg Government was "Divide and rule." The shifting provisional Government of German Austria which has replaced the Hapsburgs has no hope of ruling the nations lately subject to the German Austrians, but it is doing its best to divide them and to set them in a bad light before the world. Vienna of late has been the centre for so-called news, much of which is in fact merely disguised propaganda to discredit the new Governments of the Slavs who were once part of the Dual Monarchy.

Two such dispatches appeared yesterday. One of them told of the truce arranged by an American officer between Germans and Jugoslavs fighting over the territory in dispute between those two peoples, and occupied by considerable populations of both. According to the Viennese version, the "Jugoslav troops" were opposed by "German and Slovene peasants." The Slovenes, of course, are one of the three branches of the Jugoslav race. It is not impossible that invading forces of Serbs or Croats might have made themselves inconvenient even to the friendly population, but it is exceedingly unlikely, in view of the general Slovene enthusiasm for Jugoslav unity, the Slovene hostility to the Germans, and above all Vienna's bad record of falsification in the affairs of this very district. Little more than a year ago much play was made in the Viennese press about the appearance before Emperor CHARLES of a Slovene deputation which begged him to put down the Jugoslav movement and preserve the then existing Constitution, which kept the Slovenes and the rest of the subject peoples pretty much at the mercy of the Germans. The only weakness in this story was that it was speedily proved that except for a few office holders there were no Slovenes in the party at all, but only Germans living in predominantly Slovene districts. We need better authority than Vienna before we can believe stories of Jugoslav dissension.

As for the dreadful predictions made in Vienna of the financial disaster which may follow upon the restamping of the old Austrian currency by the new Governments of the liberated nations, it may be said that it is no doubt alarming to the Austrians, but the only sane course for the Czechs and Jugoslavs; and that the consequences that may come to Austria are due to the errors of her old Government and not to the action of the new Slav States. Austria's currency was bad enough before the war; there was an enormous amount of outstanding paper and a small gold reserve. During the war most if not all of the gold was deposited in Germany, and the paper issues rose to more than seven billion dollars. With Austrian defeat these are about as worthless as any money can be, for there is nothing to secure them but the credit of a much constricted Austria and the treasure that the Austrians stole in Italy and the Italians are now taking back.

The Czechs and Jugoslavs have restamped such of this money as is in their territory to make it an obligation of their own new Governments, because they have to have money that is worth something, and their Governments will presumably be able to furnish a solid basis of credit. Of course, it depreciates still further such money as is unstamped and has only Austrian credit behind it, but this loss will fall mainly on Austria, which is responsible for it. When Austrian financiers talk of great quantities of Austrian kronen in French and British hands they certainly exaggerate, for nine-tenths of the outstanding paper money was issued during the war. If Frenchmen and Englishmen bought any of that they were betting on the victory of the enemy, and ought to bear their losses.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Safety Lay in Silence. Commissioner ENRIGHT, in the matter of Inspector COSTIGAN's demotion, stands in the always unenviable position of those who give for action taken by them an explanation obviously inadequate and as obviously inaccurate. Inevitably from such an explanation there is deduced the conclusion that the real explanation of the action is one for some reason or other unavowable—in plain words, that the real explanation is bad. The part of wisdom, when it is dangerous or even injudicious to tell why a thing was done, is to say nothing at all.

That was Commissioner ENRIGHT's first thought, and in this case first thoughts were best—for the Commissioner.

But the pressure on him for additions to, or substitutions for, his original statement that the demotion was to effect a needed reduction of one in the number of Inspectors proved too much for him to stand, and references to Inspector COSTIGAN's record irritated the Commissioner, first, into asking if the public knew what that record was, and, second, into a presentation of statistics as to arrests which, on its face, seemed to prove that the record was discreditable.

Then, as might have been expected to happen, the Commissioner's trouble began. His statistics were promptly attacked, and it was shown that while the Inspector, as Inspector, had made only enough gambling arrests to constitute a poor record, in his other capacity as head of the vice squad—the capacity in which gambling arrests naturally would be made—the number of arrests constituted an excellent record, in full accord with the Inspector's reputation as an honest, able, and diligent officer.

Why the Commissioner did not know that his curious method of computation would not serve his purpose it is hard to understand. He has always been regarded as a man of considerable intelligence, particularly well informed in all the details of police business and politics, and it is strange indeed that he should not have realized betimes the weakness of the case he presented against a man with many friends, all sure to look for flaws in that case and to find them if there were any.

Discretionary Powers Are Broad. That Captain COSTIGAN will become Inspector COSTIGAN again simply because it has been made clear that his reduction in rank must have been for another reason, or other reasons, than the one assigned for it by his commanding officer—that is a matter of large uncertainty. Motives are always hard and usually impossible to prove, and difficult, too, is it to prove that the limits of an admittedly broad discretionary power have been exceeded.

It might well be that a John Doe inquiry would show that Inspector COSTIGAN was not displaced because there was one too many officers of that grade, and the question whether or not he was reprehensible as Inspector for not doing what he did under another name is worthier of consideration in a comic opera than in a court. But the fact remains that the Commissioner had a legal right to demote the Inspector if, in the Commissioner's opinion, it was "for the good of the service," and it would take a searcher of hearts to decide, with any conclusiveness, that such was not the Commissioner's sincere belief. "For the good of the service" is a large phrase, beautifully indefinite, and what it doesn't mean would be hard to tell.

They Should Cover the Subject. For reasons not unimaginable, the first news of an International Woman Suffrage Conference now going on in Paris came to most of us in a brief dispatch printed yesterday. The suffragists everywhere, as a rule, are highly successful in getting publicity for all their doings, and in other days than these and in another city than Paris now an international gathering of theirs would get the attention its interest and importance deserve. But at present the burdened cables spared for them only the time required for carrying a few lines about action taken and none for preparatory announcements.

What was told was what the assembled representatives of the suffragists are demanding. Some of their wants are familiar—the franchise for women everywhere on the same basis as men, all offices and employments to be open to women, equal pay for equal work, and a single standard of morals. Comparatively new, however, is a protest against the loss of her nationality when a woman marries a foreigner.

That protest does raise a question worthy of consideration, for, with the abandonment or obsolescence of the old idea that man and wife are one, and man the one, there remains no effectual reason why marriage should have any different effect as regards a woman's nationality than as regards a man's. But it is noticeable that, at least so far as present advices show, the international suffrage protest is against only the loss of citizenship by marriage. It ought also to be against any gaining of citizenship by marriage, for that is a much greater danger and a much greater grievance. A form of sex "equality" which all would, or at any rate all should, commend would be equality before the naturalization laws, of all countries probably, of this country certainly.

An Answer Seems Called For. Secretary BAKER should make immediate and full response to the demand of the Senate Military Committee for a report on conditions as they have existed in the Embarkation Camp near Brest. From several quarters have come statements to the effect that many fine things were done for the comfort and safety of the soldiers there, but contradictions of these statements are arriving in such numbers from men who tell of terrible sufferings from exposure to cold and wet in the Brest camp that it is no longer possible to dismiss the complaints as nothing more than the "grumbling" and "grouching" which are proverbially a part of the soldier's profession—his method of lightening the tediums of service.

Among the letters about the Brest camp that have reached THE TIMES is one from an artilleryman who was not new to hardship, as he had been all through the second battle of the Marne and the Argonne-Meuse offensive. Those experiences he mentions only as giving him a right to speak with authority when he says that those he had at Brest while waiting to board a transport were harder to bear and not less dangerous to life and health than were the days at the front.

For this there may be explanations, but it is hard to believe that there is any adequate excuse, unless it is an excuse as well as an explanation that a certain callousness to the sufferings of others often develops in those to whom such sufferings are too long visible. Many nurses and a few doctors show this tendency, and it is not unknown among commanding officers in armies. To a constantly repeated stimulus, that is, they cease after a while to react in the ordinary human way.

Ole Hanson's Lesson.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statement of the Mayor of Seattle, the Hon. Ole Hanson, published in THE TIMES on Sunday, is worthy of the attention of the Federal Government, and money could not be better expended than in giving it billboard display in every city and town in the country, not only in English, but in all the foreign languages. Furthermore, our various ministers from the pulpits, without regard to creed or language, should use the article as a basis for a sermon. In my opinion nothing has appeared more timely and to the point than this dispatch.

W. W. CONLEY.

New York, Feb. 10, 1919.

A VALENTINE.

O heart of me! Dear heart of me!
'Though flamed with love your shrine-fires glow,
How can you breathe your ecstasy?
How can you fond devotion show?

The day is here for tender song—
The music of a lover's vow.
To Cupid all the hours belong,
'Tis time to whisper secrets now!

Where, then, shall you, O yearning heart,
For loving aid and ardor turn?
Where find the language to impart
The hopes that on your altars burn?

O heart of me! Dear heart of me!
The day is here, the day divine!
And love's strong champion shall be—
The sweet, impassioned Valentine!

LURANA SHELDON.

COURT ACTION HALTS ISSUE OF CITY STOCK

$4,500,000 Authorized by Board of Estimate Illegal, Contends W. J. Schieffelin.

MUST SHOW CAUSE TODAY

Attempt to Pay Thus Expenses Already Met by Taxation Called Financial Juggling.

Controller Craig, through a representative of the Corporation Counsel's office, will appear before Supreme Court Justice Cropsey in Brooklyn today to explain why the city should be permitted to raise $4,500,000 to apply toward part of the overhead expenses of the Public Service Commission when these expenses have already been paid by the taxpayers. His appearance is in answer to a taxpayer's action brought yesterday by William Jay Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens Union, against Mayor Hylan, Controller Craig, and the city administration in general.

Mr. Schieffelin, through his counsel, Leonard M. Wallstein, obtained an order yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Lazansky, directing the city officials to show cause today before Justice Cropsey why an injunction should not be issued restraining the city from issuing its long-term securities, corporate stock, for overhead expenses of the Public Service Commission in connection with the building of the dual system. Justice Lazansky also granted a temporary injunction staying the city authorities from taking any action in connection with the appropriation pending a decision on the motion.

It was said on behalf of Mr. Schieffelin that this is the first time in the history of the city that it has attempted to issue special corporate stock for the payment of past expenses. Mr. Schieffelin charged illegality and waste of city property. The members of the Citizens' Union maintain the action of the city is a piece of financial juggling by means of which the money raised would be turned in to the general fund for the reduction of taxation and would thus artificially reduce the tax rate.

Unjustified Burden on Future.

At the same time, according to the legal papers, such a method of financing would place an unjustified burden on the future, operating injuriously against present-day needs by narrowing the borrowing margin of the city.

The first intimation of the administration's plan so far as the public was concerned came out last Friday when Controller Craig, at a meeting of the Board of Estimate, insisted on the immediate adoption of a resolution authorizing the issue of $4,500,000 in corporate stock for part of the supervision expenses of the Public Service Commission since 1909. Mr. Wallstein attempted to prove that the action was illegal, and Mayor Hylan declared that the Citizens' Union was "the biggest bunch of fakers in town."

The resolution was adopted by the board and it was indicated that the remainder of the Public Service Commission's expenses, which also have been paid by the taxpayers, amounting to $7,500,000 more, would be similarly made the basis of a further issue of corporate stock.

"The result of this method of financing," according to a statement issued yesterday by the Citizens' Union, "would be to reduce by the amount of the corporate stock issue the sum necessary to be raised by current taxation for the purpose of carrying on the current operating expenses of the city unless the equivalent of some part or all of the money raised by the corporate stock issued is to be used for new purposes not included in the budget already adopted, (such as the settlement of contractors' claims.)

"The charge of illegality is based on Section 169 of the Greater New York Charter, which expressly prohibits the use of the city's corporate stock for the payment of the city's current operating expenses. Such application of the proceeds of the bond issue authorized at last Friday's meeting of the board is expressly provided by the board's resolution. The only claim which the city officials can make in defense of their action is that since 1912 the Public Service Commission expenses thereafter authorized and not yet paid, could, in first instance, have been financed by the issue of corporate stock. The Citizens' Union contends, however, that this furnished no legal basis for the board's action.

Would Provide Bad Precedent.

"Otherwise, as the papers in the litigation point out, the present Board of Estimate could search the records of the city from the beginning for the purpose of discovering every case in which expenditures could have been in first instance, but were not, paid out of corporate stock, and then, in spite of the fact that those expenditures had long since been met and paid, could now issue the city's corporate stock in an amount equal to those expenditures.

"During the last Administration several million dollars of public improvements were made under the pay-as-you-go policy with the cost paid out of tax levy. On its theory, the present Administration, despite the fact that these improvements have been paid for, could now proceed to issue bonds because, at the time the improvements were authorized, their payment might have been provided for in a bond issue.

"At 4½ per cent. interest each dollar of a fifty-year bond costs $1.69 for interest and sinking fund charges, so that at the end of fifty years each dollar represents an outlay by the taxpayers of $2.69. On this basis, $12,105,000 would have to be paid by future taxpayers in order to meet the bond issue of $4,500,000 authorized last Friday.

"Not only does such a method of financing place an unjustified burden on the future, but it operates injuriously against present day needs by narrowing the borrowing margin of the city. If last Friday's bond issue is legal it reduced the city's borrowing capacity by so much and thus fritters away the only source of money for completion of subway construction, for development of the port and for urgent needs for capital improvements."

As proof of the assertion that the overhead expenses of the Public Service Commission have already been paid, it was pointed out that from 1909 to 1912 the work of subway construction was paid for by the issue of special revenue bonds only and these were redeemed the following year in each case out of tax levy and the bonds were retired. In 1912 the Rapid Transit act was amended to give the Board of Estimate the option of either paying for the subway work by the issue of special revenue bonds or corporate stock. Although the board had the power after that to pay for subway construction out of corporate stock issue, it continued from 1912 to the present time to pay for the work out of special revenue bonds.

Mr. Wallstein's Affidavit.

In his affidavit attached to the complaint of Mr. Schieffelin, Mr. Wallstein stated that if the resolution of the Board of Estimate was within its power and if the proceeds of the corporate stock it attempted to authorize might be so applied, there was no reason why the Board of Estimate could not scrutinize the records of the city for the purpose of discovering every instance in which the overhead expenses incident to the construction of a public improvement were not financed by an authorization of corporate stock.

He said that in 1914, 1915, and 1916 the entire cost of public improvements was financed out of tax levy. He argued that if the Board of Estimate had the power it took to itself last Friday, it could, on the basis of all these capital expenditures named, (which might have been, but were not financed by corporate stock,) now authorize the issuance of corporate stock, and apply the proceeds to the general fund for the reduction of taxation. The consequence of this would be, he maintained, that only negligible sums would have to be raised by current taxation, and those only sufficient to pay interest on the city's debt.

NEW PLAN FOR DELINQUENTS

Baker Orders Disciplinary Recommendations Put Into Effect.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Modern methods of treating military prisoners and of keeping men liable to become delinquents out of the army, recommended by the recent conference here of commanders of disciplinary barracks, have been approved by Secretary Baker. It was announced today that the Adjutant General had been instructed to see that sixteen specific recommendations, which involve important changes both in recruiting machinery and in the handling of offenders, were worked out in regulations.

The conference recommended the establishment of a corps of psychiatrists of the Medical Department for duty at recruiting depots and elsewhere to weed out men applying for enlistment who might be adjudged incapable of conforming to army discipline. A considerable extension of the medical personnel of the army would be involved.

As a second step, the conference urged the erection of development detachments under special officers into which men adjudged as doubtful might be received from the recruiting depot for study, to determine whether they should be passed into the army or back to civil life. Men serving prison sentences would be sent to the development detachments on recommendation of the commandant of the prison.

Vocational education at the prisons was featured in the report, which also urged that men dropped from the rolls as deserters after an absence of three months, but who subsequently surrendered voluntarily, be sent to the disciplinary barracks for trial so that an adequate study of their mental condition might be a factor in determining punishment.

A system of correspondence courses for prisoners is to be set up and commandants authorized to recommend earlier parole for men who complete such courses successfully. In addition, an employment department, under supervision of a parole officer, is to be established to aid prisoners in obtaining work after their discharge.

Emphasis was laid on the necessity of extending morale work throughout the army, and an amendment to the manual of courts-martial was proposed, under which final designation of the place of confinement, whether in disciplinary barracks or a Federal penitentiary, would be deferred ninety days to permit study of individual cases.

The situation at Leavenworth Barracks, where 3,000 prisoners went on strike some time ago, but now are quiet and working under an "armistice agreement," played a considerable part in the deliberations of the commanders' conference. Secretary Baker's announcement today pointed out that a survey of the inmates at Leavenworth made by the Medical Department disclosed that there were three groups among the prisoners, the first, including two-thirds of the whole, being classified as men who are military offenders "from an excessively eccentric personality." By this, it was explained, is meant men who are "individualistic, opinionated, self-willed, or vain to an extreme degree."

"It would appear from this," the statement said, "that the problem of delinquency in the army is chiefly that of the individual, who is by nature insubordinate, or at any rate unadaptable. That this is not due to the strict discipline of the army is attested by the finding that over 40 per cent. of all the prisoners had histories of delinquency previous to their admittance into the army."

The other two groups are composed of men of "extreme emotional instability," and of those of inadequate intelligence.

TROTZKY'S EYE ON KANSAS?

Information That He Wants His Old Quiet Job in Girard.

From The Topeka Daily Capital.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Feb. 8 (Special.)—Faced with the failure of his ambitious scheme to create a working class dictatorship in Russia, Leon Trotzky has made application for his old job on The New Appeal, formerly The Appeal to Reason, in Girard.

Even a personal appeal in Trotzky's behalf by a bearded count of the old Russian régime failed to persuade Emanuel Haldeman-Julius, the present manager of The New Appeal, to put the empire wrecker on the pay roll.

When Louis Kopelin, editor of The New Appeal, was in Europe recently on a mission sent by the "Loyal Socialists of America" to backfire on Hun propaganda among the working class, Trotzky sent emissaries to Kopelin asking to be re-employed on the staff of The New Appeal, as he had been a number of years ago, traveling then under the name of Bernstein.

Kopelin wrote to Haldeman-Julius about this, so the manager was not greatly surprised when several months later there entered his office in Girard a tall, bearded individual, wearing abundant whiskers, introducing himself as Ivan Michaelowitch, and representing himself to be a count of the old régime and a writer of some note in his own country.

The "count" said he had joined the revolution and was one of Trotzky's right-hand men.

"Trotzky is a tired man," the "count" said. "He is tired of revolution. He is almost a victim of neurasthenia. Added to this, he has fallen out with Lenine. Trotzky's one desire now is a place in some quiet corner of the world, where he can enjoy the job of theorizing, without having to tackle the task of putting his theories into practice. As money is no object with him, he would be willing to work for the same old salary, but would like to have a desk in a private office."

Haldeman-Julius told the "count" there is nothing open in The New Appeal at this time.

"Tell Trotzky for me that if he wants to find a quiet place he might go to Holland and hobnob with the Kaiser—provided Wilhelm will associate with him, which I doubt," Julius said.

While in Girard Trotzky organized and promoted a strike by the two dining room girls in the town's one hotel. It was not a success. He protested against townsfolk acting as firemen to extinguish a burning residence because, he said, it belonged to the "bourgeoisie."

$5,000 CABLED TO Y. W. C. A.

Contribution from Mrs. H. P. Davison—Total Now $65,037.75.

Contributions to the $600,000 fund which the Young Women's Christian Association undertook to raise between the 10th and 20th of this month were led yesterday by $5,000 cabled from Paris by Mrs. Henry P. Davison. Another $5,000 was received from Mrs. Stephen Clark; $1,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Baker, $1,000 from Lewis H. Lapham, a $250 annual subscription from George F. Mason, and $100 from Louis Slade.

Subscriptions totaled [illegible]098.75 for the day, making a grand total to date of $65,037.75, a little more than one-tenth of the amount desired.

HIGH HONORS GIVEN FOR WAR SERVICE

Stettinius, Franklin, Tripp, and Army Officers Receive Decorations.

FRANCE JOINS IN AWARDS

Legion of Honor for Ten and Distinguished Service Medals for Eleven Are Conferred.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Decorations of the Legion of Honor awarded to General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, and nine other officers of the American Army last December by decree of President Poincaré, were formally presented today by General Collardet, French Military Attaché. Coincidentally, Secretary Baker, in the name of President Wilson, decorated nine American Army officers and two civilians—Edward S. Stettinius and P. A. S. Franklin—with the Distinguished Service Medal.

The double ceremony took place in Secretary Baker's office.

The presentation of the French decorations was marked by the full military customs of France for such occasions. General Collardet touched each recipient on each shoulder with his sabre, while the military staff of the embassy stood at attention with drawn swords. The decorations, General Collardet said, would be to these officers and their families always a reminder of the lasting appreciation of France for their share in the important rôle the United States Army had played in the winning of the war.

Baker Praised Civil Aids.

Secretary Baker said he hoped that the presentation of Distinguished Service Medals in the American forces would always be carried out with the simplicity that marked the fact that it was recognition by the nation of high service which a citizen had performed, whether soldier or civilian. It was a happy omen, he said, that two men who had played so great a part in the success of American war enterprises as had Mr. Stettinius and Mr. Franklin, the one in the procurement of munitions both here and abroad and the other in supervising the vast and complicated transport fleets, should thus stand side by side with their soldier comrades to receive their awards.

Speaking in reply for the American Government when the French decorations were presented, Mr. Baker said he believed that the future would see the two nations standing side by side in peace as they had fought in war.

Among the officers who received the Distinguished Service Medal were Major Gens. Henry P. McCain, former Adjutant General, now commanding at Camp Devens, and William C. Gorgas, former Surgeon General, retired. These awards were made some time ago, but neither officer was in Washington when the presentations for that group were made.

Guy E. Tripp, Assistant Chief of Ordnance, the third civilian to be awarded the decoration on today's list, was not present, but will receive his decoration later.

The Order of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor was awarded to General March and the following were made Commanders of the Legion:

Major Gens. Frank McIntyre, Assistant Chief of Staff; Henry Jervey, Director of Operations; George W. Goethals, Director of Purchase, Storage, and Traffic, and William C. Gorgas, formerly Surgeon General.

Decorations of Officer of the Legion of Honor were conferred upon Major Gen. C. C. Williams, Chief of Ordnance; Brig. Gens. Marlborough Churchill, Director of Military Intelligence; Lytle Brown, Director of War Plans Division, General Staff; Frank T. Hines, Director of Embarkation, and Colonel Constant Cordier, liaison officer, General Staff.

Citations for Medals.

The citations for the Distinguished Service Medals as published today in army orders were:

Major Gen. Frank McIntyre; as executive assistant to the Chief of Staff his breadth of view and sound judgment have contributed materially to the formulation and carrying out of policies essential to the operation of the military establishment.

Major Gen. John L. Chamberlain; as Inspector General of the army, he has by his highly responsible services materially contributed to the efficiency of all departments and bureaus of the military establishment and to the successful execution of the military program.

Major Gen. Jesse McI. Carter, Chief of the Militia Bureau; he conceived and directed the organization of the United States Guards and utilized these and other forces most effectively in the important work of safeguarding the utilities and industries of the nation essential to the prosecution of the war.

Major Gen. Peter C. Harris; during his services in the Adjutant General's Department his zeal, energy, and judgment have been made manifest by the reforms accomplished in record keeping systems in the War Department and in the army.

Brig. Gen. William S. Pierce; while in charge of the Springfield Arsenal his exceptional ability contributed materially to increasing the output of small arms. As Assistant Chief of Ordnance he has rendered conspicuous service.

Brig. Gen. Richard C. Marshall; his zeal, judgment, and exceptional administrative ability in the construction division of the army have enabled serious difficulties to be overcome and the construction necessary for a great army to be provided.

Brig. Gen. Robert I. Rees; to his initiative and breadth of vision are largely due the successful measures for training enlisted men for special services and the establishment of student army training corps.

Brig. Gen. William H. Rose; while in charge of the engineer depot he was charged with the system of purchase of supplies. His exceptional ability, judgment and resourcefulness are apparent in the efficient solution of the many difficult problems involved and in the success attained in supplying the vast quantities of engineering supplies to the army overseas.

Colonel Constant Cordier, general staff; while on duty as liaison officer between the War Department and the foreign military missions, he displayed the greatest discretion and ability and contributed materially to the successful conduct of military-diplomatic relations between the War Department and the Allied military missions.

P. A. S. Franklin; to his fine technical knowledge and energetic action is due, in a large measure, the efficient jurisdiction over dock facilities and floating equipment which has made possible the large movement of troops and supplies overseas.

Guy E. Tripp, who, as chief of the production division of the ordnance department, and later as assistant chief of ordnance, displayed fine technical ability and broad judgment in systematizing methods and practices resulting in the efficient co-operation of industries producing articles of ordnance for the army.

Edward R. Stettinius, who, as director general of purchases for the War Department, Second Assistant Secretary of War and special representative in France of the Secretary of War, in connection with the procurement of munitions for the American Expeditionary Forces, rendered conspicuous services. His broad vision and splendid judgment have been of the greatest value to the success of the military program.

GLASS OUTLINES LOAN FINANCES

Finds Opposition in House Committee to Letting Him Fix Interest Rate.

FOREIGN LOAN CRITICISED

Treasury Head Doubts if Year's Expenditures Can Be Kept Within $18,000,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, appeared today before the Ways and Means Committee in support of his recommendation for the enactment of immediate legislation for the amendment of the Liberty Bond acts in preparation for the Victory Liberty Loan.

By this legislation, the enactment of which Secretary Glass seeks before March 4, the limit on the issuance of bonds would be raised to $25,000,000,000. The Fourth Liberty Bond act raised the limit to $20,000,000,000. The Second, Third, and Fourth Liberty bond sales brought in $14,977,482,000 in subscriptions, leaving a balance under existing law of $5,022,512,000 for issues of Liberty bonds. This balance Mr. Glass would raise to $10,022,512,000 by raising the total limit to $25,000,000,000.

After hearing not only Mr. Glass but also R. C. Leffingwell, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Albert Rathbone, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of the Foreign Loan Bureau, the committee considered several points advanced by the speakers. Opposition developed to granting the Secretary of the Treasury power to fix the interest rate of the loan as well as authority to extend a loan of $1,000,000,000 to the allied Governments for the purchase in the United States of goods for export.

United opposition exists among Republican members to both propositions. If extreme pressure is exerted it is probable that the majority will consent to allow Secretary Glass to fix the interest rate of the forthcoming bond issue, although there is at present a great hesitancy on the part of Congress to delegate such broad powers to any executive officer.

Senator Glass submitted to the Ways and Means Committee a 7,000 word statement, which he read, in support of the legislation urged, and was also heard in executive session of the committee. The figures he submitted showed that, exclusive of the public debt, the classified disbursements made by the Treasury from March 1, 1917, to Jan. 31, 1919, representing approximately the period from our entry into the war to date, have aggregated $26,620,334,803.51, and that in the same period the receipts of the Treasury, exclusive of the public debt, have been $6,117,762,294.99. Mr. Glass's figures showed that in the first four Liberty bond campaigns the Government allotted subscriptions aggregating $16,977,488,000. While Mr. Glass did not say so, the Fifth Victory Loan will be for something over $5,000,000,000.

One of the tables submitted showed that on Jan. 31, 1919, the interest-bearing debt of the United States had reached $23,267,039,082, distributed as follows:

Bonds, Liberty and others	$17,457,365,040
Treasury certificates	4,798,064,800
War savings certificates	1,011,609,242

The $26,620,334,803.51 of disbursements, exclusive of public debt, made since March 1, 1917, includes ordinary disbursements of $18,496,501,226.09, loans to foreign Governments aggregating $7,975,287,247.70, and $148,566,329.72 representing other special disbursements. The receipts in the same period have been $357,574,898.51 from customs, $5,132,205,822 from internal revenue, $615,350,294 from miscellaneous revenue, and $12,611,279 from the Panama Canal.

"On the day the armistice was signed," Mr. Glass told the committee, "the United States was in the fortunate position of having outstanding no short-time indebtedness, excluding War Savings Certificates, that was not more than covered by the deferred installments on subscriptions for the bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan.

"But expenditures in November, December and January, according to the Treasury daily statement, exclusive of transactions in the principal of the public debt, amounted to $5,858,576,114.24, or at the rate of nearly $2,000,000,000 a month, and the amount of Treasury certificates of indebtedness outstanding on Jan. 31 was $4,798,064,800, of which $3,225,009,500 were issued in anticipation of the Victory Liberty Loan.

"Expenditures for the first seven months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, exclusive of the principal of the public debt, amounted to $12,594,498,537.96. It is apparent that unless there should be a very radical reduction in expenditures during the last five months of the current fiscal year Secretary McAdoo's hope that the expenditures for the whole fiscal year would be in the neighborhood of only $18,000,000,000 must be disappointed.

"It is needless to say that the Treasury does not contemplate the issue, in connection with the Victory Liberty Loan, of any such amount of bonds as $10,000,000,000. It has, however, been the practice of the Treasury since the Second Liberty Loan to allot the entire amount of bonds subscribed for. To be in a position to do this in connection with the Victory Liberty Loan, if it should then be thought wise to follow that policy, it is necessary to authorize some increase in the amount of bonds authorized to be issued. In making the change it seemed wise to suggest an increase to a figure which, so far as at present information is available, would seem to represent the maximum possible amount of the bonded debt growing out of the war.

"Not in addition to, but as an alternative of, the issue of such bonds, I have suggested the authorization of an issue of notes limited to $10,000,000,000. I should like to suggest also an increase in the maximum amount of Treasury certificates from $8,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000. It cannot be too plainly stated that these three items of $10,000,000,000 each are not cumulative. It is contemplated merely that authority should be given the Treasury to finance the existing and expected indebtedness either by the issue of Treasury certificates or by the issue of notes or by the issue of bonds. It may be desirable to adopt all of these methods in succession. It may be desirable to issue Treasury certificates in the first instance and bonds to refund them, as has been done in the past. It may be desirable to refund the Treasury certificates into notes and the latter ultimately into bonds.

"In respect to the notes and also in respect to bonds of a maturity of ten years or less, I have asked authority to determine the interest rate as the situation may develop. I am by no means convinced that conditions will be such in April as to necessitate an increase in the interest rate over that provided in existing law to an important extent, if at all, yet, if I were obliged to determine now what is the lowest rate at which I could undertake with certainty to finance the requirements of the Government when the issue is offered in April, I should be obliged to name a maximum rate much higher than that which, if developments are as favorable as I expect they will be in the interval, will, I hope, be sufficient to float the loan.

Premium at Maturity.

"I suggest that authority be conferred upon the Treasury to issue bonds or notes payable at a premium at maturity, believing that it might be found desirable to issue bonds following the lines of the British National War Bonds, which have been issued so successfully during the past year and a half. Payment of a slight premium at maturing would have a number of advantages over an increase in the nominal interest rate. It would carry with it an inducement to saving and to the retention of the bonds; it would tend to limit depreciation in the market; it would probably have a somewhat less injurious effect upon the market value of existing issues of Liberty bonds and other securities than a flat increase in the interest rate; and it would make possible more exact computation of the effective interest rate to be borne by the bonds or notes than is possible where bonds are issued and paid at par. A fractional semi-annual interest payment involves infinite annoyance to bondholders, banks, and the Government itself, which would be to a great extent avoided by payment of a small premium only once at maturity. I do not undertake to say that it will be found wise to issue bonds or notes payable at a premium, but I do say that the Treasury should be equipped with authority to do so if that be found expedient.

"I ask for authority to determine the exemption from taxation to be carried by the bonds, notes and Treasury Certificates. That something must be done to make the bonds or notes of the Victory Liberty Loan more attractive than their predecessors is apparent."

Details of Our War Expenditures of $24,620,000,000 Shown by Secretary Glass

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Appearing before the Ways and Means Committee in support of his urgent request for more Liberty bond legislation, Secretary Glass today submitted to Chairman Kitchin and his colleagues two tables giving for the first time a complete official survey of the American financial situation for the period since this country entered the war. It shows that disbursements in that period have been $26,620,334,803.51. As the normal expenditures in this period would have been about a billion a year, eliminating $2,000,000,000 assumed as about representing the normal expenditures, it would appear that the war cost to date has been about $24,620,000,000.

The first of the Glass tables shows classified disbursements, exclusive of public debt, by months, from March 1, 1917, to Jan. 31, 1919. We entered the war early in April, 1917. This table follows:

TO CHECK STOCK FRAUDS.

Secretary Glass Urges Bill for Protection of Investing Public.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Drastic legislation to protect the Government in its financial operations and the people of the United States from "threatened grave injury" growing out of the issuance of securities of doubtful worth, was asked of Congress today by Secretary Glass.

In a letter to Chairman Kitchin of the Ways and Means Committee Mr. Glass urged early enactment of a law, drawn by the Capital Issues Committee, which would require all corporations or persons desiring to sell stock through the mails or through advertisements in newspapers circulated through the mails to file with the Secretary comprehensive statements concerning the stock. It also would make the persons required to sign the statements personally responsible for any falsity therein. Willful violation of the act would be punishable by a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment of one year, or both, and persons suffering from intentional misrepresentations in the staments could recover damages.

"The country is being flooded with stock flotations at the present time, many of which are of very doubtful worth and many of which are fraudulent," Mr. Glass's letter said. "The millions of holders of our Liberty Bonds are being solicited by paid agents to exchange these bonds for these securities, thus not only seriously diminishing resources which should be kept available for Government financing, but as well bringing, in many cases, financial loss and ruin, and seriously jeoparuizing national finances from the resultant sale on the market of Government securities by those who have thus obtained possession of them. Public protests are coming in from all parts of the United States.

"While the condition I have pointed out is not a new one, it represents at the present time an especially grave menace to the public and to the Government, and for the common protection of both I make this appeal to Congress for the legislation indicated, to cope with and to suppress this evil.

"Permit me to point out that this proposed action by Congress will not of itself be sufficient to suppress effectually this evil, because there are many transactions with which Congress may not have constitutional authority to deal. Supplementary legislation by the several States will also be necessary. The promoter or stock vendor whose agents go from house to house, relying upon personal conversations and solicitations, without the use of the mails or any of the United States Government agencies, can hardly be reached through national legislation. On the other hand, they can be adequately controlled by State legislation; and the obvious method would be to require all persons desiring to sell shares of stock to the public to obtain first a license from any State in which such shares are to be offered."

WARFIELD SEES PERIL TO RAILROADS

Says No Man Should Hold Autocratic Power Given to the Director General.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Before the Railroad Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Director Hines of the Railroad Administration made a plea today for the five-year extension of the Federal control of the railroads.

Before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee S. Davies Warfield, President of the National Association of Security Holders, said that the extreme power given to the Director General under a plan of Government ownership or control was fraught with great danger.

"There is a choice presented to the country," said Mr. Hines, "whether it shall give now an extension which in all probability it will have to give within two years and get certain very important results for itself, or whether it will postpone giving that extension until the last minute and meanwhile suffer very serious disadvantages and at the end of the time still have to give the extension."

"No one man," said Mr. Warfield, "should be given in a democracy such autocratic powers as are necessary to work out a problem of such magnitude as have been held by the Director General of Railroads and as are now exercised by that official; in this, of course, I speak impersonally. Favoritism can be shown any railroad or any section of the country. The fate of communities and railroads rests with him, for he can make or break them by the railroad service he may choose to give the former, and business to the latter.

"It is idle to say that present Federal control and operation of the railroads can be extended, with definite purposes in the minds of those in control of it, and at the same time state that you do not favor Government ownership, when, perforce, you bring it about whether you favor it or not. Give me the direction of extended Federal control and operation of the railroads for five years, or even three years, and under my direction they could be so operated that at the end of the period they would find themselves in the position being forced to accept the larger company proposition, or Government ownership, if it was my belief that it was desirable to eventually land them in one or the other direction."

MARRIES MORGAN BARNEY.

Mrs. Nora Stanton Blatch Weds Naval Architect.

Morgan Barney, a naval architect of this city, and Mrs. Nora Stanton Blatch of 15 West Ninety-first Street were married yesterday afternoon in the City Hall at New Rochelle by Mayor Fred H. Waldorf. The ceremony was performed a few minutes after the couple had obtained their marriage license.

This is Mrs. Barney's second marriage. In May, 1912, at New Rochelle, she obtained a decree of divorce from Lee De Forest, the wireless inventor, whom she had married in February, 1908. Justice Keogh granted her permission then to resume her maiden name, and gave her custody of her young daughter. Mrs. Barney is the daughter of Harriot Stanton Blatch, suffragist leader.

Sinton-Menken Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Sinton of 270 Park Avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Harriet Sinton, to Harold D. Menken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer M. Menken of 35 West Seventy-fifth Street. Mr. Menken was recently on active duty as an ensign in the navy.

Joseph Kendall.

Joseph Kendall, 34 years old, President of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company, recently of St. Louis, and formerly of Dallas, Texas, died yesterday at Bellevue Hospital of bronchopneumonia. Mr. Kendall came here on business, and was a guest at the Ritz-Carlton until a few days ago, when he was taken to the hospital.

MOVE TO KEEP ALIVE NEW HAVEN SUITS

Stockholders Ask Federal Court to Appoint a Limited Receiver for the Railroad.

FIND COSTS BURDENSOME

Unusual Procedure Adopted as Step in the Litigation Against Former Directors of the Company.

An application for the appointment of a limited receiver to prosecute suits against certain of the former Directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company for the restitution of money of the company alleged to have been wastefully and wrongfully spent was made yesterday to Federal Judge John C. Knox. The plaintiff is Harold Norris, an official of the National Surety Company and Secretary of a protective committee which represents 1,738 stockholders of the company holding 51,959 shares of stock.

It is an unusual proceeding, only a few of the same character ever having been instituted, but the legality of the action was sustained by the United States Supreme Court in 1879 in a similar application brought in Pennsylvania against a French banking concern. At least two other similar actions, it was said, had been brought and heard by the courts. The grounds for the action are that suits now pending may be settled by the plaintiffs at so late a date that the statute of limitations would run against persons seeking redress in similar fashion, and that the cost of the actions would be so great that it would be impossible for private litigants to bear them.

If a receiver for the purpose of prosecuting the suits is named by the court the costs would have to be borne by the defendant corporation. The action, which brought about the present coalition of the large number of stockholders, was an equity suit begun in March, 1917, by Edwin Adams, Julius C. Morse, George C. Fisk, James F. Ray, and Mary M. Clark, Massachusetts stockholders, for the recovery of a large amount of money which it was alleged had been dissipated by the action of a majority of the Directors. The defendants named in the present action are William Rockefeller, Charles M. Pratt, Lewis Cass Ledyard, and Herbert L. Satterlee, William P. Hamilton, and Lewis Cass Ledyard, as executors of the estate of J. Pierpont Morgan, and Florence A. V. Twombly, as executrix of the estate of Hamilton McK. Twombly.

The plaintiffs in the Adams suit owned only 1,056 shares of the company's stock. The complaint was voluminous and covered all of the points made in the present proceeding. Both complaints charge the defendants with having used the money and credit of the company unlawfully and without authority to purchase control of other corporations to the end that competition might be destroyed in the New England States, in procuring unwarranted and destructive litigation to bankrupt and to drive out of business certain corporations competing with the New Haven Company, or to injure the business of these other companies so as to compel them to sell out at ruinous prices.

Unlawful Agreements Charged.

It is also charged in both complaints that the defendant company entered into unlawful agreements and spent large sums of money for the purpose of completing the domination of the railroad business of the New England States, that it allowed rebates and made concessions to shippers, that $1,500,000 was spent by the defendants to purchase the printing of articles favorable to the company's scheme in the newspapers, that $3,000,000 was lost in operating secretly owned steamboats, that $3,000,000 was spent by Charles S. Mellen, Edward D. Robbins and one Edward G. Buckland, Timothy E. Byrnes, and others to influence legislation in the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire, and the Dominion of Canada.

It is alleged in the present suit, as well as in the Adams suit, that $500,000 was spent for lawyers and litigation to carry out the schemes of the alleged conspirators, and that millions were spent for similar purposes between Jan. 1, 1910, and Dec. 31, 1914. There is a vast amount of detail showing just how the defendants are alleged to have unlawfully and wastefully squandered the money of the corporation. The suit instituted by Mr. Adams fixed the aggregate of these sums at $165,000,000, which the defendants were asked to return to the company, but Saul S. Myers, of counsel, in the present proceeding says the total is about $150,000,000, which the receiver will sue for if the Court appoints him.

The complaint in both suits gives the entire list of Directors of the New Haven Company at the time the alleged wrongful acts, or some of them, were committed. Besides the defendants named they were George Macculloch Miller, Charles F. Brooker, Charles S. Mellen, Robert W. Taft, Edward D. Robbins, James S. Elton, James S. Hemingway, A. Heaton Robertson, Frederick F. Brewster, Henry K. McHarg, and John L. Billard. It is alleged that the plaintiffs could not hope to obtain help in the prosecution of their case if the present directorate of the company had any friendly connection with any of the individual defendants.

The present complaint says that the unlawful acts complained of resulted in the company obtaining eight out of the nine railroad systems, exclusive of the New Haven, operating in New England in 1893, comprising lines having about 6,541 miles out of a total of 8,233, of twenty-two of the thirty water lines operating in New England, and 1,500 miles out of the total of 1,652 miles of tholley lines. Because of the action of the defendants the companies controlled by them, it is alleged, gave much poorer service than was formerly maintained; that the rolling stock depreciated, and that freight traffic was diverted to other lines. It is pointed out that the taking over of the New Haven Company system by the Federal Government did not disturb the right of the plaintiffs to sue.

On Jan. 21, 1915, the complaint says, the Board of Directors refused a request that a restitution suit be brought against some of the former Directors of the company.

Summarizing the points in the present action, Mr. Myers said:

"The stockholders in the Adams vs. Rockefeller suit have found the prosecution of that suit at their own expense to be so burdensome as to be practically impossible. The suit is not brought against all the former Directors, but only against the estate of J. Pierpont Morgan, William Rockefeller, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Charles M. Pratt, and the estate of Hamilton McK. Twombly. The Adams-Rockefeller suit does not seek to cancel the Westchester guarantee of nearly $20,000,000, on which the road is now paying $800,000 a year interest, or similar guarantees.

"Such an important suit should not be allowed to remain in the hands of a small group of stockholders who may find it to their advantage to make a separate settlement, and it would then be too late for other stockholders to start a fresh suit. A receiver, being wholly disinterested, would, as an officer of the court, be given freer access to the books of the road than could possibly be accorded to any small group of stockholders. Such a suit, being of enormous scope, could only be prosecuted with continuity of purpose, unity of action, and impartiality by a receiver appointed and directed by the court."

An answer filed in the Adams-Rockefeller suit contained a general denial of all the charges, and said that whatever was done by accused Directors which was afterward decreed to be unlawful was done in the belief that the acts were lawful and in the interest of the stockholders. It especially denied the charge that an unlawful monopoly had been created and maintained.

Besides Mr. Myers, the counsel for the plaintiffs are Edgar T. Brackett, Everett P. Wheeler, Robert Treat Whitehouse, and Albert Stanton Woodman, the two latter from Portland, Me. The court set next Friday at 10:30 as the time when the defendants should show cause why the application for a receiver should not be granted.

The application for a limited receivership for the New Haven was received with considerable surprise in the financial district, although no entirely new conditions were seen surrounding the court action. At the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. it was said that nothing was known about the step taken by the stockholders' committee. Howard Elliott, former President and now a Director, is away on a vacation, and other Directors had no comment to make.

The news had an adverse effect on New Haven stock, substantial selling causing a drop of 3 points, to 25¾. Before the close of business the price recovered some of the ground lost in the first hasty offerings, purchases being stimulated by the expectation held in trading quarters that the move for a receivership would change little the status of the original action against former Directors.

Lieut. Col. Slifer Dies in France.

Lieut. Col. Hiram J. Slifer of the 21st Light Railway Engineers, U. S. A., formerly engaged in Chicago as consulting railway engineer, died in France Feb. 3 of pneumonia. While inspecting a section of railroad which had been released by the Germans, the car on which Colonel Slifer was riding left the track, and he was thrown into a stream of water. He suffered a broken arm, and pneumonia later developed. He was recommended for promotion to the rank of Colonel, and received several citations for bravery.

YALE CLUB'S SQUASH TENNIS TEAM WRESTS THE TITLE FROM THE HARVARD CLUB PLAYERS

SQUASH TITLE GOES TO YALE CLUB FIVE

Princeton Club-Squash Club Team Beaten in Deciding Clash, 4 Matches to 1.

HARVARD CLUB IS SECOND

Last Season's Champions Nose Out Columbia Club Players by Margin of a Single Point.

Final Standing of the Teams.

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Yale	5	1	.833
Harvard	4	2	.667
Columbia	2	4	.333
Princeton-Squash	1	5	.167

The crack squash tennis players of the Yale Club yesterday won the metropolitan district team championship. In the final round of the tournament, which has been progressing under the auspices of the National Squash Tennis Association, the Elis trounced the combined Princeton Club-Squash Club team to the tune of 4 matches to 1. This gave the Yale representatives a slate of five victories and one defeat for the tournament, enabling them to capture the title from the Harvard Club players, last year's winners.

Yale's match against the Princeton-Squash aggregation was played at the latter club and brought out perhaps the closest and most interesting single match of the entire tournament. This was the meeting between Livingston Platt of Yale and Harold Tobey, representing the Princeton-Squash quintet. Platt took the match by scores of 6—15, 18—16, and 15—9.

Tobey showed clearly to advantage in the opening game and completely puzzled Platt with his attack. The Eli representative failed to approach his top form, although at times he pressed Tobey hard. In the second game Platt recovered his prowess, and hard driving and a sustained rally gave him the game after it had been set. The third game found Tobey weakening in the face of his rival's heavy offensive, and Platt took the game by 15—9 and the match.

H. D. Harvey scored the only victory for the Princeton squash aggregation. This success came as somewhat of a surprise, for the victim was W. Adams, whose playing has been of a high quality since the start of the tournament. Adams took the first set by 15-8, but dropped the second by 15-10, and in the third was beaten out in a brilliant rally by Harvey, who scored at 17-1.

H. W. Carhart of the Yale Club toyed with F. K. Geddes, whom he defeated at 15-2, 15-4.

Two scheduled games went to Yale by default, the Eli players to benefit thus being Donald MacKay and J. A. Vietor. G. E. Cruse failed to come to scratch against Vietor, while MacKay's opponent was to have been W. H. Vanderpoel.

At the Columbia Club the Blue and White quintet was forced to yield by the Harvard Club players by three matches to two. This result gave Harvard the runner-up position in the title chase. The club's record for the series is four victories and two defeats.

J. W. Appel, Jr., of the Crimson team, went through three games against Irving H. Cornell of Columbia and won by 15—2, 6—15, and 15—3. Appel's victory was easy despite the loss of the second game, when his attack lost its force. In the other games Cornell's efforts never attained the status of being dangerous to his opponent. Appel's opening success was attained without undue waste of energy, and the same was true of the third game, which went to the Crimson player by 15—3.

Fred S. Keller of Columbia fell before the effective playing of P. Sanger in two hotly contested games, the scores being 15—7, 17—14. In the other Harvard success Captain A. E. Ellis forced Robert L. Strebeigh of the Blue and White team to defeat after three interesting games by 15—11, 9—15, and 15—6.

Jay Gould of Columbia gave a flash of his expected form in his match against J. V. Onatavia, trouncing the Crimson player by 15—11 and 15—10. The other Blue and White victory was scored by Frank Kidde over J. W. Burden, the scores being 15—6 and 15—9.

The summaries:

Yale Club vs. Princeton-Squash Club.

L. Platt, Yale Club, defeated H. Tobey, Princeton-Squash Club, 6—15, 18—16, 15—9; H. W. Carhart, Yale Club, defeated F. R. Geddes, Princeton-Squash Club, 15—2, 15—4; H. D. Harvey, Princeton-Squash Club, defeated W. Adams, Yale Club, 8—15, 15—10, 17—14; J. A. Vietor, Yale Club, won from G. E. Cruse, Princeton-Squash Club, by default; Donald MacKay, Yale Club, won from W. H. Vanderpoel, Princeton-Squash Club, by default.

Score—Yale, 4 matches; Princeton-Squash, 1 match.

Columbia Club vs. Harvard Club.

Jay Gould, Columbia Club, defeated J. V. Onatavia, Harvard Club, 15—11, 15—10; F. Kidde, Columbia Club, defeated J. W. Burden, Harvard Club, 15—6, 15—9; J. W. Appel, Jr., Harvard Club, defeated I. H. Cornell, Columbia Club, 15—2, 6—15, 15—3; P. Sanger, Harvard Club, defeated Fred S. Keeler, Columbia Club, 15—7, 17—14; Captain A. E. Ellis, Harvard Club, defeated R. L. ANNOUNCE RACING DATES.

Maryland Meetings Extend from April 1 to May 17.

The Jockey Club, at its regular monthly meeting yesterday, awarded the racing dates for the three Spring meetings in Maryland, which precede the opening of the Metropolitan season. The dates for the Metropolitan meetings were not announced, but as the Maryland season covers practically the same period as last year the local season will probably begin May 16.

The Maryland season will open at Bowie, where the Southern Maryland Racing Association will conduct a meeting from April 1 to 15, thirteen days, including two Saturdays. The Agricultural and Breeders' Association will conduct a meeting from April 16 to 30, at Havre de Grace, having thirteen days, with two Saturdays, and the Maryland Jockey Club will hold the last of the Spring meetings at Pimlico, May 1 to 17, having fifteen days of racing, with two Saturdays. The last two days of the Pimlico meeting usually conflict with the opening of the Metropolitan tracks. The United Hunts Racing Association will hold a meeting at Belmont Park on May 17 and 21.

The Jockey Club also adopted a ruling against geldings which will set up a barrier against such performers as Billy Kelly. In its amended form the rule reads:

"No gelding three-year-old and upward shall be qualified to start in any race closing seventy-two hours or more before the date of running, except handicaps and selling races. This rule shall not apply to horses gelded prior to Feb. 13, 1919."

Aside from the awarding of dates the most important business of the meeting was the appointment of officials for the year. The appointments were as follows:

Starter, Mars Casidy; handicapper, W. S. Vosburgh, secretary to the handicapper, H. O. Vosburgh; placing judges, E. C. Smith, and C. H. Pettingill; clerk of the scales, P. U. Homan, assistant to the clerk of the scales, Albert Burlen; patrol judges, J. L. Hall, E. H. Hanna, and James McLaughlin.

The License Committee considered the applications of Jockeys Johnny Loftus and Lawrence Lyke and E. Forehand for jockey licenses, but after some discussion these were laid on the table and the permits were not granted.

Present at the meeting were August Belmont, Edward B. Cassett, Robert L. Gerry, H. K. Knapp, Andrew Miller, John Sanford, F. K. Sturgis, and William Woodward.

SCORE IN SQUASH TOURNEY.

Noted Players to Clash in Annual Invitation Affair.

Play in the National Squash Tennis Association's annual invitation tournament will commence tomorrow at the Yale Club, when four matches in the preliminary round will be decided. The tournament has attracted an entry of twenty players. The upper half of the preliminary round will hold matches between H. W. Carhart, Yale Club, and Irving H. Cornell, Columbia Club, and R. E. Wigham, Columbia Club, and J. A. Vietor, Yale Club. In the lower half are T. Livingston Platt, Yale Club, and A. E. Ells, Harvard Club, and W. J. Knapp, Squash Club, and S. Wainwright, Yale Club.

Continue Races at Speedway.

It is announced by J. Bert Young, Manager of the Speedway at Sheepshead Bay, that he is now negotiating with a group of auto racing sportsmen to plan the running of the three races allotted that track July 26, Aug. 23, and Sept. 20, and that all other attractions booked for the season will be carried out.

Montreal Wins Curling Trophy.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Feb. 13.—The Montreal Curling Club won the Edwards Trophy from the Country Club of Brookline, Mass., today by a score of 50 to 34.

PACT WITH MINORS STILL HOLDS GOOD

National League Will Continue Business Relations Under Old Agreement.

When the minor leagues declared their independence and decided to go their way and let the major leagues worry along as best they could, those behind the project intended that new conditions should go into effect immediately. Now it develops that they were not as anxious to get their freedom as they appear to be. President John A. Heydler has sent out word to all National League clubs that the National Agreement between the majors and minors is still in existence, and ordered all clubs to conduct business with the minors the same way as in the past, until further notice.

In other words, the National Agreement has never been abrogated, as the minors believed it to be, and until some new agreement is made with the majors governing relations between the organizations business will be conducted as formerly. Consequently the dreams which Joe Tinker of Columbus and some of the other Western minor league magnates had about building up major league clubs of their own and selling ball players for as large sums as they cared to ask have been temporarily shattered.

It does not seem likely that a new agreement between the majors and minors will be signed before the present season opens, and consequently players will go from one organization to the other on the same conditions as in the past. The temporary agreement which the minors drew up was approved by Chairman August Herrmann of the National Commission, but Presidents Heydler and Johnson refused to sign it.

It now develops that the reason they did not sign it was because the minors in this document claimed territory where baseball leagues have been extinct for two or three seasons. The major leagues flatly refused to give the minors jurisdiction over imaginary minor organizations. There were eight minor leagues in existence at the time of the joint meeting here and the minors want the territorial rights to sixteen circuits, seven of which do not exist.

Baseball men are wondering just what is going to happen at the end of the Spring training season when the major leagues will have to turn loose many young players to keep their player limits down to twenty-one men. Some of the minor leagues will insist that the national agreement has been abrogated and will not recognize it, although the major leagues will insist that it is still in operation.

It is believed that the plan of the minors is to have the majors turn loose their excess players and let them automatically become free agents. Then the minors can take the pick of them for their own clubs. This will mean, of course, that some of the minor league players who have been engaged will be sent adrift to make way for the more promising players released by the majors. It is doubtful if this plan of the minor leagues will materialize, because with the National Agreement still recognized by the majors, the majority of the minors will realize that it is to their advantage to take the majors young talent under the same optional conditions that have existed in the past.

The Captain Edward L. Grant Memorial Association was organized yesterday at the offices of the New York Baseball Club of the National League, with John J. McGraw as President, Sam Crane, Secretary, and John B. Foster, Treasurer. The object of the organization is "for the purpose of providing a fitting memorial for a soldier who made the supreme sacrifice in France, for a baseball player who was a credit to the game, for a patriot, and for a man."

All subscribers to the fund will automatically become members of the association. The memorial will be erected at the Polo Grounds, where Captain Grant played his last ball game. Subscriptions to the fund will be entirely voluntary and no solicitors are authorised to collect funds. The New York Club started the subscriptions with $200.

Local Champion Beats Western Titleholder in Crescent A. C. Bout.

Charles Pilkington of the Union Settlement A. C., New York State 125-pound amateur boxing champion, defeated George Brandler of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, Pacific Coast champion, in an interesting bout last night at the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn. The contest was a special attraction, in addition to the final matches in the New Moon Club's monthly tournament. Pilkington gained the judges' award in three rounds. Brandler is in the naval service and is stationed at Ellis Island.

The winners of the regular classes were: 110 Pounds—A. J. De Vito, New West Side A. C.; 115 Pounds—Sam Nable, Clark House A. A.; 125 Pounds—J. Hausner, Clark House A. A.; 135 Pounds—E. Crozier, Bronxdale A. C. In a special 115-pound bout A. Arra, Quick Step A. C., defeated P. Kurnin, Barret Gymnasium, in three rounds, judges' decision.

CANNEFAX WINS AGAIN.

Plays Spectacular Game Against Harry Frisch.

Robert Cannefax of St. Louis, former three-cushion carom billiard champion, scored another victory in his handicap match against Harry Frisch at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn last night. The score was 40 to 23 in thirty-eight innings.

Kieckhefer Wins from De Oro.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Augie Kieckhefer, three-cushion billiard champion, tonight defeated Alfred De Oro, the Cuban expert from New York, by winning the first block 50 to 45 in sixty-three innings. De Oro, from whom Kieckhefer won the championship a year ago, gave an exhibition of skill, making a high run of eight, but Kieckhefer quickly passed him. Kieckhefer's high run was four.

Blumenthal Defeats Spence.

William Blumenthal defeated D. Spence in a closely contested ninety-three-inning game by the score of 50 to 49, at Thum's Academy last night, in the three-cushion championship tournament of the A. A. B. A. Blumenthal made a high run of 3, while his opponent's best effort was 4. Tonight Joseph Cosgrove will play A. Ortiz.

CORNELL ATTACKS BIG THREE POLICY

Aloofness of Yale, Harvard, and Princeton in Athletics Is Called Undemocratic.

Severe criticism of Harvard, Yale, and Princeton because of their alleged closed athletic syndicate is being made by several colleges, but the loudest protest against the exclusive policy of the Big Three comes from Cornell. The action of the three universities in confining their athletic activities to themselves is called undemocratic and against the spirit of the times. The Ithacans freely predict that the attempt by the Big Three to build up a "sport autocracy" is courting disaster and that the "policy of self-sufficiency and self-contained competition will prove a boomerang."

The sentiments which have just been expressed by Cornell are shared by other colleges, including Pennsylvania. The protest of Cornell is voiced in The Cornell Daily Sun, which does not mince words in commenting on the resented policy of Harvard, Yale, and Princeton. The criticism has been so severe that it has led to the plan of Pennsylvania, Cornell, Dartmouth, and Columbia to pool their athletic interests.

The Cornell Sun, in discussing the subject, says: "Perhaps the college world awaits anxiously and breathlessly the rending of the veil of secrecy regarding the athletic plans of Harvard, Princeton, and Yale. Perhaps American colleges will not feel able to go wagging along their way until the Big Three tribunal issues its decrees. Perhaps.

"The existence of 'powerful' cliques controlling the future of intercollegiate athletics is at once the greatest stumbling block to success and the greatest menace to the future of the whole system. The easily arrived at conclusion that a given group contains within its restricted confines all the meat and marrow sems to constitute the raison d'être and the strength of the Big Three. Harvard, Yale, and Princeton are perhaps just a little behind the times in setting up their hierarchy of intercollegiate sport. With the multiplicity of colleges sending teams out into intercollegiate competition the existence of a sport aristocracy is an anomaly and an anachronism.

"The Big Three idea is a bit undemocratic and against the spirit of the times. College athletic competition should be broadened in scope. Any attempt at forming closed syndicates attacks the very essence of athletics. War should have taught the Big Three a lesson or so; and it is possible that the forthcoming army plan of preparedness may include a few eye openers for the self-constituted Big Three.

"There is no university or group of universities possessing either the prestige or power to control the athletic affairs of American colleges. And so it happens that the artificial Big Three idea as only taken seriously, sans salt at Cambridge, Princeton, and New Haven. It is annoying to democratic America to learn that three institutions choose to isolate themselves, and to send out the mandate that their triangular competition constitutes the aims and end and the all of intercollegiate athletics. There is just a suspicion that some of the pool's tadpoles may grow; perhaps some day the Big Three's policy of self-sufficiency and self-contained competition will prove a boomerang.

"It is not unthinkable that the Big Three policy of aloofness may contain within itself the seeds of disaster. The very phrase Big Three is a contradiction, and even now the Big Three is losing some of its old time sway. The future will see a broadening of the field of intercollegiate competition. Then the Big Three must either recognize the error of its ways or self-sufficiency and isolation will bring disaster."

FIRST TICKET FOR BOUT.

Rickard Disposes of Box for Big Fight for $600.

The first sale of tickets for the proposed heavyweight championship boxing bout between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey was received yesterday by Promoter Tex Rickard. The Western promoter announced that he had made his first sale to a well known millionaire who is an enthusiast of boxing. The sale provided for boxes in the first and fourth rows. The boxes contain six seats each, at a value of [illegible] each. Rickard received a certified check for $600.

Rickard did not disclose the name of the purchaser. The unidentified enthusiast at first requested that ten boxes be placed at his disposal, but Rickard would not agree.

Six Cylinder Motor

Electric Self Starter

Creating a Sensation

at the Truck Show

AFTER several months of diligent investigation and try-out of many makes of motor trucks, we finally decided upon the PARKER line, and our judgment has more than been confirmed at the Show.

For verily, the PARKER is creating a sensation!

And here are some reasons why: Six (6) Cylinders—Continental Motors—Worm Drive—Westinghouse Electric Starters and Generators—Electric Lights—Hydraulic Hoist—up-to-date fore door cabs and wind shields—every modern improvement and convenience.

The Truck With the "Six Cylinder Pull"

We have anticipated the next sweeping development in the industry. We choose to take the lead, and give the public what they should have had years ago—Trucks powered with 6-cylinder motors.

This continuous torque or 6-cylinder pull prolongs the life of the driving units of the chassis. It spares the gears, the worm and the worm-wheel, the axles, the tires and, most of all, the motor's internal self. It furnishes a smoothness and flexibility of power application heretofore unknown in motor trucks.

The Electric Starter a Time and Money Saver.

The Electric Starter adds 40% to the life of the motor—or, to put it another way, it saves 75 days useless motor wear yearly, because it cuts off at least 2 hours of motor idling per day.

It eliminates motor abuse, and prevents carbonizing. It will save $225 per year on gasoline alone. And it will save 300 hours of truck time per year—to say nothing of making it easier for the driver.

These are FACTS, and we are proving them to the satisfaction of our visitors at the Show—we would like to prove them to YOU.

The Economy Truck—Prove It Yourself.

In addition to the features mentioned, here are some others that spell ECONOMY—heavy radius rods—extremely long springs—Parker four-speed transmission—Parker full floating rear axles; they all mean economy of operation, and satisfaction to users.

We would like to have you see the PARKER, and invite you to examine it at Madison Square Garden during the Truck Show—or any time later at our salesroom.

Motor truck buyers are seeking just what the PARKER truck, more than any other, represents—the most continuous service under all conditions at the lowest operating costs.

Don't fail to see it—a genuine sensation in the motor truck field!

Dealers: Progressive dealers who are anxious to secure an agency for a complete line of trucks will do well to get in touch with us. The PARKER Agency will get you away from competition as no other agency can. Wire, write or call for particulars.

OUTLINES VAST PLAN TO BETTER THIS PORT

Gustav Lindenthal Would Link Us to Jersey with Bridge, Tunnels, and Railroad.

UNION STATION IN THIS CITY

Great Freight Classification Yard on Jersey Meadows and Belt Line All Around Harbor.

Members of the New York-New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission, of which William R. Willcox is Chairman, met yesterday at 115 Broadway and listened to a plan formulated by Gustav Lindenthal, consulting engineer, for the development of the terminal and transportation facilities of the Port of New York.

For many years Mr. Lindenthal has made a special study of the conditions relating to port facilities and especially to railroad freight and passenger terminals. His plan calls for a belt railroad in New Jersey running from near Perth Amboy in a semi-circle to the Hudson River and including a railroad on Staten Island connected by tunnel under Staten Island Sound, the belt line to intersect all railroads in New Jersey.

It also provides for a classification yard in the New Jersey meadows accessible to all railroads and to motor trucks from which local freight to Jersey City and Manhattan could be distributed in carloads and smaller lots; a multiple track high level bridge across the North River; an elevated railroad connecting with the bridge and having two decks down the river front in Manhattan with freight and passenger stations and market halls; about twenty market halls between the Battery and Inwood; tunnels under the North River near Battery Place and crossing over to the New Jersey Central yards and connecting with the west side elevated railroad, thus forming with the existing tracks in New Jersey a loop back to the distribution yard in the meadows.

Union Station in Manhattan.

The plan also calls for a connection between the bridge and the New York Central Railroad north of Fifty-seventh Street; a union passenger station in Manhattan for all the railroads in New Jersey, including the Pennsylvania Railroad, with room for some trains of the New York Central lines; a conveyor railroad or moving platform from the bridge in the subway under Fifty-seventh Street connecting all the existing elevated and subway lines in Manhattan running north and south with the bridge and local lines in New Jersey; rapid transit tracks for connecting with the Ninth Avenue elevated lines and two surface tracks connecting with tracks on Fifty-ninth Street; a pair of tunnel tubes from Greenville, N. J., to Bay Ridge, L. I., about three miles long, to serve as the last link in an all-rail freight line along the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida; a two-track tunnel under Audubon Park to connect the river tracks of the New York Central with the tracks of the Putnam Division and its Harlem Division, and so with the New Haven system, giving another all-rail through line for passengers and freight between New England and New Jersey, and finally a great power plant to supply electric power for all transportation lines, electrical locomotives to be used everywhere.

The cost of the project, not including river-front improvements and shipping piers, is $211,000,000, which Mr. Lindenthal says is not excessive when compared with the $500,000,000 cost for subways in Manhattan and Brooklyn, used merely for local passenger transportation.

In discussing the financing and execution of the work Mr. Lindenthal said that much of it could be done through the North River Bridge Company, an existing Federal corporation. He stated that this company, having already been granted certain powers necessary for such a large undertaking, could coöperate with the commission, which would still leave a very large share of the work, particularly that relating to water-front improvement, entirely in the hands of the Port Commission.

Comprehensiveness of Plan.

"The comprehensiveness of the plan, as far as the railroads are concerned," said Mr. Lindenthal, "is apparent from the fact that every railroad in New Jersey would have a direct entrance into Manhattan for freight and passengers, and also direct connection with the railroads on Long Island, Staten Island, and in New England. Provision is made so that all railroads within the territory of the future free port of New York can readily and directly reach tidewater frontage on Staten Island Sound and on Staten Island along the lower bay, as well as in the upper bay, where there would be a very extensive system of steamer piers, each 2,000 feet long, on the Hudson River on both the New Jersey and Manhattan sides."

Mr. Lindenthal also pointed out that while the present time is not propitious for construction on account of the high prices of material, the work of studying and preparing plans should begin at once, as well as the necessary negotiations with the railroads.

There will be a conference at 11 o'clock this morning in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce between Governor Smith of New York and Governor Edge of New Jersey, as well as legislative committees of both States, regarding the tentative draft of amenuments to the treaty of 1834 between New York and New Jersey fixing and determining the rights and obligations of the States in and about New York Bay and the Hudson River.

The New York representatives besides Governor Smith will be Lieut. Gov. Walker, Senators Walters, Sage, Foley, and Burlingame; Speaker Sweet, Assemblymen Adler, Machold, Martin, and Donohue; Attorney General Newton and Assistant Corporation Counsel McGoldrick.

DISCUSSES RUSSIA'S PERIL.

A German Dictator May Get Control Ultimately, Corse Asserts.

Speaking last night on "Russia and the Reconstruction" at a meeting held in the Bush Terminal Sales Building, Frederick M. Corse, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, predicted that if the Allies did not interfere in Russia and establish order, the country would sink to such complete anarchy that a German would be able to step in as dictator and organize it on a German basis.

"If left alone Russia will go from Bolshevism to complete anarchy," he said. "An absolute dictatorship will follow; the dictator will be a German and Russia will welcome him. There is no place except Russia where the German can migrate. Already there are thousands of Germans in Russia who know the language and customs. In the event of a dictatorship, the Germans will go ahead and thoroughly organize the country on a German basis; then in possibly thirty years the world will face another menace of a Germanized Slavic nation."

Speaking on the Bolshevist rise of power in Russia, the speaker said that if the country had had a man like Ole Hanson, the Mayor of Seattle, in July, 1917, the present régime could not have gained power. He said Bolshevism was not Russian by origin, but was transported to the country by 100,000 exiles from such places as the east side of New York and the Latin quarter of Paris.

"They act on the theory of do what you please, take what you want and assassinate anybody who interferes." Mr. Corse said.

The Allies, Mr. Corse said, should throw down the gauntlet to the Bolsheviki in Russia and aid the country in establishing a democratic form of government. In the enterprise of rehabilitating Russia, America should play the chief part, Mr. Corse asserted. The speaker related several stories of dealings with the Trotsky government and of the plight of the business man in Russia.

2,995 MORE TROOPS HOME FROM FRANCE

Cruiser Seattle and Transports Santa Teresa and Peerless Meet Rough Weather.

BARNEY FLOOD RETURNS

New York Policeman Denies Reports of Crimes by American Troops in Paris.

Two steamships and a United States cruiser arrived here yesterday with 2,995 troops from France. The cruiser Seattle, from Brest, had on board 1,356 troops and 25 enlisted men of the navy. Her list included the medical detachment, First Battalion Headquarters, and Companies A, B, and C, all of the 163d Infantry of the 43d Division; 116th Supply Train and other detachments, all of the same division; Battery C of the 50th Regiment of the Coast Artillery Corps; Casual Company 235 of New York, and 13 casual officers. The returned troops included 91 enlisted men of the Kentucky and Montana National Guards.

The Santa Teresa, from Bordeaux, brought in 1,456 army men and a naval officer. All except one man had been wounded, and were from the Bordeaux Convalescent Detachments 1 to 7, 684 men; Detachments 17 and 18, 16 officers and 12 men; Detachment 65, 65 officers and 31 men; Casual Company 31, 1 officer and 73 men, and medical casual detachments. The steamship Peerless brought 157 officers and men, including Casual Company 24, of California men.

Among those who returned on the Santa Teresa was Captain Barney Flood, on leave from the police department, who has been serving as head of the Army's Bureau of Criminal Investigation, under Provost Marshal General Bandholz. He denied that there was a crime wave among American soldiers of the Expeditionary Force. Not only was the percentage of crime among the Americans small, but, the Captain said, the men who were found to be ex-criminals in nearly every instance made good. "The men who had been criminals, and who got to France with the army, proved honest and patriotic in nearly every case," he said. "They made good. There is absolutely no organized bandit gang in the whole American Army in France."

For a time Captain Flood was assigned to the French and British Governments. He worked on the Bolo Pasha case for France. His bureau sent back 700 undesirable civilians, and was instrumental in picking up a great many neutrals who were either known to be working for Germany or whose neutrality was a matter of suspicion. He went to Coblenz with the American Army. There he found the attitude of the Germans was one of tolerance.

Lieutenant A. Howard Neely of 549 Riverside Drive came back on the ship. He was with the 107th Field Artillery, and was gassed on the Marne on July 29. Lieutenant Neely recovered from that but on Oct. 24, in the Meuse sector, a big high explosive shell dropped near him filling his legs with splinters and that, added to rheumatism which he contracted, caused him to come home on crutches. Lieutenant Neely went overseas as a private with the 1st Depot Battalion of the Signal Corps and was made a First Lieutenant in the Argonne fighting in September.

Wears the Croix de Guerre.

Lieutenant F. V. Brown of Chattanooga, Tenn., came back wearing the Croix de Guerre for his work at Cantigny on May 28 at the head of his company. He broke up a counter-attack of the Germans, reorganized his men, went back at the Germans in front of him and put them out of action.

Lieutenant Thornton Hooper of Atlantic City was with the 11th Aero Squadron. After eighteen months in France, while flying over Conflans on Sept. 18 with four other machines, nine German planes came out of the clouds, attacked them and brought them down behind the enemy lines. He and his observer, Ralph R. Root, were captured and taken to Strasberg, where he said they were nearly starved.

Like other vessels arriving, the cruiser Seattle encountered rough weather and her log narrates having weathered a 106-mile hurricane that carried away her instruments for recording its velocity. So bad was the wind, the officers said, that the log trailing aft was lifted from the water and carried through the air as though the Seattle were flying a kite.

"Still," said Commander Culbertson, "that is not so bad as I once met with off Madagascar. When we tried to come to an anchor the anchor blew out ahead of us on 30 fathoms of chain and we had to put to sea again."

One seaman died from pneumonia on the voyage, and the vessel also brought home the body of a member of the crew who died on the outward voyage.

It was appropriate that the Seattle should bring home the 1st Battalion of the 116th Signal Corps, for Major J. A. Jackson, a civil engineer of Seattle, said that nearly all of the battalion was recruited there.

There was one officer among the thirteen casuals on the Seattle that got a shock on the high seas and hastened to send a wireless message home that he had not been killed in action. It was Lieutenant James H. Briggs, an ordnance officer, whose wife resides in Houston, Texas. During the voyage Lieutenant Briggs read in an old copy of a New York newspaper which he found aboard that he had been reported "killed in action."

The Finland, with a total of 3,353 passengers aboard, is expected to dock at Hoboken about 8 o'clock this morning. Brig. Gen. Daniel W. Ketcham is in command of the troops aboard the Finland, which include base hospital No. 18, 27 officers and 145 men; 34th Coast Artillery Brigade of Headquarters, 8 officers and 36 men, all from New York; casual companies, 483, Iowa; 484, Michigan; 485 (colored, from various sections) 486, Missouri; 487, Connecticut; 488, Illinois; 489, Massachusetts; 491, Ohio; 492, Oklahoma; 493, Pennsylvania; 494, Kentucky; 495, New York, and 496, Minnesota. Each has two officers and an average of 150 men. There are 30 casual officers, including 24 air service, and 6 civilians.

CROWDER IS REAPPOINTED.

Renominated Judge Advocate General and Confirmed by Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Nomination of Major General Enoch Crowder to be Judge Advocate General of the army for another term of four years was confirmed tonight by the Senate. The renomination from the President was received during the day and was immediately approved by the Senate Military Committee, which interrupted a public hearing to act, because General Crowder's present term will expire Saturday.

Since the United States entered the war, General Crowder has been Provost Marshal General under special detail by the President, and he will continue the work of that office until it is concluded. Brigadier General Ansell has been acting Judge Advocate General.

There were reports at one time, and they were the subject of lively discussion at the Capitol, that General Crowder would not be reappointed because of differences with General March over administrative questions.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Western disturbance of Wednesday is central tonight over Northern Illinois, with a further increase in intensity, and marked low pressure prevails over interior districts west of the Rocky Mountains, except in the extreme Northwest.

There were general rains over the entire low pressure area, with some snows in the Plains States and the North Upper Lake region, and there were strong winds and gales over the Central Valleys, the West Lower Lake and the Upper Lake regions, and the Plains States. There were also scattered snows in the extreme Northwest, and light rains and snows over the northern districts west of the Rockies. In the Central and Southern Rocky Mountain regions and the extreme Southwest the weather was fair.

High temperatures continue east of the Mississippi River, except in the Middle Atlantic States and New England, while to the westward as far as the Rocky Mountains they have fallen considerably, but only to approximately normal conditions. In the Far West temperatures changed but little.

The disturbance will continue its east-northeastward movement during Friday, attended by general rains in the Ohio Valley and the Atlantic States and rains and snows in the lake region. There will be snow Saturday in the lake region and the Upper Ohio Valley and rain in New England and the Middle Atlantic States. The weather will be fair Saturday in the Lower Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the South Atlantic States and fair Friday and Saturday in the East Gulf States.

It will be warmer Friday in New England and the Middle Atlantic States and colder in the upper lake and western lower lake regions, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, the East Gulf States, and Western Georgia.

It will be colder Saturday in the South Atlantic States, the Upper Ohio Valley and the lower lake region, and by Saturday night in the Middle Atlantic States.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Boston to Jupiter, Fla., and on the Gulf Coast from Bay St. Louis to Tampa.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North Atlantic Coast will be increasing south, becoming strong early Friday night, rain; Middle Atlantic Coast, increasing southeast and south, becoming strong by Friday evening, rain; South Atlantic Coast, strong south and southwest, except moderate on the South Florida coast, rain Friday, probably fair Saturday.

FORECASTS, TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Rain and warmer Friday. Saturday, rain or snow in the northern, rain in the southern, portion, colder.

Southern New England—Rain and warmer Friday. Saturday, rain, colder in the western portion.

New Jersey—Rain and warmer Friday. Saturday, rain, followed by clearing and colder.

Western New York—Rain Friday; warmer in the eastern portion. Saturday, snow in the western, snow or rain in the eastern portion, colder.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Rain and warmer Friday. Saturday, rain in the northern, rain followed by clearing in the southern portion, probably somewhat colder.

Northern New England—Snow in the interior, snow or rain on the coast, Friday and Saturday; warmer Friday.

LEGAL NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF New York, New York County.—In the matter of the application of GERMAN ODD FELLOWS' HOME ASSOCIATION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK for leave to change its name to UNITED ODD FELLOWS' HOME AND ORPHANAGE ASSOCIATION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the German Odd Fellows' Home Association of the State of New York, a domestic corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, and having its principal place of business in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, will present to the Supreme Court of the State of New York, New York County, at a Special Term, Part I thereof, to be held in and for the County of New York, at the County Court House in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 24th day of February, 1919, at 10:15 o'clock in the forenoon of that day or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, a petition for an order authorizing said corporation to change its corporate name to "UNITED ODD FELLOWS' HOME AND ORPHANAGE ASSOCIATION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK" on a day to be specified therein; and for such further and other relief as to the Court may seem, just and proper in the premises.

Dated, New York, January 31st, 1919.
GERMAN ODD FELLOWS' HOME ASSOCIATION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.
By MARCUS BERLINER, President.
JOEL KRONE, Attorney for Petitioner, 299 Broadway, Manhattan, New York City.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Lee's Towing Line, Inc., chartered owner of the steamtug Herman Lee, has filed a petition for the limitation of its liability for any loss, damage or injury arising out of the collision claimed to have occurred between the schooner Cora F. Cressy, which was in tow of the steamtugs Herman Lee and Maren Lee and the barge Cumberland on or about the 12th day of April, 1917; value of the vessel and freight $8,000.

All persons claiming damages because of any such loss, destruction, damage or injury, must prove their claims before Roger B. Wood, Esq., Commissioner, at his office, No. 37 Wall Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the 19th day of May, 1919, or be defaulted.

SEES MERCHANDISE PRICES 'SOFTENING'

Jesse I. Straus Warns Dry Goods Retailers Against Anticipating Needs.

FAVOR BONUS TO SALESMEN

Three-Day Convention Here Ends with Discussion on Small City Merchants.

Speaking yesterday at the convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association in the Hotel Pennsylvania, Jesse I. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co., said that the keynote of the present time was conservative optimism. He said that a very unhealthy situation had been created by the manufacturers and the wholesale distributors by their recent constant preaching on the scarcity of merchandise, statements that though honestly made were not well considered. He told the delegates that there is a tendency to buy for only current needs, and that this should work for a reduction in prices.

In discussing the statement of Secretary of Commerce Redfield that high prices cannot be maintained with safety to the United States, Mr. Straus said: "If our stocks are handled conservatively as nearly as possible, depending upon our proximity to market, from hand to mouth, we will be able to place before the consumers of the country their needs at lowering prices, with greater helpfulness and safety to them and with safety to ourselves. The time would have come if prices had continued to rise when consumption would be cut off."

At recent talks with producers Mr. Straus said he had been impressed with the positive conviction that prices are softening and that merchandise prices are gradually approximating normal conditions and that this, above all other times, is a dangerous time to anticipate too freely merchandising needs.

Mrs. Lucinda W. Price, Director of Education of the association, in presenting her annual report advocated the advisability of conducting salesmanship classes in the public schools.

The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of problems affecting merchants in the small cities. Among the questions discussed was the sale of merchandise by the "self serve" plan, which members agreed has worked out well in some places, though still in its infancy. Another topic was the question of paying bonuses to salespeople. Many said that they are operating bonus plans and that the result has been favorable.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, S. P. Halle of Halle Bros. Co., Cleveland, Ohio; First Vice President, Jesse Isidor Straus of R. H. Macy & Co., New York City; Second Vice President, H. M. Henderson of Henderson, Hoyt Co., Oshkosh, Wis., and Third Vice President, F. J. Paxon of Davisonn, Paxon, Stokes Co., Atlanta, Ga.

The convention closed last night with a reception, lecture, and exhibit given to the delegates by the Art Alliance of America.

A Window Display Helped.

A big New York wall paper house which does a retail as well as a wholesale business is shipping a $125 order of wall paper to Oklahoma as a direct result of its window display. The firm believes that a good display in a location where retail customers may be reached is a great help. Its windows are unusually attractive. Hanging with the papers are draperies in harmonizing tones, and there are vases in beautiful colors and lamps with attractive shades, all suggesting the possibilities of home decoration with their papers. The Oklahoma woman who gave the order said that she was passing, noticed the window, said to herself that a firm which could arrange such a harmonious display must have good papers, and went in and made her purchase.

Wash Skirts Going Well.

Manufacturers of women's wash skirts are looking forward to one of the largest seasons they have had for some time past. So far, the business at this end of the skirt line is nearly double what it was a year ago. Owing to the prices quoted on these goods the road business in some instances was not as good as was expected. Most of this business is now being done in the city. Novelty silks and wool plaids in different color combinations are among the more popular fabrics for Spring.

'BUY-NOW' CAMPAIGN BEGUN

Defense Council Warns of Unemployment from Ebbing Trade.

The United States Council of National Defense, through its Director, Grosvenor B. Clarkson, who is at present in New York, announced yesterday the start of a campaign to reduce unemployment by trying to get the general public to buy only what it needs, but "buy it now." It is the belief of the council that stocks are much depleted because the demands of the public have declined, and it is explained that though it may be economically wise to wait for a bottom market before purchasing, consideration should be given to saving men from unemployment and the country from the social consequences of such a condition.

According to the statement, the council believes that Bolshevism, the I. W. W., and similar agitators are likely to thrive on unemployment. The statement says in part:

"The Council's action is based on the general industrial situation. In the Northern States unemployment is present because of suspension of outdoor work. Workers on outdoor improvements have crowded into the congested cities and are finding more or less difficulty in getting temporary employment. There is business hesitation normal to post-war readjustment. Prices are to some extent declining. Men hesitate to buy materials and supplies on a falling market. This means stopping work in some places and reducing amount of work done in others. Return of soldiers in quantities adds for the time to the problem.

"Without expressing undue alarm, the Council of National Defense believes that the situation invites the activities of certain restless elements of society. The Bolshevik takes advantage of idleness. Empty stomachs and purses create his opportunity. His fellow, the I. W. W. agitator, seizes the same occasion.

"There is a great volume of business waiting to be done in America. Private stocks of all kinds are low. The country's means are ample, and when the full flow of private buying begins, there will be business for all. But it may take several months to bring this about, and action is needed now.

"Our commerce rests upon the personal purchases of individuals. If all were to stop buying there would be no business. It is called good business to delay buying until the market reaches bottom. If economic law alone were now concerned, that would be right action. But there is directly involved at this moment the saving of men from unemployment and the social consequences to them and to the country."

The Federal Employment Service announced yesterday that during the week ended Feb. 8 there had been 10,092 applications for work in this State, and that 5,162 persons had been placed in positions. Of those registered, 8,116 were men and 1,976 were women. Employment was found for 3,795 men and 1,367 women.

ANOTHER NEW-STATE BILL.

Would Join Connecticut and New Jersey to Eastern New York.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Twenty-nine western counties in New York State will have to look for a new collective name and Connecticut and New Jersey will lose their identity as States if Assemblyman J. Fairfax McLaughlin, Democrat, of the Bronx, has his way about it, and all because of prohibition.

Assemblyman McLaughlin doesn't like the way the Legislature spurned the wishes of New York City folks in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment. He said the fact that the lawmakers acted so drove him to introduce his bill snatching New York City and the eastern counties away from up-State influences.

The proposed new State would take in the Counties of New York, Kings, Queens, Bronx, Richmond, Nassau, Suffolk, Westchester, Rockland, Putnam, Orange, Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan, Columbia, Greene, Delaware, Rensselaer, Albany, Schoharie, Otsego, Washington, Saratoga, Schenectady, Montgomery, Herkimer, Warren, Fulton, Hamilton, Essex, Clinton, Franklin, and St. Lawrence and the States of New Jersey and Connecticut.

Majority Leader Adler offered the bill for $1,000,000 to begin the construction of the New York, New Jersey vehicular and pedestrian tunnel. The bill went to the Ways and Means Committee, which is expected to report it out early next week for action by the House. The measure is slated to go through the Legislature, according to leaders.

Senator Abraham Kaplan of New York would exempt from the inheritance tax all property or beneficial interest in property up to $10,000 transferred to any soldier who was in the world war, the exemption to extend to the transfer of estates of soldiers killed in action to dependents when the amount does not exceed $10,000.

State scholarships for honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines in any college or technical school in the State are provided for in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Thomas V. McDonald of the Bronx. Tuition and textbooks would be free, as would instruction in the preparatory schools of any city or union free school district.

AUSTRIA CLAIMS PAINTINGS.

Objects to Surrender of Masterpieces Taken from Italy.

BASLE, Feb. 12.—The German-Austrian Foreign Office, according to a dispatch from Vienna, has sent a protest to the allied Governments and President Wilson against Italy's claim to sixty-four paintings in possession of the German-Austrian Government. The protest declares that the paintings are the property of former Emperor Charles personally and not property of the Crown.

According to newspapers here an Italian commission has visited the Court Library in Vienna to take possession of manuscripts and volumes brought to Vienna when the Austrians were masters of Naples, during the first half of the nineteenth century.

VIENNA, Feb. 12, (Associated Press.)—The Government of German-Austria is turning over to the Italians under protest paintings which the Italian Government claims were taken from occupied Italian territory by the Austro-Hungarian armies. Among the paintings are the "Madonna of the Orange Tree," by Giovanni Battista; Carpaccio's "Christ," Tintoretto's "Philosopher," two altar pieces by Veronese, and one of Bastiani's best canvases.

Some of these paintings were found in the Imperial Art Museum and one at Eckartsau Castle, where former Emperor Charles is living. The first lot of sixty-four paintings is being prepared for shipment to Italy under military escort.
